OUT OF A BRILLIANT PAST ... A SUPREME TRIUMPH!

Only from the great traditions of Cadillac could there come a motor car as surpassingly fine as the creation you see here. It's the Cadillac car for 1958—a brilliant achievement in all the qualities that make it the Standard of the World. And paramount among these is the practical satisfaction it renders. From every standpoint, the Cadillac car has become an even wiser purchase for an even wider group of motorists. Whether your favorite is the Sixty-Two Coupe or the Eldorado Brougham, we invite you to inspect its Fleetwood coachcrafting and to spend an hour at the wheel.

Where Your Homesite Is An INVESTMENT

AND IS YOUR
Landfall FOR LIFE

Palm Beach Isles lies just one and one half nautical miles north of the Lake Worth Inlet, providing fast access to the teeming Atlantic Ocean and Gulfstream fishing grounds. You'll enjoy the ever-changing picture book scenes from patio and living room produced by yachts, swimmers and skiers.

Florida's famed restoratives—sun, sand, and salt water—are available in abundance to the Palm Beach Islander. You may bathe in safety and loll in relative privacy along the entire length of the wide beach at Palm Beach Isles.

The joy of living at Palm Beach Isles is made more complete for both the social-minded golfer and the golf-minded socialite if he uses the many fine courses within easy driving distance of his home. Shown here is just one of many fine clubs and courses in the Palm Beach area

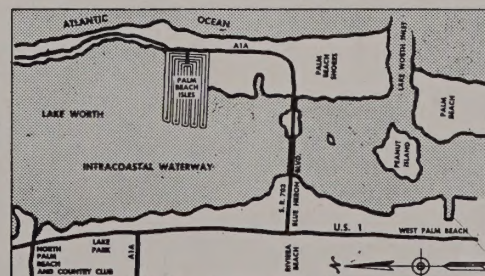

The gangplank of Welcome is out for you at Palm Beach Isles. You'll be proud to build your dockside home in this community which was planned by sea-loving landmen to embrace all the glamour of the Palm Beach area, the tropical sea and hospitable neighbors. Your homesite here represents an investment in Florida's fabulous future as well as the spot where life may be lived only as it can be lived in the tranquil tropics.

Palm Beach Isles brings to your waterfront homesite quick access to the ocean, clean, tidal-water fishing and bathing in beautiful Lake Worth and scenic boatways on the Intracoastal Waterway. Wide, free-flowing canals link your dock to closeby and far-flung activities which are the dream of every boat lover.

Direct, private access is provided to the widest natural beach in South Florida, where the unspoiled, clean sand averages several hundred feet wide at high tide. The golf-minded Palm Beach Islander may lay his course in almost any direction for the golf course of his choice . . . nearby public courses and country clubs.

How to Reach Palm Beach Isles

From U. S. Highway No. 1, turn East on Blue Heron Blvd. in the town of Riviera Beach. This is State Road 703, or A1A. Continue on A1A as it curves north in Singer Island, and continue until you see the PALM BEACH ISLES signs and sales office on the west side of the road.

WHERE DISTINCTION HAS MEANING

With the Audubon Key section of Point Manalapan rapidly approaching completion, the fabled beauty of old Hypoluxo Island soon will be enhanced by a group of distinctive waterfront homes built for some of America's finest families.

Because homesite availability in the Point Manalapan community, requires acceptance in the very desirable Manalapan Club, residents are assured neighbors of taste, culture and accomplishment. Practical, too, is the Point Manalapan community, for its plans include just about everything you consider necessary for Florida living with distinction.

Extremely wide waterways are your tree-lined avenues to the Ocean Inlet less than a mile away. The shops, clubs and restaurants of Palm Beach and Delray Beach are pleasantly convenient, as are six fine golf courses. Architectural control and rigid restrictions guarantee the value of your investment, as does the superbly engineered quality of our land improvements.

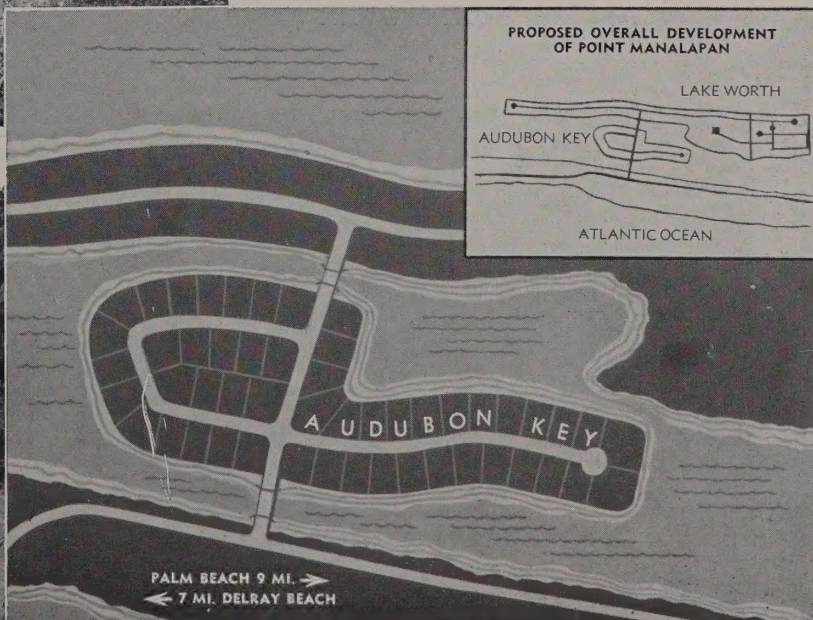

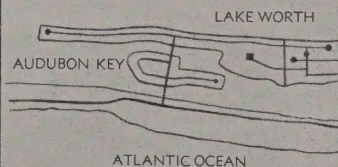

You will enjoy the short drive on A1A from Palm Beach, and you are cordially invited to visit Point Manalapan during its development stage as well as enjoy the charming Clubhouse grounds.

Yachting in Palm Beach Waters

By Charles E. Wieland

A FLEET OF YACHTS berthed in Palm Beach for the yachting season cruised the southern waters in February and early March. Arrival and departure at the local docks climaxed a record blue-water yachting season.

The Silver Mist, beautifully appointed Trumpy houseboat, departed from the Brazilian Dock in early March for the Key Largo Angler's Club, where she was joined by her owners, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stone from York, Pa.

The All Alone, 95-foot cruiser owned by Mr. and Mrs. Lynde Seldon from New York City, sailed from its seasonal berth at the Australian Dock for a re-visit to the Key Largo Angler's Club. Mr. and Mrs. Seldon, who live aboard their handsome and commodious "winter home," have a smaller cruiser, the Little Murlyn, for their sports fishing.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hanrahan from Worcester, Mass., have chartered the 75-foot houseboat, Marana, until March 15. The Marana, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Coppage of Palm Beach, is berthed seasonally at the Brazilian Dock.

Colonel and Mrs. Leon Mandel of Chicago sailed from the Biltmore Hotel Dock in mid-February for a ten-day cruise to Jacksonville, Fla., aboard the Carola, their 121-foot houseboat.

Former Senator from New Jersey, Mark Anton, joined his 54-foot Burger cruiser, the Marjane III, in Miami for an extended cruise to the West Coast, after which he returned to the Brazilian Dock, seasonal berth of his steel-hulled cruiser.

Returning recently to spend the remaining part of the season at the Australian Dock was the Susabelle B., sleek Hutchins cruiser owned by Mr. Walter L. Barker from Nashua, N. H.

Another arrival at the dock was the Rumak II, new 79-foot Trumpy cruiser owned by Mr. and Mrs. William M. McKelvy from Pittsburgh, Pa., perennial yachting visitors.

Commander and Mrs. Victor C. P. Dreiske from Evanston, Ill., who are spending the season at the Brazilian Dock aboard their 48-foot cruiser, Vicaries II, departed for an extended trip to the Ocean Reef Club at Key Largo. They were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Hailand, guests from Barrington, Ill.

Arriving at the Australian Dock for a short visit recently was the Billedick V., owned by Mr. William C. Warmington of California.

The Osceola, 110-foot trim-lined cruiser, departed from the Australian Avenue Dock with Mrs. James Norris of Lake Forest, Ill., aboard. The Osceola made several cruises in February, a highlight of which was a ten-day trip to Nassau with Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Prosser and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Walker aboard.

The Captiva, 111-foot Mathis houseboat owned by Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Martino of New York City, is one of the more active cruisers berthed at the Australian Dock this season. The Captiva made a return visit to the Key Largo Angler's Club in February.

Earlier in the season, former President Herbert H. Hoover spent a month aboard the handsome commodious craft.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Taylor from Cold Springs, L. I., N. Y., are cruising the Nassau waters aboard their new 59-foot sailer, the Barunita. They are expected to return to their seasonal berth at the Biltmore Hotel in mid-March.

The Joy Bar, 53-foot Chris Craft cruiser, owned by Mr. J. J. Cooley from New Haven, Conn., and berthed for the season at the Biltmore Hotel Dock, is one of many Palm Beach yachts that completed extended cruises to the Florida Keys.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Brahman of Port O'Connor, Texas, have returned to spend the season at the Palm Beach Yacht Club

Where the tides run deepest (8 to 35 feet) and the land lies highest (8 to 11 feet)

The waters surrounding Port Royal form a group of delightful bays and coves—unmarred by square canals of uncertain depth and artificial aspect.

The land itself is the highest of all that faces upon navigable waters in the entire area of Naples. From 8 to 11 feet above mean low tide.

Nowhere on the whole Gulf Coast are the sands more inviting, the water of better temperature. And the Port Royal Beach Club affords the only private bathing beaches in Naples.

The Port Royal Story

Port Royal was conceived by a perfectionist. The resulting creation is a highly protected residential area of over two square miles forming a peninsula on the Gulf of Mexico. It comprises most of the southern part of the attractive city of Naples, on Florida's famed Gulf Coast.

Here on all sides is the charm of the unencumbered. Each dwelling site embraces a wide, attractive waterfront...affording unusual space for the private docking of pleasure craft.

Dock Your Boat In Your Garden: The graceful waterways of Port Royal serve as beautiful approaches to the homes along their banks. The land is the highest above sea level, facing on navigable waters, in the entire vicinity.

Two Beach Clubs: Two private beaches on the Gulf of Mexico, comprising long stretches of white tropical sand, are the joint exclusive property of Port Royal residents.

Hole-in-the-Wall Golf Club: A newly completed, privately owned, 200-acre golf course. Its 18 holes were laid out by Dick Wilson, famous in his field the world over. The club is within a few minutes of Port Royal.

Palm-lined Thoroughfares: Paved streets with tropical landscaping traverse Port Royal. Naples city water ...the finest in Florida...together with all utilities, are available throughout each area for all residents.

For Your Protection: Port Royal residents are well-bred people, of discriminating taste. They have built beautiful homes of character with complete assurance that no other kind will ever be built nearby. To this end, the founders of Port Royal exercise vigilant control over all building design in the area. Conditions of ownership are as meticulous as qualifications for membership in the most exclusive country clubs.

Dock aboard their 112-foot cruiser, Cosa Grande. Their Rybovich sports fishing boat, the Cosa, is berthed at the dock.

Visiting Marathon, fishermen's paradise in the Florida Keys, for an extended stay are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Glenndinning from Philadelphia, Pa. While in Palm Beach the Glenndinnings, avid yachting enthusiasts, berth their cruiser at the Brazilian Avenue Dock.

Also sojourning at Marathon from the Brazilian Dock were Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Wilson from West Hartford, Conn., aboard the Salar IV, their 62-foot commodious Chris Craft cruiser.

Yachting interest has been concentrated recently on the new Curlew III, 100-foot Burger steel ocean cruiser, owned by Mr. D. C. Ellwood of Houston, Texas, which is spending its premiere season at the Australian Avenue Dock. Since its arrival, the majestic Curlew III has created a continued interest among yachting enthusiasts. The same enthusiasm greeted the Curlew when it arrived in Ft. Lauderdale for a short visit.

Returning periodically from extended cruises to the Australian Dock is the Yankee Clipper, familiar Burger cruiser owned by Mr. William Allison of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy O. Chalk of Washington, D. C., returned to the Biltmore Hotel Dock after spending an extended visit to Miami Beach aboard their yacht New Horizon, which they berthed at the Fontainebleau Hotel Dock.

Mr. and Mrs. Benson Ford made several cruises to the Florida Keys, stopping off at the Key Largo Angler's Club, aboard their 58-foot Burger cruiser, Onika.

The Adventure, power cruiser berthed at the Brazilian Avenue Dock, made an extensive cruise to the West Coast of Florida with its owner, A. Atwater Kent Jr., and his guests aboard.

Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Mallory arrived at the Brazilian Avenue Dock in mid-February from Miami Beach aboard their cruiser Mystic XIII, for a short visit.

The Highlander, new 100-foot Holland-built steel cruiser owned by Forbes, Inc., of New York, arrived at the Australian Dock with Mr. and Mrs. Forbes aboard. Senator Malcolm Forbes of New Jersey joined the yacht in Palm Beach for the return cruise to Ft. Lauderdale and Miami.

Colonel and Mrs. W. E. Phillips from Toronto, Canada, spent an extended visit at the Australian Avenue Dock aboard the Diana, their new 65-foot Wheeler cruiser.

Only motherlove can turn baby pelican into a thing of beauty. They look like they are made of raw, spoiled beefsteak when firstborn, then grow a white fuzz which they keep until they are ready to leave the nest. Adult birds are almost voiceless, but not the young. They squall and scream incessantly for food. Pelican rookeries can be located from quite some distance because of the nestlings' continual loud clamoring.

Songfests, Sports, Pageantry at Welsh Festival

The Red Dragon of Wales will fly high this summer!

From the steep cliffs of the Welsh coast to the wooded interior, it will stalk through the skies, emblazoned on hundreds of flags honoring the Festival of Wales, a celebration embracing the whole country.

A festival of countrywide proportions grew out of the fact that a mighty sports spectacle — the British Empire and Commonwealth Games — will be held for the first time in Wales. Cardiff, the capital, was selected as the setting (July 18-26). But other towns, wishing to honor the occasion, are planning various celebrations. Now, some 90 cities, towns and hamlets have become involved, offering plays, poetry, songfests, exhibits, and a host of other events. Suddenly, Wales has a festival on its hands.

Queen Elizabeth will be patron of the festival. It will open May 3 with celebrations in Cardiff. Trumpet fanfares will sound through the land. Castles will be floodlit. Torches will flare from mountain tops. The Welsh Guards, one of Britain's crack infantry regiments, will march through the country as a salute to the affair.

The main events will include some of the long-established annual festivals, such as the Royal National Eisteddfod, a tournament for singers and poets, presided over by judges in white robes of Druid priests. It will be held at Ebbw Vale during the first week of August. Another annual event made part of the festivities will be the International Musical Eisteddfod held at Llangollen, July 8 through 12.

Some of the fun will take place in towns with seemingly unpronounceable names. For example, Betws-y-Coed, a town in Caernarvonshire, will present a gay carnival during the month of July. At nearby Pwllheli there will be a music festival. Llandyfaelog and Cerrigydrudion, less concerned with culture at this particular time, are planning to show off their fine black cattle at agricultural shows. Cwmngwrach will hold a chrysanthemum fair and Glyncoirwg, in Glamorganshire, is offering a "week of special celebrations" in June.

The old Welsh language from which these place names are derived is still very much alive, spoken in the pulpits, on the radio, printed in newspapers and taught in schools.

Fortunately for linotype operators and proof-readers, nothing has been planned at Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwlllantysiliogogogoch, a town in Anglesey spelled with 59 letters, and which takes up 25 feet on the station platform sign.

Various cities are planning pageants to honor their famous men. Episodes in the life of Pembroke's greatest son — Henry Tudor, who became Henry VII of England, the first of the Tudors — will be played out on the greensward fronting the very palace in which he was born. Dylan Thomas, a famous Welshman of more recent vintage, will be honored by Laugharne, his hometown and the place where he is buried. His body was taken there after his tragic and untimely end in New York in 1953. On August 14 and 15, the townspeople will give an open-air presentation of "Under Milk Wood," the play which gained fame after his death. Local people have been assigned parts, among them the daughter of the landlord of the Cross House, the pub where Dylan drank his beer and ate his pickled cockles.

Few years have offered a better opportunity to see this country. Preliminary festival programs may be obtained by writing the British Travel Association, 336 Madison Avenue, New York 17, N. Y.

Incidentally, those who do accept the invitation will go down in posterity. Visitors will be asked to inscribe their names in the "Golden Book of Welcome" at Aberystwyth, Cardiff, and other centers where sections of the book will be held. It will then be preserved in the National Library of Wales as a permanent record of those who came from near and far.

Rob Roy, the light blue 56-foot yawl owned by Mr. August Boorstein of Manhasset, N. Y., sailing under the burgee of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club, was first to finish and first in Class A in the 1958 Miami-Nassau ocean race which finished February 6. Here she is reaching over a turbulent Gulf Stream with double-reefed mainsail during the warm-up Lipton Cup day race off Miami Beach February 1.

Rob Roy Romps Home First

By Frank Rohr Jr.

THE 1958 MIAMI-NASSAU OCEAN RACE began at noon on Tuesday, February 4, as a beautiful if bumpy downhill slide, under colder conditions than had greeted yachtsmen in many a year. The blue Florida skies, swept by a 24-knot north-west breeze, had an arctic clarity that morning with temperatures to match as the 19-boat racing fleet maneuvered for favorable starting positions in the cresting Gulf Stream chop, a mile off Miami's Government Cut.

Aboard Gus Boorstein's new 56-foot centerboard yawl, Rob Roy, of the Knickerbocker Yacht Club, New York, we were armored against the bracing weather under layers of sweaters and foul weather gear as we split tacks with our competitors.

The starting gun went off to the simultaneous thunder of our big Genoa jib as we came about a scant five boat-lengths from the weather end of the line, marked by the accompanying Coast Guard cutter, Walnut. Seven seconds later we shot over it, first in the fleet.

"Set the mizzen staysail," ordered Skipper Boorstein, and in moments, with every rag from big jenny to jigger full and drawing, we began to drop the white-winged fleet astern as we rose to the steep quartering Gulf Stream seas and swept down into the troughs beyond.

Sailing conditions were ideal. Our sheets were eased before a fine beam breeze; decks were reasonably dry, except for occasional wet ones that came aboard up forward when we heeled over in the puffs; and Rob Roy was romping merrily along before the pride of the Southern Ocean Racing Conference.

Navigator Dan Strohmeier of Larchmont, N. Y., allowing for the northerly set of the Stream, set a direct course for Great Isaacs Light on the edge of the Bahama Banks, 67 miles to the eastward, the first leg of this 184-mile classic.

Less than an hour after the start, the wind hauled far enough aft to permit us to hoist a spinnaker. Under the skilled orders of sail master Vic Romanga of Port Washington, N. Y., all hands set the red-ribbed kite and Rob Roy lifted like a gull under its power.

But the wind veered shortly, and by 2 p.m., when we bucked our way across the narrow 4-knot core of the towering Stream, we had handed the spinny and mizzen staysail and gone back to big Genoa.

As we scanned the horizon, we saw the fast-scattering fleet was similarly rigged.

Our hottest competitors that day were John Wilson's husky 57-foot ketch, Western Star, of Marblehead, Mass., and the Eastern Yacht Club, the only boat who gave us time, and the 54-foot ketch, Malabar XIII, owned by Sam Zorovich of Miami.

The others were all hull down astern; the latest weather report which predicted veering winds was very encouraging; and our hopes for finishing in the money began to soar.

Lunch on that brisk, brilliant day was a miracle of hot broth and succulent chicken, served up by our cook and port watch captain, John Rodstrom of Ft. Lauderdale, while Rob Roy flew across the Gulf Stream at 7 and 8 knots, dipping her spars at the wave tops. As the afternoon wore on, and we began to gain the other side of the Stream, seas eased appreciably.

At nightfall, we divided our nine-man crew into two sections, and the watch below were pounding their respective ears when the first marker, Great Isaacs Light, was raised exactly where navigator Strohmeier had arranged, just under the leeward bows.

We dined on roast beef and new potatoes at the change of the four-hour watch while Rob Roy, still on her original port tack, dropped Great Isaacs Light astern and sailed into the chilly dusk of Northwest Providence Channel.

As the light failed that evening, we saw Malabar XIII and three others still dogging us fairly closely.

The beam breeze had now gone far enough ahead for us to hand the mizzen staysail, but under Genoa, main, and mizzen, we continued to make good 6 knots, and up to 8 in the puffs as we raced east-southeast down channel towards our second mark, Great Stirrup Cay, some 63 miles off.

"My God, there's a sight to behold up forward," exclaimed Vic when he came on deck after dinner. Surprised, we all looked over the bows and around the bellying foot of the Genoa jib to where the golden wafer of a moon just past the full seemed to be rising from the shadowy horizon scarcely 100 yards away. Instinctively we fell silent for a moment, and held our positions, watching this nightly mystery, now icily molten, lifting in the night wind.

But power always before poetry is the rule of ocean racing. And we jumped to stations when the helmsman said shortly, "Wind's backing to the northwest." In the few moments the glowing moon took to float free of its rippling prison, we handed the Genoa and set the spinnaker and mizzen staysail again.

Ocean races are won — and lost — by suiting sail changes to wind shifts as soon as they occur — or failing to.

At midnight, however, the spinny was down again, and the Genoa back up. And in the early morning, half-way to Great Stirrup Cay, as Skipper Boorstein suggested, we handed the jenny too and set a nylon trap for our lessening and veering breeze with a balloon jib, our lightest headsail.

Seven miles astern, in the silver stealing path of the moon, we could still see the lights of Malabar's tall rig. But the others, led by Fred Guggenheimer's nimble new 43-foot yawl, Mogu, of the St. Petersburg Yacht Club, which had been holding up 5 miles astern of Malabar, had all disappeared.

The weather forecast we'd heard Tuesday afternoon for shifting airs with southeasterlies beginning late Wednesday now came true. Our bold northwest winds diminished, drooped, and died, leaving us to flop about in full view of Great Stirrup Cay, which we picked up with the first light Wednesday morning.

Until early evening that day we fought the successive battles of the Great Stirrup headlands as we tacked interminably, trying to ease Rob Roy into the Northeast Providence Channel where we could set a course for Nassau Harbor, 54 miles away.

Bill Turtle, Rob Roy's only Bahamian crew member, and a veteran of four previous Miami-Nassau races, guided us along Great Stirrup's shores and past its tidal cuts.

"That Turtle's got a pair of hands on him like a jockey," muttered Skipper Boorstein as we tacked skillfully, if maddeningly slowly around the island.

By 6 p.m., we were beating our way down the eastern coasts of Great Stirrup, and as we raised the distant coral clumps of the Berry Islands, the wind settled in the southeast for fair and came in at 15 knots, right on the nose. It was going to be a dead beat to Nassau, but as strategists Rodstrom and Strohmeier foretold, these tough conditions would favor us and give Rob Roy a fighting chance to save her time on the smaller fellows, like Carleton Mitchell's 38-foot yawl, Finisterre, of the Nassau Yacht Club, to whom we gave as much as 4 and one-half hours. If the race had developed into a reach home after rounding Great Stirrup Cay, on the other hand, the Class B and C boats might have been able to beat us royally on corrected time.

That night, after a rich dinner of Rodstrom pot roast, we began our swift exacting beat to Nassau Harbor. After a giveaway start on an ocean race like the one we'd had, a final long beat to windward can make even the most dedicated racing men grit their marine teeth. And this one was no exception, except for its extreme beauty.

The seas sliding smooth from the southeast were breathing plains of rippled silver, and over them in a night of cloudless stars, the moon rose to its zenith and laid its track from Rob Roy's threshing forefoot to a dark infinity of waters. Hour upon hour we tacked under its light into the freshening southeasterly breeze, past Little Harbor Light, the Berry Islands, and beyond.

We had the big jenny on her again, and by 3 a.m., Thursday, February 6, it was breezing on appreciably, up to 20 knots in the puffs. The loom of Nassau was ahead now, and the short tacks necessitated by the shifty winds began to punish us a bit.

With one of the four-man deck watch on the wheel, two men winching and tailing the thick Dacron Genoa sheets around the husky "coffee grinder" on Rob Roy's fantail, and one man forward, handing the great shuddering sail around the mainmast as we came about time after time, the crew began wishing for respite and favoring winds as grimly as for victory.

We had unshipped Rob Roy's movable forestay to give the headsail a clear foredeck, but it was still devilishly hard to manage coming about. We sprang less and less joyously to the commands of "Hard-a-lee." But we kept springing, nipped knuckles and wet britches notwithstanding. The others were nowhere in sight, Nassau's lights were beckoning, and the scent of "first" was in our nostrils.

Dawn Thursday was a wash of palest orange over the green silhouette of New Providence Island. The breeze slackened as we gained the lee of the land, and the entire crew turned out, gulping steaming mugs of coffee between maneuvers as we put Rob Roy through her final paces.

The sails of three other boats hove into sight astern as we closed with the harbor entrance and they put a real edge on our efforts. We made one long tack, one short one, another long one, and one short, then suddenly, "We'll do it this time," said Bill Turtle, and the helmsman put her hard over for the last time.

Leaving the coral heads of Hog Island and the white tower of Nassau's lighthouse well to port, we sailed within a hand's breadth of the red entrance buoy to starboard, and crossed the finish line first in the fleet at 8:14.14 that fine morning.

Our closest follower in the race, Sam Zorovich's Malabar XIII of the Coral Reef Yacht Club, Miami, was second boat to finish, and David J. Morrison's 45-foot sloop, Salty, from Savannah, Ga., and the Beaufort Yacht Club came in third on elapsed time.

We had finished in 44 hours, 8 minutes, and 50 seconds, and our corrected time of 43:08.29 gave Rob Roy her hoped-for first in Class A.

Carleton Mitchell's sleek little Finisterre was the overall Miami-Nassau winner on corrected time and first in Class C.

Solution, the 46-foot sloop owned by Thor Ramsing of Greenwich, Conn., and the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, took Class B honors.

Rob Roy's pace-setting double victory was a glittering prize for an 18-month-old boat making her first appearance in the SORC. An unusually stiff centerboarder designed by Arthur C. Robb and built by Herbert Woods Ltd. of England in 1956 expressly for August Boorstein, she represents a lifetime of racing and cruising requirements combined in one powerful weather-going hull.

Gus Boorstein of Manhasset, N. Y., a big bluff man who knows his boat as well as he loves it, attributed his victory impartially to good fortune, a willing crew, and a splendid sailboat.

It was Rob Roy's grizzled Swedish captain, Harry Jensen, who unwittingly spoke for all of us Thursday morning, entering Nassau Harbor, when, after we requested a Bahamian flag to fly, he asked, "Vot — a Bohemian flag?"

We roared our approval. The harbor inside was brilliant as a blue jewel; the pastel hotels on the beach were just awakening; the bum boats and photographers celebrating the arrival of the first boat were steaming alongside Rob Roy; a rocket went off somewhere; and suddenly we felt we had earned the carnival Harry's flag foretold.

TRAINA-NORELL

The Winter Colony of Palm Beach

By Wilma Spencer

PALM BEACH has been the setting for much social activity the past few weeks. Several functions were also given to help the migrant workers. The Garden Club of Palm Beach sponsored a "House and Garden Tour" to raise funds for maintenance and improvement of the Society of the Four Arts gardens. The Altar Guild of the Church of Bethesda-by-the-Sea also sponsored a successful tea at the oceanfront home of Mr. and Mrs. Orland S. Greene.

There have been many interesting guests here, too.

Mrs. William Randolph Hearst Sr., who has taken the Pulitzer home on Wells Road for two months, has had several guests, among them Lord Carnarvon and Miss Elsa Maxwell.

Miss Maxwell came to Palm Beach to take part in the Heart Ball in the Poinciana Room at The Palm Beach Towers.

Mrs. Hearst's sister, Mrs. Walter W. Irwin, of New York City, has also been here for a visit with Mrs. Hearst.

Mr. and Mrs. James Russell Lowell, of New York City, have been visiting Mrs. Lowell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Brokaw, on Golf View Road.

Mrs. William Curley, of Bridgeport, Conn., has been a houseguest of Mrs. George T. McCarthy Jr., at her home on Royal Palm Way.

Mrs. Quentin Reynolds came down from New York for a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Muss, at their oceanfront home.

Mrs. Alfred A. Spadone of Montclair, N. J., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seymour Brown at their Barton Avenue residence. Earlier in the season, Mrs. Spadone spent a fortnight at The Breakers.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Richardson, of Northport, L. I., joined their son and his wife, the Junior Henry Richardsons, for a visit at their home on Eden Road.

Miss Alvira Flynn and Mrs. Frank Sowa, of Chicago, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Cunningham at "Casa Del Lago."

Supreme Court Justice and Mrs. Tom Clark, of Washington, D. C., came down to see their old-time friends, the J. Howard McGraths, at their oceanfront home.

The John R. McLeans have been hosts at their oceanfront home to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knowles, of Aiken, S. C., Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark, of New York City, and Mr. Hugh O'Brian. During their visit Mr. and Mrs. McLean gave a dinner-dance at their home in their honor.

Mrs. Reginald F. Towner, of Montclair, N. J., sister of Mrs. Edward F. Hutton, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Hutton at "Four Winds."

Mr. and Mrs. A. Schuyler Clark, of New York City, were in Palm Beach for a winter holiday and while here visited Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Gubelmann at their Via Del Lago residence for a few days and later were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Morrison at their home on El Vedado Way.

Mrs. Edwin O. Bodkin of Grosse Pointe, Mich., was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Benson Ford at their home on El Vedado Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gawthrop, of Lake Forest, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Candy, of Wilmington, Del., were guests of Mrs. Gawthrop's mother, Mrs. James E. Baum, of Ocean Way.

Miss Eleanor Corbett and her brother, Joseph Burton Corbett, of New York and Boston, Mass., have been visiting Mrs. Orator Frank Woodward at "Southwood," her villa on El Bravo Way.

Dr. and Mrs. Dietrich Schluter, of Baden-Baden, Germany, were here for a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh N. Kirkland at their South County Road residence. Mr. Kirkland's brother, Mr. A. Percy Kirkland, of New York City, and Mrs. Kirkland's daughter, Mrs. George K. Conant Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., who came to Palm Beach to take part in the National Mixed foursomes invitational golf championships at the Tequesta Country Club at Jupiter.

Mrs. John W. Anderson 2d, of Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., visited her uncle and aunt, former Ambassador and Mrs. Arthur Gardner, at their oceanfront residence.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Kolb, of Villanova, Pa., were here for a short visit with the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. Wallace Kolb, at their home on Debra Lane.

The Peter Fetterolfs, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., came down for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Morton H. Fetterolf, at their Sea View Avenue residence prior to joining friends in Eleuthera in the Bahamas.

Mrs. John Farrington, of St. Paul, Minn., spent a few days with Mrs. Horace H. Irvine, of Kings Road, and during her stay here Mrs. Irvine gave a luncheon at her home in her honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Sadlier Dinger, of Roslyn, L. I., came down for a visit with Miss Ellamay Horan at her Via Vizcaya residence.

Mrs. Gordon Davidson, of Milwaukee, Wis., the former Miss Barbara Scofield, of tennis fame, has been the guest of Mrs. Nancy Montgomery at her home on Sea View Avenue.

Colonel and Mrs. J. Clinton Smoot were joined for a visit at their oceanfront home in Manalapan by Mrs. Harold Hancock and Mrs. Jean Thomas, of "Cloverleaf Farm" in New Jersey.

A recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Spelman Prentice, of North Lake Trail, was Mrs. Hillary Murdoch, of London, who was here for a fortnight.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr., of Chicago, came south to spend a few weeks with Mrs. Thompson Thomas at her home on Australian Avenue.

The Frederick E. Willits, of Locust Valley, L. I., came down for a stay with Mrs. Willit's mother, Mrs. Edward C. W. Oelsner.

Mrs. Harry I. Nicholas, of New York City and Long Island, and Miss Mary Hoit Wilborg, of Paris, France, were guests of Mr. Harvey S. Ladew at his home in Gulf Stream.

Mr. and Mrs. David Borie, their daughter, Miss Mary W. Borie, and their sons, David Borie Jr. and John, of Sewickley, Pa., have been the guests of Mrs. Borie's mother, Mrs. Rodgers Stewart, at her home on Middle Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Provan, of Toronto, Canada, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Glen S. Case at their North Lake Way residence.

The Edward B. Collums, of Jamesville, N. Y., came south for a visit with Mrs. Collum's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Kent Jr., at their home on Caribbean Road.

The William P. O'Neills, of Rosemont, Pa., recently visited the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph I. O'Neill Jr., at their home on Via Del Lago.

Mr. and Mrs. Manuell Sintiero, of Cuba, and Mr. William Reynolds of Louisville, Ky., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Michael G. Phipps at their South County Road residence.

Following her return to the resort after a Caribbean cruise, Mrs. Thompson Thomas was joined for a visit by her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson, of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Hagood Bruce, of Greenville, S. C., have been enjoying a winter holiday with Mrs. Bruce's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Y. Arnold, at "Rabbit Hill." The Arnolds gave a dinner party at the Everglades Club in honor of their guests, and Mrs. Arnold gave a Tombola Luncheon in the Orange Gardens of the Everglades Club in compliment to Mrs. Bruce.

The Niles Babbitts have had quite a family gathering at their home on Clarke Avenue. Their niece and nephew, the Ian Montgomerys, of Warrenton, Va., Mrs. Babbitt's sister, Mrs. Harry LeNoir, of Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., and Mr. Babbitt's sister, Mrs. John S. Ogilvie, of Bronxville, N. Y., came down about the middle of February for a visit.

Mrs. Ashton dePeyster, of New York City, has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. James A. dePeyster at their home on Pendleton Lane.

Mrs. Barron Collier Sr. has been joined at her Barton Avenue residence by several friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell B.

Carroll and Mrs. Giles Whiting, of New York City, and Mrs. F. M. Crump, of Memphis, Tenn.

The Frederick M. Stewarts, of Island Drive, have been entertaining the latter's brother, Mr. Thomas Young, of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. George Rutherford, of New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Rust, of Fairville, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stokes, of Newtown Square, Pa., have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Allison F. Fleitas at their North Lake Way residence.

Mr. and Mrs. John Vanneck, of New Rochelle, N. Y., came South for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Emile Schmidt at their home on Clarendon Avenue.

Mr. Paul Crosthwaite and Mr. John Sharpe have been hosts to Mr. Frank Chase Carter, of New York City, at their oceanfront home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Stockton 3d have had as their guest for a fortnight, Miss Mirian La Vin, who came down from Allentown, Pa.

Among the Palm Beachers who came down late this season were Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Fish, of Locust Valley, L. I., who are at "Atlantic Cottage," on Breakers Row; Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Fowler, who have opened "La Linda," their home on South Lake Trail. The Fowlers divided the Fall and early Winter between Richmond, Va., and Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Alanson Chase Deuel, of Lewiston, N. Y., is at "Casa Elena," her oceanfront residence. Mrs. Deuel was accompanied South for a visit by Duchess del Monte, of Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. George G. Ulmer, her daughter, Mrs. Eugenie Lamothe, and son, Mr. George G. Ulmer Jr., of Minneapolis, Minn., who have been coming to Palm Beach for a number of years, arrived in mid-February for the remainder of the season. Mrs. Ulmer and her daughter are at the Riviera Cooperative Apartments, and Mr. Ulmer Jr. is at the Park Lane.

Among those arriving at the Everglades Club in February were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stott, of Old Westbury, L. I.; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford F. Hood, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and New York City; Mrs. Arthur E. Genius, of New York and Southampton, L. I., who was accompanied from New York by her niece, Mrs. Bixby Andrews. Mrs. Andrews was at the Club earlier in the season and then left for a stay in California and in New York.

Also at the Everglades Club for the remainder of the season are Mrs. Harry C. Mills, of New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla.; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Phillips, of New Bedford, Mass.; and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hulitar, of Glen Cove, L. I.

An interesting event was the christening of small Paula Ilyinsky and her baby sister, Ann, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Paul R. Ilyinsky, of Queens Lane, which took place in the apartment of the children's grandmother, Mrs. Audrey Emery on Worth Avenue. The minister of the Russian Orthodox Church in Miami officiated at the service. Paula's godmother was Mrs. Elbridge Gale, of Savannah, Ga., and Mr. Philip Hulitar, of Glen Cove, L. I., was godfather, but as Mr. Hulitar was unable to come to Palm Beach in time for the ceremony, Mr. Elbridge Gale served as proxy. Ann's godfather was Prince Dmitri Djordjadze, and her godmother was Mrs. Ilyinsky's sister, Mrs. Peter Ordway. Ann's christening robe was of white organdy finished with French hand embroidery and Valenciennes lace trim, and Paula wore a white point d'esprit frock with traditional ribbons and new turtle-neck collar.

Miss Diane Eve Dewey, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John H. Dewey, of Dunbar Road, became the bride of Boyd Harlan Leyburn Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Harlan Leyburn, of Milbrook, Ala., in the Episcopal Church of Bethesda-by-the-Sea. For her wedding, the bride wore an exquisite empire style wedding gown of Douppioni silk, a Dutch cap of Chantilly lace with fingertip length veil edged with re-embroidered imported lace, and carried a cascade bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids and white freesia.

There have been many parties!

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis S. Baker, of Via Vizcaya, entertained with a dinner at the Everglades Club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Byron Gilchrist.

Mrs. Sylvan R. Famel gave a luncheon at "Sandy Loam Farm" in honor of General and Mrs. William Hale Wilbur. She also entertained at the Everglades Club for her houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Alston Mott, of London, England.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Lewis gave a dinner party at their home on Royal Palm Way in honor of His Eminence Cardinal Stritch, of Chicago, who is wintering in Hobe Sound.

Following Cesare Valletti's concert at the Society of the Four Arts, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Gubelmann entertained with a small supper party in his honor at their home on Via Del Lago.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Shirley were hosts at a luncheon at their home on Island Drive for Miss Elsa Maxwell, Mr. and Mrs. Tony De Marco, Miss Constance Moore, Mr. James Reneaux, Mr. Hugh O'Brian, and Mr. Ed Sullivan. Mr. Sullivan was a houseguest of the Shirleys during his stay in the resort.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hewins Burns, of New York and Stamford, Conn., who have been guests of Mrs. Frank Kolb at her Golf View residence, entertained with a luncheon for twelve at the Bath and Tennis Club for Mr. Earle Webb, of New York City, in celebration of his seventy-fifth birthday anniversary. Mrs. Kolb also gave a large cocktail party at her home for Mr. and Mrs. Burns.

An interesting stag luncheon for eighty guests was given by Mr. Raymond J. Wean in the main dining room of the Everglades Club in honor of Mr. Clifford F. Hood, President of the United States Steel Corporation, and for Mr. Charles M. White, Chairman of the board of Republic Steel Corporation.

Mrs. Frances Gormley gave a cocktail party in her apartment at the Riviera Cooperative Apartments in honor of her sister, Miss Fay O'Neill, of New York City, fashion co-ordinator of Red Book Magazine, who came down for a Winter holiday.

Mr. Livingston Short and his sister, Mrs. Charles H. Jones, of Major Alley, gave a dinner-dance at the Everglades Club.

The John W. Salisburys were hosts at a large cocktail party at their home on Sea Breeze Avenue. Cliff Hall entertained with songs and at the piano.

Mrs. Frederick Owsley, of Greenwood, Va., a seasonal guest at the Everglades Club, entertained a large company of friends at a dance at the Everglades Club.

Mrs. Stewart McDonald gave a dinner party on Valentine's Day at the Everglades Club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. James Russell Lowell, who have been visiting in the resort.

William W. Conrad also gave a dinner party the same evening at the Club for his houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Close, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Amelia, Mrs. J. S. Park Jr., and Mrs. J. S. Salom.

Mrs. Bror Dahlberg entertained with a large cocktail party in the Celebrity Room of the Royal Poinciana Playhouse, and during the party a cake, a replica of the Celebrity Room, was served. The Room was christened by Mr. Frank Hale, President of the Playhouse.

Mrs. Valerie Bland gave a buffet-dinner at her oceanfront home for thirty guests in compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Guy Verne Ferguson and their houseguest, Mrs. Frank T. Byrne.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kingsley Swan, of Sea Spray Avenue, chose a unique way to celebrate their daughter Suzette's eighth birthday anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Swan invited a group of Suzette's friends for a hayride which began from the International Polo Club, after which the children had a picnic supper at the Polo Restaurant. For the occasion the supper table was decorated in the Valentine motif.

Mrs. Townsend Phillips gave a luncheon at her home on Sea Breeze Avenue in honor of Mrs. H. H. Thorndike and her twin sister, Miss Bell Gurnee.

Mrs. Philamon Dickinson and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Harrison, of Philadelphia, who are her guests for the season, entertained jointly with a small cocktail party at "Ocean View Cottage."

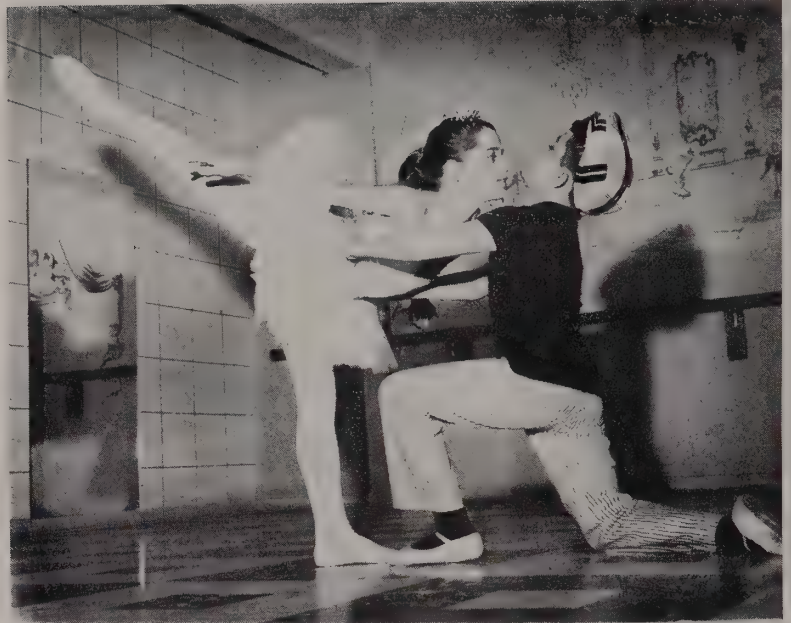

Mrs. Dodge Sloane gave a dinner-dance for about forty guests at "Concha Marina." Joe Bonni's orchestra played for dancing.

Mrs. William Lightfoot Schultz entertained with a luncheon on the Golf Terrace of the Everglades Club in honor of Mrs. Herbert Smith, of New York City, a houseguest of Mrs. Jacob F. Waelder, and also at the Tombola Luncheon at the Everglades Club for Miss Sue Lovering, of Wilmington, N. C., who has been visiting Mrs. McAlpin Bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Sanford gave a dinner followed by dancing at "Los Incas," in honor of their houseguests, Captain and Mrs. Boyd Rocheford, of London and Newmarket, England.

MIAMI

By Helen Wells

Frank Boran—The Surf Club

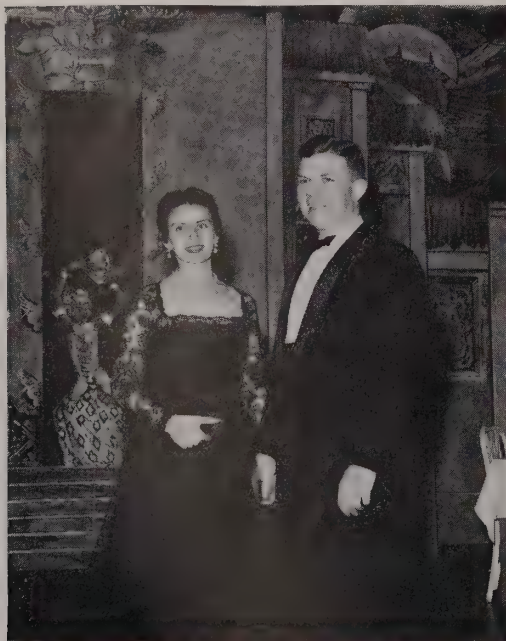

GRAND OPERA IN THE LITERAL SENSE... for it was grand... was a sparkling social event in Miami. Aida was a magnificent performance, with wonderful voices, and staging including camels, elephants and white horses!

The first night audience lived up to the opera in flowing evening gowns, handsome furs and jewelry, white ties and tails. "Mr. Opera Guild" Arturo di Filippi and his dainty Lee were beaming, all of the performances of Aida were sellouts with SRO.

Ida and Walter Olson. (Olson Rugs) of Chicago, benefactors of the Opera Guild, went back stage to chat with Emerson Buckley, bearded conductor of New York, before curtain time. Ida's long blue taffeta was studded with brilliants and topped with a white mink stole and orchid corsage.

A foursome arriving together was composed of Virginia and Jim Gerity Jr., of Adrian, Mich., who winter at their Surf Club apartment, and the Harvey Fruchaufts of Detroit and the Surf Club.

Miami song composer Mana Zucca ("I Love Life") in black velvet trimmed with white fox was escorted by her husband, Irwin Cassel; Mr. and Mrs. George Ritter, who saw and heard Aida last in Rome, were accompanied by their houseguests, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Christen, neighbors of the Ritters in their northern home, Toledo. The Ritters have one of the outstanding homes on La Gorce Island.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Moon Jr., of Atlanta, attend the Bali Gala at The Surf Club. They are visiting his parents, the Charles Moons, at their home on Brickell Avenue, Miami.

Fred Snite, who underwrites the annual St. Francis Hospital benefit ball at the Surf Club each year, had his favorite "date" with him. She is his so-pretty granddaughter, Pinky Snite, daughter of Tessie and the late Fred Snite Jr.

After the opera, the stars and members of the Opera Guild adjourned to the Top O' the Columbus Hotel for the Star Supper. Helen (Mrs. Lloyd) Dilworth and Ruth (Mrs. Radford) Crane were co-chairmen for this outstanding event with Ivah (Mrs. Neil) Miller, Sally (Mrs. Bill) Kappel, Hazel (Mrs. Al) Penn as their committee.

Largest and most successful ball ever given by Committee of 100 was its annual Southern Ball at Indian Creek Club. Elsa and Bill Stubblefield, chairmen, entertained a large group for cocktails at the club before dinner time, as did Virginia and Jim Gerity, who were on the committee.

Honorary chairmen were "Boss" Charles Kettering, president of the Committee, Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver La Gorce. Mary and Ed Christiansen were on the committee with the Geritys.

The ball had a black and white theme, with most of the ladies in black or white and tall black tapers lighting the tables where white flowers were decorations.

Honor guests at the Geritys table were Dean Emeritus of Notre Dame, James E. McCarthy and his wife. Margaret Choate, there with her Federal Judge husband, Emmett Choate, was wearing her elegant chinchilla wrap for the first time, as was Mildred (Mrs. Emil) Cotton of South Miami.

Dr. La Gorce was discovered wearing two wrist watches, one on either wrist. When asked "Why?" he admitted that one was fast, the other slow, so that when he was bored at a party he looked at the fast one and told his Ethel it was time to leave, and vice versa! Not a bad scheme, eh?

Later in the evening Leonard Roy, executive v.p. of the Committee, introduced the chairmen and their committee and singer Nancy Donovan. Leonard's June set off her black hair and eyes with a smart black ball gown.

Elsa Stubblefield and Betty (Mrs. Al) Kremp were "twins" in white chiffon beaded in silver with a graceful flying panel in back. This duplication fazed neither one of them, they both decided that they have good taste!

Other hosts at this ball included the Marcellus Staleys, Dr. and Mrs. O. O. Bashline, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Cartee, the David McCahills.

They were Archbishop Nikon of the Florida White Russian churches, and Archfather Basil Moussin-Pushkin, who were dressed in their long black cassocks with heavy gold chains and medallions about their necks, their white beards and long white hair highlighted by their black robes.

The cocktail party preceded a benefit dinner for the International Rescue League at the Fontainebleau Hotel. Angier Biddle Duke, President of the League, and his charming wife, a former Italian Marquesa, motored down from Pompano Beach for the cocktail party and dinner.

Also at the party was Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, who was principal speaker at the banquet. The youthful looking Senator flew down from Washington for the event and flew back next day.

"Val" von Poushental founded a haven for White Russians in Maine, which is most successful and is planning to establish one in this area. He and Adele have been remodeling the spacious waterfront house they bought on North Bay Road and the paint was hardly dry when they entertained.

When Dr. Alexis de Yakimac, a former Russian Count, introduced Father Moussin-Pushkin, also a former Russian nobleman, to his friend, Capt. John London, U.S.N. (ret.), there was great excitement.

In the course of conversation Father Moussin-Pushkin discovered that it was Capt. London, then in command of a destroyer in the Black Sea, who rescued him and his ship mates when their ship, the Orion, foundered in 1919.

The Father embraced Capt. London and said that after 38 years at last he could thank properly the man who had saved his life when he was fleeing from the Bolsheviks.

It was a star-studded night when Dick Hoyt entertained at cocktails in his new little jewel box of a gift shop in Surfside and the William Stevens with the Jefferson Fords gave a dinner dance at the Surf Club on the same evening.

Earl Blackwell of Celebrity Service in New York chartered a bus and brought down Zsa Zsa Gabor, Millie Considine, wife of well-known columnist Bob Considine, Greg (Mrs. Horace) Dodge, Mary (Mrs. Laddie) Sanford from Palm Beach, among others.

The inimitable Zsa Zsa in a gold brocade cocktail dress cut from here to yonder in front, the matching jacket lined with mink, stopped all traffic when she entered, especially the men! One young wife at the party vowed, "I'm holding onto Willie's coattails while Zsa Zsa is around!" And she did.

Older "girls" turned their attention to Liberace, who stopped by, flashing his famous smile. He was wearing a raw silk suit of dark gold flecked with black and every wave on his well known head was in place.

Baroness Peggy de Gripenberg was squired by the Duke of Pini de San Miniato; Portuguese Ambassador to the United Nations, Vasco Garin and his lady were admiring the shop's exquisite decor.

At the Ford-Stevens party to which many of Mr. Hoyt's guests went, Polly Stevens was elegant in a pale blue beaded Dior, while Yvonne Ford looked like a delectable strawberry sundae in her pink Dior.

Gen. Omar Bradley and his Mary were distinguished guests and it was old home week for the General. His and Mrs. Bradley's childhood friend, who introduced them many a year ago, Spratt Mangus, was reminiscing with them while his Nina listened in. Another long-time friend, Col. William Reinhardt, was recalling the days when he and the Bradleys were stationed at Camp Benning.

Escorting Mildred Pepper (Claude was in Washington) was Ambassador-at-Large to the UN from the Philippines, J. M. Elizarde. After Claude returned the Peppers entertained at cocktails for Ambassador Elizarde and Senator J. William Fulbright and Mrs. Fulbright of Missouri and Washington.

Down from Palm Beach were brilliant young attorney and former head of the FHA in Washington, Loy Anderson, and his good looking brunette wife, Therese. She was wearing an outstanding red taffeta dress, the bodice trimmed in filmy pink.

Mrs. Elizabeth N. Graham (Elizabeth Arden) and her niece, Mrs. Patricia Young, were among the distinguished guests at one of the dinner parties at Bali Night at The Surf Club. Alfred Barton, executive vice president of the Club, turned the spacious rooms into Balinese visions at this first gala of the season.

Helen and Loren Berry and Helen's sister, Gertrude Embry, gave a cocktail dance at the Surf Club for 370 honoring Helen's son, Leland Henry, and his lovely fiancée, Chris Hunter.

The good looking young couple will be married in June and they flew down from Dayton, the Berrys' home town, for the party. Helen was in rosy beige lace, Chris in pink satin and Gertrude in blue and white print.

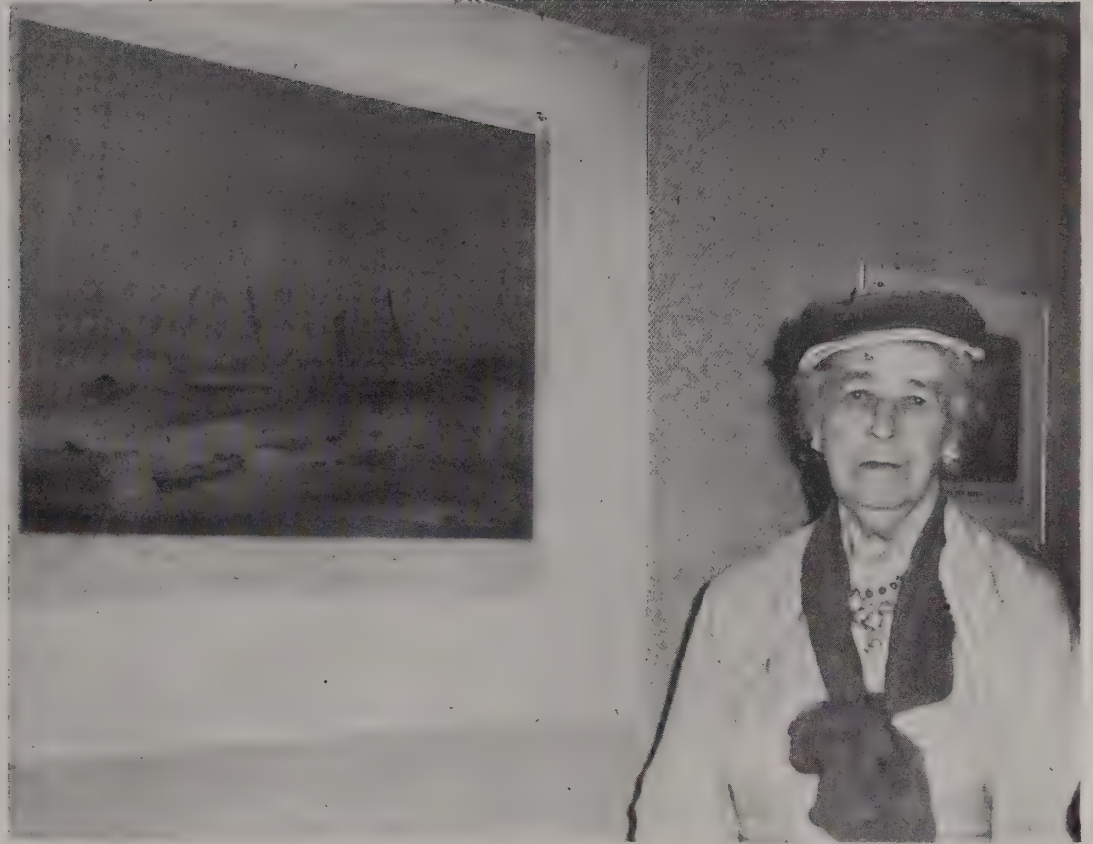

Terry Campbell, squiring "Miss Jewel Ball of 1958" (Marianne Reynolds) remarked, "I'm not out with a girl, my date is a ticket seller!" He was referring to Marianne's zeal in rounding up guests for the Heart Fund ball at the Eden Roc, of which she is chairman.

Judge and Mrs. Leonard O'Connor, just down from their home in Cortland, N. Y., were saying "hello" to their many friends; Louise and Ben Kirkendall were telling of plans for a stone crab feast at their home on Pinetree Drive; Alfred Barton, executive v.p. of the Surf Club, and "Boss Kett," president, were in the company.

Currier & Ives at the Society of The Four Arts

By Emilie Keyes

Bert and Richard Morgan Studio

Mrs. S. Fahs Smith, of Palm Beach and York, Pa., poses beside a Currier and Ives print of special personal interest for her, as it pictures the "Wreck of the U.S.M. Mailship Arctic 1954" in which her father, the late Charles Tunis Mitchell of Charleston, S. C., nearly lost his life.

FEW EXHIBITIONS AT THE SOCIETY OF THE FOUR ARTS have evoked more nostalgic memories and created more interested chit-chat than the showing of "Currier and Ives Prints" on view at the galleries throughout the month of February.

While a number of older spectators were reminiscing about Currier and Ives prints in their homes in their early days, and many of the younger ones were exclaiming over delightful, sentimental reminders of America in another era, there was one for whom the show had great personal interest.

For Mrs. S. Fahs Smith of Palm Beach and York, Pa., Exhibit 20 was like a chapter out of her family history. This was a print labeled "Wreck of the U.S.M. Steamship Arctic, 1854," depicting a shipwreck, and bearing the inscription "Off Cape Race, September 27, 1854. In collision with the French iron propeller Vesta in which 300 persons perished. From a sketch made by a passenger."

The story was an old one to Mrs. Smith, one she had heard again and again in her childhood from her father, Charles Tunis

Mitchell of Charleston, S. C. Mr. Mitchell, a passenger aboard the ill-fated vessel, was thrown into the water, and picked up by one of the lifeboats.

According to Mrs. Smith, her father would tell her how after 48 hours without food or drink, the lifeboat survivors made it to land by following the flight of a blackbird. Once on land near Cape Race, they were befriended by people on shore, and after a month's recovery, Mr. Mitchell was able to make his way home. His daughter wasn't born till nearly 20 years later.

Many years after, on a visit to London, she was presented with a photostatic copy of the newspaper account of the shipwreck in the London Times.

Mrs. Smith's friends at the opening preview tea were intrigued with the story, which brought home the way in which many of the famed lithographs chronicled the history as well as the manners and mores of the times.

The collection of 72 prints were lent by the Museum of the City of New York, all but two of the number being from the Harry T. Peters Collection at the museum.

Arrangements for the show here were made largely through Russell Plimpton, Four Arts director, and John Walden Myer, director of the Museum of the City of New York.

On February 11, Mr. Myer spoke at the Four Arts on the prints, coming from New York for the occasion.

The varied facets of life in the 19th Century were reflected in the various categories covered by the exhibition. It was divided into groups such as: City Views, the Country, Life on the Mississippi, the West, Ships and Yachting, Hunting and Fishing, the Turf and a general classification of "Comics and Sentimental Subjects."

Though the handsome sailing vessels, the action-packed turf and hunting prints and the historic scenes attracted many admirers, other spectators appeared to enjoy most searching out the amusing commentaries on the philosophy and attitudes towards life in the period.

There were sentimental pictures of domestic life such as "The Brave Wife," "The Lover's Walk," "The Happy Home"; graphic moral lessons in the pair "Fruits of Temperance" and "Fruits of Intemperance"; strictly humorous pictures that might have come from the magazines of the period, "We Met by Chance," "Darling I Am Growing Old," "No One to Love Me."

Among the artists from whose paintings the prints were made were such early American painters as Louis Maurer, Arthur Fitzwilliam Tait, Charles Parsons, James Butterworth, Thomas Worth, noted especially for his turf and comic pictures.

The prints filled the Central and North Galleries, while the South Gallery added a pleasing additional reminder of an early Americana.

This gallery was filled with 15 oil paintings by George H. Durrie (1820-1863), all lent from the personal collection of P. H. B. Frelinghuysen of Palm Beach and Morristown, N. J.

Though only two of the 15 New England landscapes were the subjects of Currier and Ives prints, all were in keeping with the general trend of art in the mid-19th Century. Most spectators were charmed with the wintry landscapes, the frosty bare trees, and the general folksy, American look to these paintings.

It was while the exhibition was still in progress at the Four Arts, that Mr. and Mrs. P. H. B. Frelinghuysen's Congressman son, Rep. Peter Frelinghuysen Jr., Republican, 5th District of New Jersey, came to speak at the Society. He combined the invitation to speak with the opportunity of visiting his parents briefly, and spoke without accepting an honorarium.

Introduced by Mr. Marion Sims Wyeth, Four Arts president, he discussed informally "The Problems of a Congressman," ending by answering a number of interested questions from the floor.

Representative Frelinghuysen was accompanied by his wife, and the two were honored at an informal tea at the home of his parents on El Bravo Way.

The "Currier and Ives" exhibition, third of the season at the Four Arts, continued open to the public through March 2.

THE ATMOSPHERE OF FASHION," keying this Spring's clothes by leading designers with today's exciting satellite and outer space headlines, was presented in the annual March of Dimes Fashion Show in the Waldorf-Astoria.

Combining the talents of top fashion designers with the arts and personalities of Broadway, Hollywood, and television, the gala showing for the benefit of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis gave the audience its traditional first glimpse of Spring and advance Summer clothes in scenes suggested by current plays.

A sheer and shimmering synthetic curtain and an ethereal-looking setting of clear plastic supported by transparent columns to represent "the edge of space," used for the first time for stagecraft, were especially designed for the showing by Lester Gaba, who also staged the showing.

Script was written by Dorothy Kilgallen, Anita Loos, and Michael Martin Brown.

The show was produced by Eleanor Lambert.

Basil O'Connor, President of the National Foundation, greeted the audience and introduced Helen Hayes, National Chairman of Women's Activities of the Foundation. Following her opening appeal, Miss Hayes presented Marcel Marceau, the French pantomimist, who appeared with the 1958 March of Dimes poster family, Mrs. Joseph L. Solomon and her six-year-old twins, Lindy and Sandy, from Warner Robins, Georgia. Mrs. Solomon wore a bloused Rembrandt dress of sheer beige wool, and her daughters, identical, Alyssa dresses of white ribbon-striped cotton by Helen Lee.

Marilyn Monroe, escorting the poster twins in the finale, wore a long champagne-toned silk satin dinner costume of a form-following dress and fitted jacket, designed by John Moore for Talmack.

The showing featured fashions by members of the Couture Group of the New York Dress Institute and other designers of New York, California and Italy. The new Spring silks were prominently shown, as were Galey and Lord cottons, and silhouettes shaped over Pellon; the International Silk Association, U.S.A., Galey and Lord, and the Pellon Corporation helped to underwrite the showing.

The first scene of the showing, "The Rocket," borrowing inspiration from the recent hit, "A Visit to a Small Planet," opened with explosive noises and eerie music, and presented street clothes in fireworks colors. Heard for the first time and continuing through the showing was the "outer space" offstage voice of television's Frank Gallop joining with "spaceman" Martyn Green ("A Visit to a Small Planet") and "earthman" Pat Hingle ("The Dark at the Top of the Stairs") in commentary about the launching of the new Spring Fashions.

Dancing down the runway at the end of the scene was Chita Rivera ("West Side Story") in "rocket print" chemise of sequinned wool challis.

chiffon evening dress in "translucent silhouette" was modeled by Mary Ure ("Look Back in Anger").

The parade of bright street clothes spotlighted Spring's "explosive" reds and blues, greens, and tones of violet and purple, yellow and orange in costumes, suites, and dresses, both in monotone brilliance and in combination with harmonizing prints and other shades. Highlights included Ben Gershel's orange wool jersey box jacket suit with a printed silk blouse, Lilly Dache's orange needlepoint silk sack day dress with pleated skirt, Adele Simpson's fireworks blue wool jersey suit with print facing, and Larry Aldrich's gladioli pink wool fringed suit.

Scene II, "The Fashion Challenge," presenting Spring's foremost silhouettes, was opened by Ralph Story, emcee of "The $64,000 Challenge," and his fashion quizzing of a trio of attractive ex-contestants on the same television program. These were Miss Joyce Myron, atom and space expert; Dr. Joyce Brothers, psychologist; and Miss Jane Wilson (Mrs. John Gruen), former fashion model and Renaissance art expert.

Six outstanding Spring "rocket" fashions made up the silhouette scene. Representing the "space silhouette" were a white pique "rocket coat" costume by Luis Estevez of Grenelle-Estevez, and Norman Norell's black and white checked wool low-belted suit for Traina-Norell.

Two-part Scene III, "The Music Man," first presented song-and-dance-man influence in new fashions in strong stripes and bold checks for sports and festive occasions, and blazer derivatives. Commentators were Robert Preston, re-enacting his music man role, assisted by Barbara Cook and David Burns of the same musical. Miss Cook's Chanel-type suit of striped grey and white flannel was designed by Anne Klein of Junior Sophisticates. Jack Whiting, Broadway's famous song and dance man, took the models down the runway.

Introduced by the Buffalo Bills of "Music Man," the second sequence of this scene, "Luck of the Irish," a bow to this season's gamut of strong greens, was enlivened by Siobhan McKenna ("Rope Dancers") in a shamrock green full-skirted cocktail dress of silk chiffon from Larry Aldrich.

Modeling a Sophie of Saks Fifth Avenue long evening dress of vivid green and white embred silk chiffon was Mrs. Jay Rossbach.

Underscoring the gayety of the fashions, the mannequins opening the "The Music Man" scene paraded to "Seventy-six Trombones," and carried plastic miniature trombones. Among highlights in this sequence were: Hannah Troy's vestee suit in navy and white checkered wool, and a black and white diamond fantasy check summer cotton shirt-waist dress from William Fox-Visioni. Greens ranged from a sleeveless Irish linen overblouse beach pajama by Sportwhirl's Jeanne Campbell to a rose-printed green silk Branell afternoon dress, designed by Hilda Altmark.

Scene IV, presenting the loose look versus the waistline fashion, was a take-off on WCBS's "What's My Line?" Entitled "What's My Waistline?", it opened with Bennett Cerf as moderator, tossing hints as to the identity of two mystery guests to Steve Allen. Panelist Dorothy Kilgallen appeared in a slim waistline-moulding short dress of black organdy by Ceil Chapman, and TV's Jayne Meadows in a loose top beige Chantilly lace cocktail dress from Herbert Sondheim.

Also appearing in this scene was Shirley Booth ("Miss Isobel") wearing Nettie Rosenstein's sheer light grey wool dress belted through slots in front only.

Costumes in many categories from bathing suits to short evening dresses were grouped in the waistline scene. Included were Claire McCardell's low-bloused two-piece swim suit of cocoa checked cotton; a navy silk crepe chemise with streamers of satin ribbon from its white pique collar, designed by Bill Blass for Anna Miller, Oleg Cassini's fitted black chiffon satin sheath under Ben Zuckerman's black satin baratheia coat, Adele Simpson's blue silk high waistline suit, and Pauline Trigere's slim tunic-over-blouse costume of navy silk chiffon combined with navy and white polka dotted silk shantung.

Scene V, "Captain's Paradise," named for the film and its forthcoming Jose Ferrer stage version, "Oh, Captain!", revealed a palm-tree island setting, with the lovely "inhabitants" dressed in nautical daytime and sports costumes, and exotic-looking summer and beach clothes. Commentators were Martyn Green and Jose Ferrer, who presented Elsa Maxwell as the "laughing Buddha." Emerging from her Buddhist enclosure, Miss Maxwell walked down the runway in a brass-buttoned navy coat. "New Girl in Town" star Gwen Verdon, appeared in B. H. Wragge's pink and orange flowered silk print tunic dress.

Plotted after "Fair Game," the second sequence of this scene opened with Sam Levene approximating his garment district role in the comedy — a helmeted designer in search of wild animal and tropical leaf plants, plus anything suitable for bush jacket costumes. Accompanying him on his safari was Thelma Ritter ("New Girl in Town"), her smart "hunting costume" a beige silk tweed Norfolk-belted suit by Harry Frechtel, and Ellen McRae ("Fair Game"), in Tina Leser's leonard print cotton sheath with a matching print coat of chiffon.

Highlights of the scene included Pattullo-Jo Copeland's sailor chemise coat and dress costume of black worsted and silk crepe, Nettie Rosenstein's brass-buttoned navy wool coat-dress, a dress-and-jacket Guy Laroche costume in Galey and Lord's blazing cotton, Rudi Gernreich's Balinese batik cotton beach costume, and a yellow and white dotted patio pajama by Jax-Manhattan.

Among the fashions in the "Fair Game" or safari sequence were a zebra printed cotton coat-and-dress costume by Louis Estevez, a full length silk chiffon tiger print evening gown designed by Bill Plass for Anna Miller, and worn with a matching Emme turban by Adolfo, and a Ben Reig Cocktail dress of green and red tropical print silk.

Scene VI, "That Girl is Here Again," presented WABC's Mike Wallace interviewing Anita Loos on Lorelei Lee and the 1920's influence on fashion. The author of "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," perched on a rhinestone-studded bar stool, wore a short-skirted Ceil Chapman dress of black silk fringe.

Also entertaining the audience were Sig Arno ("Time Remembered") and Dody Goodman (television's "Tonight" show). Dancing the "Charleston" down the runway, Miss Goodman wore an Edward Abbott chemise of self-fringed red and pink printed silk designed by Wilson Folmar.

The clothes in the 1920's scene, though underscoring the comeback of fringe, hipline sashes and shoulder scarves, deep cloches and fox trims, pointed up the sharp difference between today's streamlined loose fashions and the shapelessness of the 20's. Intricately constructed for a strictly 1958 look were such highlights as Norman Norell's mustard and white tweed suit, the long jacket loose to a snug hipband, and fastened over a white satin blouse. Other '20's highlights were Trigere's slender sectioned chemise of white, putty and black silk, Davidow's Chanel type beige and white herringbone tweed suit, and Herbert Sondheim's tiered navy silk fringe cocktail dress.

Scene VII, "Mille Fleurs," presenting flowered Spring and Summer fashions, was introduced by Julie Harris, wearing a Jane Derby costume of a flowered chiffon chemise under an airy bisque chiffon wool jersey coat.

A kaleidoscope of colors, the fashions in the flowered scene varied from printed cottons to warp printed silk taffetas and summer brocades, many of the shades emphasized by the mannequins' carrying of large plastic flowers designed for the showing. Included were a Suzy Perette full-skirted dress of lilac-on-white silk taffeta cut low in back, Originala's yoked flowered silk brocade coat over a shell pink silk chiffon cocktail dress from Christian Dior, Fira Benenson's rose-painted white silk chiffon evening dress, and Marusia's sleeved dinner dress combining a rose-printed black crepe bodice and full skirt of rose-printed white silk satin.

Scene VIII, "Heavenly Bodies," presenting sexy clothes, opened with Hartyn Green's mimicking Edward Murrow's person-to-person technique in a planet-to-planet interview with "Venus" Doretta Morrow, currently singing in the St. Regis' Maisonette Room. Miss Morrow wore a Maurice Rentner long evening costume of a pale blue-grey silk chiffon sequinned sheath under a matching color taffeta cape.

Highlights in the sexy clothes' scene included Pattullo-Jo Copeland's streamered flame red silk crepe cocktail dress, Luis Estevez's deeply-V'd black silk evening sheath with a longer-in-back hemline, a Ben Reig evening dress of black and white polka dotted silk chiffon ruffled around the neckline with fluted white organdy, and a short and rounded starched lace dress in Van Gogh orange and white, by Kleibacher for Huntleigh.

Scene IX "Cocoanut Sweet" all-white costumes for all hours of the day and night, was titled for the song hit from "Jamaica," and borrowed one of the stars of the musical, Ricardo Montalban.

White highlights included Monte-Sano and Pruzan's short jacket white wool jersey suit with fringed ties for the collar and waistline, Brigance's short and belted beach coat of wide wale Galey and Lord cotton, designed for Sportsmaker, and Samuel Robert's white kidskin cardigan and matching tapered pants. Among the after-dark and evening dresses were Anthony Blotta's bead-trellised white organdy summer shirtwaist dress, a short and full-skirted white lace dress frothed over taffeta, designed for Harvey Berin by Karen Stark, and Christian Dior's long white lace chemise.

Scene X, the enchanting balconied finale of the showing "Love Conquers All," spotlighting romantic evening clothes, had as commentator Peter Ustinov, author and star of "Romanoff and Juliet."

The scene was introduced by a foursome of "young lovers" from the same comedy and other current Broadway productions. Carol Lawrence, appearing with Larry Kert (co-stars in "West Side Story") wore a long willow green printed silk organza dress by Mam'selle's Betty Carol. Susan Strasberg with Richard Burton ("Time Remembered") wore a full length moulded white lace dress under a coral silk cape, by Luis Estevez of Grenelle-Estevez, Elizabeth Allen, escorted by Michael Tolan ("Romanoff and Juliet") wore Scaasi's white chiffon evening gown with gardenia decolletage, Judith Robinson with Timmy Everett ("Dark at the Top of the Stairs") wore a Ceil Chapman ball dress of white organdy embroidered with mauve pink roses.

Other celebrities appearing in the finale included Teresa Wright ("Dark at the Top of the Stairs"), wearing a Ceil Chapman ball dress of white and pink organdy frilled with white lace, and Miss Giorgia Moll ("The Quiet American") in Simonetta's hemline-puffed strapless evening dress of pink silk tissue taffeta.

Mrs. E. Haring Chandor and Mrs. Alfred Corning Clark wore Elizabeth Arden dresses designed by Count Sarimi. Mrs. Chandor's multi-color silk print was trained but draped under at the hem in front. Mrs. Clark's bouffant dress combined a gold-embroidered pink satin bodice and flame red organza skirt.

Mrs. Henry Fonda's gown by Sophie of Saks Fifth Avenue was of thickly-embroidered white satin, narrowly-strapped and full-skirted. Mrs. Spiros Coumantaros modeled a slender white silk chiffon dress with a crystal-jewelled bodice and long floating panels from the neckline to hem in back, designed by Bill Blass for Anna Miller. A Philip Hulitar dress worn by Mrs. Anthony Bliss combined a red and pink rose-printed taffeta petal skirt with a strapless bodice of Chinese red satin.

Also in the finale was a white lace Hattie Carnegie evening dress in blown-glass silhouette, designed over nude silk.

Among notables present were: Mrs. V. Beaumont Allen, Mrs. Walter H. Annenberg, Mrs. Roy F. Atwood, Mrs. Thomas M. Bancroft Jr., Mrs. Alexander Berlin, Mrs. Mellon Bruce, Mrs. William T. Princess Helena Gourielli's penthouse home was the setting for one of the most beautiful parties of the season, the Polish Mutual Assistance Ball. Recently returned from Europe, Princess Gourielli — who is Helena Rubinstein in profession life — acted as hostess.

Established in New York in 1956, the Polish Mutual Assistance Inc. has organized to assist Polish refugees who came to the United States as a result of foreign occupation of their country during World War II. Mrs. Arthur Rubinstein was chairman of the Ball.

Among the milling crowds we greeted Miss Christina Rockefeller, Jean Tanburn, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Hurok, Count and Countess Jan Dembinski, Consul General and Mme. Salzano, Joseph Lipski, former Polish Ambassador, Count and Countess Piastrowski, Princess Helene de Leichtenberg, Jean Pierre Fromme, Col. Serge Obolensky and many others.

The COLONY HOTEL

By Ed Dawson

FIRST BIG SOCIAL EVENT of the 1958 season was the gala opening of Frank Hale's magnificent new Royal Poinciana Playhouse built by Bessemer Properties to compliment their Royal Poinciana Plaza shopping center on the site of the old Royal Poinciana Hotel. Architect John L. Volk brought rare beauty to the theatre with his Regency style shopping plaza and Playhouse.

The main dining room and the Terrace Room at The Colony glittered with pre-theatre dinner parties.

The Colony's president and general manager, Bernard H. Cooley and Mrs. Cooley were opening-nighters and, as board chairman of the Palm Beach County Hotel Association, Mr. Cooley expressed appreciation that all Palm Beachers feel towards the men whose vision brought the Playhouse into being: James F. Riley Jr. and Julian Field of Bessemer Properties; Mr. Volk; Frank J. Hale, President of the Playhouse company; Paul Crabtree, producing director; and James M. Riley, art director.

Bermudians All Out To Welcome H.M.S. Bermuda

By Barbara Dubivsky

At the head table at the Robert Burns Night Dinner, held at the Bermudiana Hotel, Pembroke, Bermuda, from the left: The Rt. Rev. A. Williams, Lord Bishop of Bermuda; Mrs. Eric Rule; Lieut. Gen. Sir John Woodall, Governor of Bermuda; the Rev. Eric Rule, President of the Bermuda Branch of the Caledonian Society; Lady Woodall; Mr. Chesley White, Deputy Mayor of Hamilton, capital city of Bermuda; Mrs. Williams; and Mr. Jack Nicoll, toastmaster at the dinner.

PRIVATE AND OFFICIAL ENTERTAINMENTS happily exhausted the Officers and ratings of H.M.S. BERMUDA on the occasion of the ship's first visit to the colony whose name she has borne since her commissioning in 1942.

With pride and great joy, Bermudians welcomed the Royal Navy cruiser as she sailed into Hamilton Harbour, her decks lined with men standing smartly at attention. A white silk ensign flew from her mainmast, and gaily colored pennants fluttered in the breeze. A seventeen-gun salute echoed through the islands of this mid-Atlantic resort as His Excellency, the Governor of Bermuda, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Woodall returned the official call of the cruiser's commander, Captain R. R. S. Pennefather, thus signalling the opening of festivities.

Visitors joined with Bermudians in the general revelry, as the whole Colony devoted ten days to becoming acquainted with its namesake.

The annual dinner given by The Speaker of the House of Assembly was delayed so that Captain Pennefather and his Officers might attend. To commemorate this historic occasion, Captain Pennefather presented Sir John Cox, the Speaker, with a replica of the ship's crest. This has since been hung on a panel above the door between the House Chamber and the Speaker's Office.

"Ariel Sands," on the South Shore in Devonshire, was the setting of a formal dance given by the Bermuda branch of the Royal Naval Officers Association. The ladies were lovely in their graceful, billowy ball gowns. The officers resplendent in their dress uni-

Present at a reception held in Bermuda's Admiralty House in honor of the first visit to the colony of the Royal Navy Cruiser H.M.S. Bermuda, were Miss Marion Woodall, daughter of His Excellency, the Governor of Bermuda, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Woodall; and Lieut. Cmdr. of the head of Bermuda's Transport Control Board.

forms, particularly the Royal Marines, whose scarlet mess jackets provided a vivid touch of color. Several of the officers wore "Nelson Boots," made popular by that famous Admiral, and retained to this day as a part of the uniform. The young Sub-Lieutenants seemed to be most successful in the champagne dance contests, much to the delight of their partners.

A buffet supper and cinema was held on board the BERMUDA the following evening. The gracious hospitality of the Captain and Officers charmed their guests and went a long way to cementing indissoluble ties between the cruiser and the colony. There really is something quite special about the Navy's way of doing things that is so complete, correct, and utterly ingratiating. From the first welcome at the gangplank to the final salute by the Officer on Watch, one is aware of being an honored guest, and treated royally.

The Right Worshipful E. Roderic Williams, Mayor of Hamilton, Bermuda's capital city, and the Members of the Corporation of Hamilton entertained at an official reception held in Hamilton Hall, which was strewn with Union Jacks and Bermudian and American flags. Present were local dignitaries, and the Commanding Officers of both the United States Naval Operating and Air Force Bases in Bermuda, the American Consul General, Mr. Sidney K. Lafoon, and many Americans, Canadians and Englishmen resident in the Colony.

An evening reception at Government House, official residence of Her Majesty's personal representative to Bermuda, His Excellency, Lieut. Gen. Sir John Woodall, was the most formal entertainment arranged for Captain Pennefather and his Officers. In the receiving line with the Governor, Lady Woodall and Captain Pennefather was the Viscountess Mountbatten of Burma, former Vicereine of India, and wife of Britain's first Sea Lord. Lady Mountbatten, who was visiting Bermuda in her capacity as Superintendent-in-Chief of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, was magnificently attired in a jewel-embroidered gold satin gown, her decorations sparkling brilliantly on her shoulder sash. All the gentlemen present wore their decorations and medals.

Bermuda's Admiralty House, which has been closed since the departure more than a year ago of Vice Admiral, Sir John Eaton, was reopened especially for the cruiser's visit. Once again its stately ballroom was the scene of a reception, as the Bermuda Government, through its Trade Development Board, entertained the Captain and Officers at a cocktail party. Sir Bayard Dill, T.D.B. Chairman, presented the Officers' Wardroom with six engraved silver beer steins.

The ship held "open house" for several days. Thousands of visitors took advantage of the opportunity to inspect a fighting ship. For Bermudians it was their first opportunity to see many of the gifts given by the Colony to the cruiser over the years. Few could resist the temptation to strike the solid silver ship's bell, that not only tolls the hours, but, in accordance with Naval tradition, is converted into a font for the administration of holy baptism. Two children of members of the ship's company were recently baptized from the bell.

To gifts already given, such as silver cigarette boxes, ceremonial bowls, appropriate items for the ship's beautiful Chapel of Christ the King, a mess oak hammer and stand, silver plate, and an inter-port shield, the colony added a check for 511 pounds sterling, collected by public subscription. Many individual gifts of all kinds were also presented.

A quartet of Royal Marines sounded notes on another Colony gift, four solid silver bugles, as Governor and Lady Woodall arrived on board for the final formal entertainment of the visit. The Captain and Officers of the cruiser entertained Bermudians and tourist guests at a party and dance, in return for the hospitality the ship's company received while in Bermuda. The ship's after-deck was converted into a delightful ballroom. Red and white striped awnings covered the sides and formed a marquee-like arrangement.

Potted palms and other greenery covered deck protrubances. The ship's engineers constructed a fish pond in the center of the floor, stocked it with crayfish, and erected a fountain in its center. Navy uniforms, with gold wrist-bands, the striking red jackets of the Marines, and the pleasing variety of dance dresses worn by the women guests, all contributed to the colorful atmosphere of a most enjoyable occasion. An elaborate supper was served in the wardroom.

During the ten days of the ship's visit, various athletic competitions were organized between the ship's company and local organizations, including rugby and soccer matches, and a golf tournament. The Bermuda Government provided buses for sightseeing tours and entertained the ratings at a luncheon held in the St. George Hotel.

So successful was the visit, the Assembly asked the Governor to invite the BERMUDA to pay a return visit to the colony next year, during the 350th anniversary celebrations. Captain Pennefather, in a signal sent as his ship steamed away from Bermuda, said, "We leave with sad hearts after parting with so many of our friends. We hope we formed a lasting link between the Colony and the ship. We wish you, Lady Woodall, and all the people of Bermuda, goodbye, and until our next meeting, which we look forward to with great enthusiasm, good fortune and constant prosperity."

The ship was played out by the band of the Bermuda Rifles, who formed, with their troops, on Albuoy's Point in Hamilton to salute the BERMUDA as she left the colony. The ship pulled away to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne." The last sound the men on board heard was a thunderous roar as hundreds of people on shore gave a rousing "Three Cheers."

The BERMUDA is rejoining the Home Fleet, now enroute to maneuvers in Caribbean waters. Many of the ships of the Fleet will visit in Bermuda in the first week in March, when another round of entertainments is planned to honor the Royal Navy of England, which, to quote Sir William Blackstone, "has even been its greatest defence and ornament, its ancient and natural strength; the floating bulwark of the island." Tourists visiting the Colony at that time will have ample opportunity to witness the many ceremonies and attend some of the functions.

THE HOMESTEAD

HOT SPRINGS, VIRGINIA

By Joan Burczyk

Photos—Stephen Blake

MORE THAN A CENTURY AND A HALF of tradition crowds the colorful history of Hot Springs, Virginia, and The Homestead, the center of fashionable holidays for over a hundred and fifty years and one of the oldest resorts in the country.

Surrounded by the majestic central ranges of the Alleghenies, whose foothills sweep down to the smooth green carpet of the Warm Springs Valley, the delightful seclusion of the area had its advantages even in Colonial days when fashionable visitors gladly suffered a tedious journey by stage coach or saddle horse to visit this famed resort.

Today, with modern transportation as it is, The Homestead is within a night's journey by train or plane from any metropolitan area in the country.

Such notables as George Washington, General Robert E. Lee, and Thomas Jefferson visited the area.

In those days, it was considered fashionable for families to make the rounds of the Spas and resorts in Virginia each season. The whole group would move on from one hotel to the other en masse. Mothers would bring along their marriageable daughters and hope to have them betrothed before the end of the tour.

The Homestead today is a mecca for society, even as it was in years past.

The natural beauty of the countryside, the excellent facilities for sports and the gay social atmosphere bring people from all over the world to The Homestead.

There are very few resorts in the country which maintain the charm and service of a real old fashioned country hotel, such as The Homestead does.

In this delightful atmosphere there are complete facilities for all types of sports — hundreds of miles of trails for riding, carriage driving or hiking; an indoor and outdoor swimming pool; skeet and trap field; lawn bowling; tennis on eight courts; two wonderful golf courses; and a stream teeming with trout for the angler's pleasure.

The traditional afternoon tea and concert, and dancing each evening, except Sunday, in the ballroom add to the gay social scene.

To keep the children happy there is a new well-equipped playground and an outdoor playground with a little stream and a tree house. The children are well supervised in these areas, leaving the adults free to enjoy The Homestead's sport facilities, fully confident that the children are in good hands.

The Homestead is the perfect setting for a gay, carefree vacation.

Golfer C. Van Curll of Covina, Calif., stops to figure out a puzzling shot at the tricky 13th water hole of the San Marcos Hotel and Country Club course, at Chandler, Ariz.

WORLD TRAVELERS continue to dominate the resort picture at John Quay's enchanting desert Paradise in Chandler, Arizona, and latest arrival on the scene is Denver beauty Kathryn Kemp and her husband, Frank, who is president of the Great Western Sugar Company.

Mrs. Kemp recently returned from a unique two months' trip around the world entitled "off the beaten path of Asia," which was directed by an expert on Oriental art and culture with wide experience in the Far East. Sixteen venturesome globe trotters accompanied the Denverite aboard a special plane which touched such exotic spots as Katmandu, Bungalow, Springar and Angkor Wat and the better known cities of Tokyo, Hong Kong, Calcutta and Istanbul.

"It was a wonderful experience," said Mrs. Kemp, "but there is no place quite like the San Marcos and a visit here is always on our agenda."

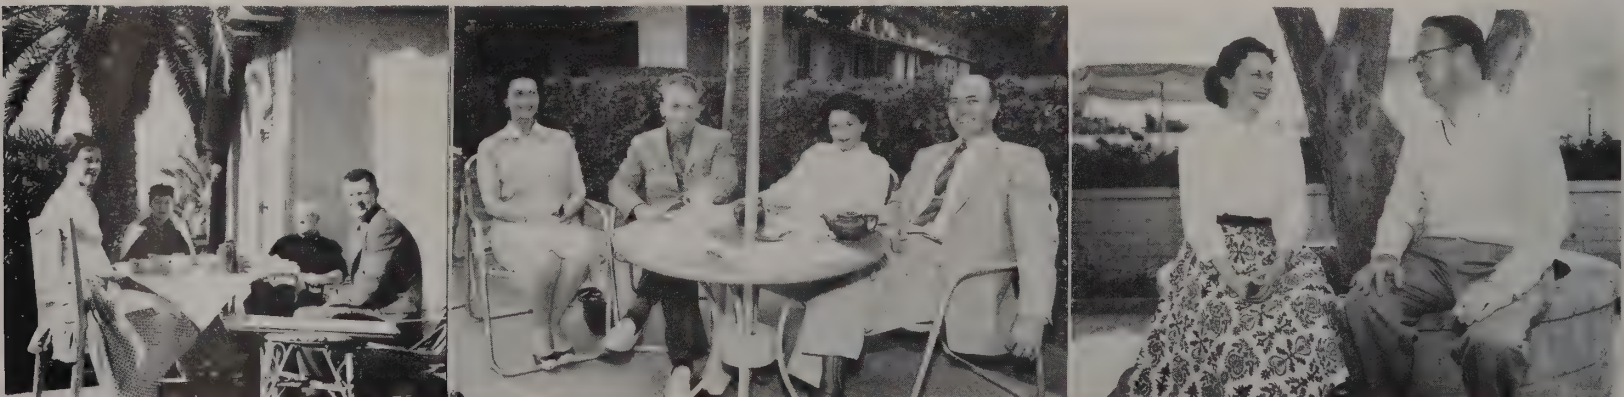

The San Marcos still lures the "brain-power" of the country and a group with a major part in shaping the destinies of the country, at the resort, are all participants in the Second Rocky Mountain Conference. The conference comprises top drawer brass in the worlds of finance, industry and business and heading the list of

"Who's Who" in these categories are such men as Mr. James Scott Kemper, Chairman of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty Company and former Ambassador to Brazil; Mr. T. F. Mueller of New York, distinguished Vice President and Publisher of Newsweek, who arrived ahead of schedule with Mrs. Mueller. Also Dr. Donald McLaughlin, President of Homestake Mining Company, and Mrs. McLaughlin from San Francisco.

One of the country's foremost railroad executives, Mr. B. F. Biaggini, Vice President of Southern Pacific Company, and Mrs. Biaggini of San Francisco checked into the San Marcos for the Conference.

Other "headliners" attending the Conference, some accompanied by their wives, are Mr. George S. Eccles, President and General Manager of the First Security Corporation, Salt Lake City, Utah; Mr. George M. Gadsby, Chairman of the Board of Utah Power and Light Company, Utah; Mr. Barry Goldwater, Senator from Arizona; Mr. F. G. Gurley, Chairman of the Board, the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway System; Mr. N. R. Knox, President Gate City Steel Company, Inc., Denver.

Noted educators at the Conference include Mr. Grady Gammage, President Arizona State College, and Mr. Albert Ray Olpin, President University of Utah.

A figure of national note in the group, whose hobby is the producing of unusual films, is Mr. Edgar Monsanto Queeny, Chairman of the Board, Monsanto Chemical Company, St. Louis. Mr. Queeny, who is also a trustee of the National Industrial Conference Board, recently produced a picture taken in Africa dealing with the lives of the pygmies, which has attracted favorable comment from leaders in the industry.

This marks the second year these distinguished gentlemen have selected the San Marcos as their headquarters and much of it of course is due to the always superb management of resort owner Mr. John H. Quarty, who had the rare honor of being appointed to the board of the Conference. Members of the Conference Board Staff are Mr. John H. Sinclair of New York, President of the National group; Mr. Martin R. Gainsbrugh, chief economist; Mr. E. A. Hammesfahr, conference director, and Mr. Clyde L. Rogers, Vice President.

Another colorful personality from "big steel" is Mr. L. B. Worthington of San Francisco. Mr. Worthington is President of Columbia-Geneva Steel Division, United States Steel Corporation.

March highlights at the San Marcos will take in the annual St. Patrick's Day dinner dance, and on the golfing side of life, feature tournament will be the annual President's Cup match plus the Men's and Women's golf championships. And so flows on the always delightful resort picture at the San Marcos, which has its grand finale May 5th.

The Edgewater Gulf Hotel

General Manager Frank Fagan of the Edgewater Gulf Hotel greets Mrs. Charles E. Adams and Mrs. Robert N. Adams, of Baltimore, Md., who have enjoyed mid-Winter and Spring vacations at the resort each season since 1942.

YOU HAVE BEEN DRIVING from Florida through southern Alabama and then you are in Mississippi. You have gone by Pascagoula and on over the highway to the wide bend in the road and a new land emerges, a land that touches the Gulf water's edge for miles of clean air.

You see the lighthouse first. Beyond Biloxi are the trees and the shining homes and then — stretching upwards above all these things — is the tower. You see it grow larger off there to the right and seemingly disappear. You look for it again but now the view is broken by beautiful foliage, clumps of flowers and tall trees again.

You turn right and follow the winding drive among the trees and by the flowers and foliage. You drive up the sweeping circular incline and stop under the canopy.

You have forgotten to look again for the tower in your awareness of an overwhelming feeling of magnificence and your quickness to sense a surrounding of richness of color.

You have heard about it — and now it is here.

You may have discovered it — or rediscovered it. Yet each time as you approach it the feeling is the same.

Set here in a 600-acre estate of natural beauty — halfway between Biloxi and Gulfport, Mississippi — is a vast hostelry, the fashionable luxurious Edgewater Gulf Hotel.

But once inside the graciousness of Old Southern hospitality envelopes you and you have succumbed to the charm which has remained intact through the years, for here you may indulge in whatever vacation mood may come upon you — rest and quiet, relaxation or recreation.

Mr. Frank Fagan, Edgewater Gulf Hotel manager, works daily to add new meaning to the resort hotel's famous policy of "hospitality unlimited" which was originated by Mr. Edward Ball, the owner, who has always insisted that every guest is to receive individual attention so that his or her stay is always a memorable one.

For Mr. Ball Mr. Fagan has also managed the Hotel Markham in Gulfport and directed the Wakulla Edgewater Company. He has spent virtually all his life on the Mississippi Gulf Coast. He was graduated from St. Stanislaus, Bay St. Louis.

Mr. Fagan is still president of Hotel Markham, Inc. He is a past president of the Mississippi Gulf Coast Hotel Association and past vice president of the Mississippi State Hotel Association. He has served as chairman of the Gulf Coast Community Chest drive. He is now vice president of the Gulfport Kiwanis Club, a second vice president of the Gulfport Chamber of Commerce and a director of the Gulfport Recreation Department.

Many new guests are at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel this season and many "regulars" have returned. One of the best known members of the Winter colony is Mr. Graham Hawes Kemper, of Orange, Va., who arrived January 10 for a three-month vacation. Mr. Kemper was a U.S. Diplomat for 30 years, serving in seven countries. His last post was as Consul General in Rome. Mr. Kemper returns to the Edgewater Gulf Hotel year after year to spend his vacation among old friends.

Back, too, in January were the charming sisters, Mrs. Charles E. Adams and Mrs. Robert N. Adams, both of 5301 Bosworth Street, Baltimore, Md., who were first introduced to the Edgewater Gulf more than 15 years ago by their cousin, Mrs. Alfred I. DuPont, sister of Mr. Ball.

Other early arrivals for the Winter-Spring season, returning year after year, were Mr. and Mrs. J. Chaplain "Chap" Hodges, of Birmingham, Ala., who came January 26 for a month — and arrived in time for Mr. Hodges' Sunday golf game on the Edgewater Gulf Hotel's 18-hole championship course . . . Also here are Mr. and Mrs. Garnett Reid, of Coldwater, Mich., who have vacationed at the resort the last 12 seasons . . . the Ray D. Smiths, of Chicago, Ill., are guests, too . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Goulet, of Kansas City, Mo., had a mid-winter holiday at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel, leaving in early February for Dallas, Texas, where they were to be guests of the Richard Harrisons, and on to Austin to visit Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Townsley. In Kansas City, the Goulets are members of the Indian Hills Country Club and the Kansas City Club. WHITE HOUSE DINNERS led the Washington Winter social parade with the spotlight on the Presidential salute to the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

President and Mrs. Eisenhower invited seventy-five guests to dine with Mr. Sam Rayburn of Texas, most of them from the Congress.

Speaker Rayburn, accompanied by his titian-haired sister, Mrs. W. A. Thomas, arrived early for a chat with the President and First Lady in their private second-floor quarters. Later, guests were received by the foursome in the gold and white East Room, while the red-coated U.S. Marine Band played Texas tunes.

Mrs. Eisenhower was gowned in gay pink taffeta designed by Nettie Rosenstein. Her jewels were opals. Mrs. Thomas wore blue lace with deep-toned orchids clipped to the waistline.

At the big E-shaped table in the State Dining Room, guests dined on oysters Rockefeller, tomato consomme, roast lamb with minted pears, and an ambrosial frozen custard in caramel sauce.

After dinner, there was coffee and liqueurs in the Red Room for the ladies, in the Green Room for the gentlemen. The guests moved

THE CHIEF of Protocol and Mrs. Wiley Buchanan were hosts at "Underoak," their beautiful big Nebraska Avenue residence, at a series of three dinners honoring the Vice President, the Chief Justice and the Secretary of State.

The popular, former Ambassador to Luxembourg and his Dresden-like wife, Ruth Buchanan, received guests in the elegant French drawing room for a cocktail hour. They dined at candlelit and flower-banked tables, set in the richly-appointed dining rooms. After dinner, there was dancing in the spacious downstairs recreation room. Highlight of the party for the Vice President and Mrs. Nixon were hilarious impersonations of world personages by French Ambassador Herve Alphand and Swedish Ambassador Erik Boheman.

At the party for the Secretary of State who, true to form, was in far-off Turkey for the Baghdad Pact meeting, toasts were offered to the absent honor guests and guests danced to a special band until the midnight hour.

The Chief Justice's dinner had a famous former song star as guest, Mrs. Clarence Mackay, the former Anna Case, who entertained delightfully after dinner. Mrs. Earl Warren, who was delayed in her return from California, did not attend, but accompanying the Chief Justice was his well-known daughter, "Honeybear," who is Mrs. Carmen HOSTESS Perle Mesta dinner-feted actress Celeste Holm on the eve of her opening at the National Theatre in a new Broadway-bound play, "Interlock." Thirty-two guests sat at two glittering chandeliered and flower-banked tables, one in the handsome French dining room, the other in the smaller adjoining room. They enjoyed such delectables as soupe royale, lobster mousse, roast saddle of lamb, and a mouth-watering dessert which the gold-crested menus listed as Mousse de Physallis. There were choice wines and champagne toasts. Mrs. Mesta, gowned in shimmering sequined black by Marusia, contrasted with diamonds and pearls, lifted her glass to four Ambassadors — Spain's Count of Motrico (the Countess was in Madrid), the British Ambassador and Lady Caccia, the Venezuelan Ambassador and Senora de Gonzales, who wore luxurious red satin with a diamond bib-necklace, and the Ambassador of Switzerland and Madame de Torrente. She also saluted the gentleman who succeeded her in the post of Minister to Luxembourg, now Chief of Protocol and his pretty wife, Mrs. Buchanan. Down from New York was blond Mrs. Edgar Leonard. Both she and Mrs. Mesta were on the famous Elsa Maxwell Mediterranean cruise. Handsome Robert Gray of the White House was a popular dancing partner after dinner to the gay tunes of Howard Devron. The beautiful brunette British actress, Rosemary Harris, of the "Interlock" cast, was in the company, the leading man Max Schell, the producer Richard Meyers and his stunning wife and the young author Ira Levin, who wrote the smash hit "No Time for Sergeants." Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Andre de Limur, Mr. George Williams, Mrs. Clarence Mackay, noted former Met star, who favored guests with "Song of India." Miss Holm sang a delightful ditty called "Please Make Me a Star" and Washington's gay little Hank Fort sang.

The noted party-giver Mrs. Mesta loves to dance and we saw her twirling with the dashing Spanish Ambassador; with Perry Wheeler; the National's head man Scott Kirkpatrick, and Mr. Philip Cox, who with his petite wife came in after dinner along with the Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer and Mr. and Mrs. Rouben Mamoulian. Mrs. Helen Seeley, Mrs. Mesta's personal secretary, graciously assisted the hostess and a very special guest for a while before dinner was Mrs. Mesta's award-winning French poodle "Fifi," done up in jeweled collar.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Roosevelt Jr., who leave in March for Madrid, where he takes the post of First Secretary in the U.S. Embassy, were honor guests of the Cuban Ambassador Dr. Miguel Campa at a farewell ball. The handsome, big embassy was aglow with masses of flowers, champagne refreshments, an elaborate Cuban buffet and Devron's Latin music for dancing. The Ambassador received with his daughter and hostess, Senora de Averhoff, and Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt in the second floor drawing room. Selwa Roosevelt chose white satin for her dress of the evening. Magueline Averhoff also wore satin in luxurious French blue.

A special delegation, saluting the Roosevelts, came from the Spanish Embassy, the Ambassador and his wife the Countess of Motrico, the Minister and the Countess of Alba, Second Secretaries Pedrosa and Churrua and their wives and the Military Attache and Senora de Miranda.

Among the many on hand for the gay farewell were almost all the Latin American Ambassadors and their wives headed by Diplomatic Dean and Senora de Sevilla-Sacassa. Sir Percy and Lady Spender were there in one of their last appearances before going to his post on the International Court at The Hague. Senora de Mora, wife of the Secretary General of the O.A.S. was guest, the Ambassador of Iceland and Madame Thors, Norwegian First Secretary and Madame Mangor, former Ambassador to Cuba and Mrs. Arthur Gardner with their son and wife, the Arthur Wendell Gardners, and the elder Gardners' daughter and husband, the A. Britton Brownes. Former Costa Rican Ambassador and Senora de Oreamuno were in the throng, Under Secretary of the Army and pretty Mrs. Charles Finucane.

From Capitol Hill came Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, Congressman and Mrs. Clark Thompson, Congressman and Mrs. Homer Thornberry and Congressman and Mrs. Harold Cooley.

The State Department was represented by Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Roy Rubottom, Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Thomas Mann, Deputy Assistant Secretaries Newbold Walmley and William Snow and their wives and Protocol Chief and Mrs. Buchanan.

Other guests dining and dancing until the wee hours included Mr. and Mrs. Morris

THE PALM BEACH INTERNATIONAL POLO SEASON hit full swing in February, when attendance set a record high at the Polo Grounds in West Palm Beach. A break in the weather brought out near-capacity crowds on Sunday, February 9, proclaimed "Heart Day" to honor Heart Ball committee members and promote the Heart Fund.

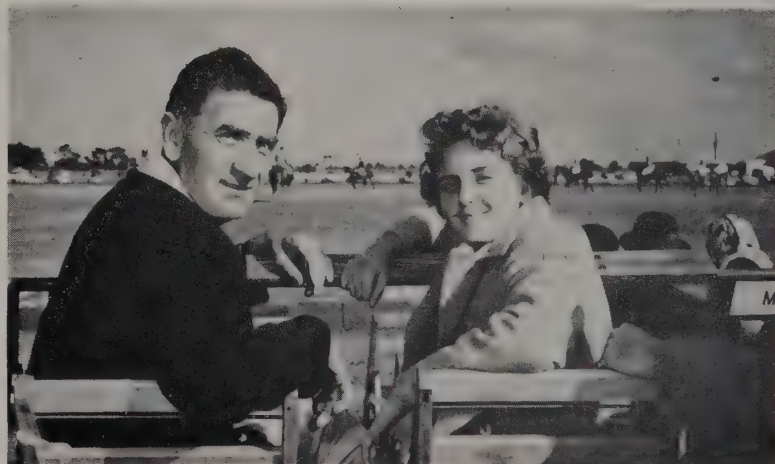

A "concours d'elegance" was staged at the half-time intermission during the tightly fought match between the Palm Beach team and the Circle F Solocup quartet from Dallas, Texas. The game ended in a 7-6 victory for Circle F, and Mrs. Horace Dodge Jr. and Zsa-Zsa Gabor presented the gold Dodge trophy and replicas to the winning players: Robert Wickser, Paul Barry, Ray Harrington and Billy Mayer.

Although Palm Beach narrowly lost the game, the elegant parade of new imported and domestic model automobiles scored a great success. Carrying out the Heart Ball motif, only red and white convertibles, decorated with Valentine hearts and cupids, cruised in the procession. Feminine passengers dressed in red and white ensembles, while the men wore scarlet coats or sweaters.

Leading the colorful procession, Mrs. Gallagher Freimann was chauffeured by Bev Smith in the new four-passenger Thunderbird he contributed to the Heart Fund. Others in the parade were Mr. and Mrs. Porfirio Rubirosa in a red Ferrari; Mrs. Emilio Tagle in a white Aston-Martin, the only 1958 model in this country, lent by Shakespear Motors for the occasion; Mr. and Mrs. John Turner in a white Buick; Mrs. Tanya Louis d'Orsay played his accordion while the cars passed before the spectators. Mr. Alexis Obolensky announced the procession.

While "Heart Day" was the most spectacular of the season at the Polo Grounds, the regular Sunday matches preceding it were colorful and exciting. On February 2d, the Detroit CCC team clashed with the Palm Beach quartet for the Sydney King Russell trophy, awarded to the winning Detroit team by Mrs. Russell, accompanied by Sammy Kaye and singer Mary McCoy. The score was 11-10, with Clarence Combs scoring 6 of Detroit's total goals.

The Kerrigan trophy was presented on January 26th to the winning Circle F Solocup team, which scored 9 goals to Palm Beach's 8. Singing stars Julie Wilson and Phil Reagan awarded the trophy and silver plates.

During the week preceding this game, Mr. and Mrs. Porfirio Rubirosa, Mr. and Mrs. Emilio Tagle and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brooks III hosted a cocktail party at the Poin-ciana Room of the Palm Beach Towers to introduce the Palm Beach International Polo Club boxholders to the polo players.

Many of the top polo stars of the country are appearing in this season's polo matches at the West Palm Beach Polo Grounds, among them 10-goaler Cecil Smith, 9-goal star Harold Barry, and 8-goalers Billy Mayer and Clarence Combs.

LIFE IN A DISTINGUISHED RESORT HOTEL has many satisfactions beyond those of fine accommodations and service. Many hotels offer first class services, and one is the Brazilian Court.

It is probably for this reason that each Winter sees the return of so many of its guests to Brazilian Court, for life at the hotel is gay without being noisy and chic without being gaudy. Its lively yet leisurely atmosphere and beautiful tropical surroundings are being enjoyed during the current season by guests from many parts of the country.

New York Staters at Brazilian Court this season have included Mr. and Mrs. John Smaltz, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Peck, Mrs. T. H. Roulston, Mr. and Mrs. Montagu Hackett, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bishop, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Kern, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McGovern, Mrs. Edward C. Garratt, Mr. and Miss Helen Williams, Miss Marguerite Allen, Miss Brenda Landsdown and Mr. and Mrs. Senter Crook are among many noted at dinner in the Loggia.

The Greenbrier's "LITTLE WHITE HOUSE"

By Patricia Ventura

Cummins

The Greenbrier's Virginia Wing—a "Little White House"—contains the luxurious Presidential Suite, a duplex apartment which can accommodate 14 persons.

The pièce de résistance of The Greenbrier is its Presidential Suite, one of the most popular of the resort's many apartments. Literally a luxurious home within the hotel, the Presidential Suite is the favorite of couples vacationing together, as well as the nation's top executives.

Because the Presidential Suite is occupied a great part of the time, visitors to the resort are disappointed that they are not able to tour the magnificent rooms. Hence this description.

Called the "Little White House" when it was occupied by President Eisenhower, and his illustrious company, the President of Mexico and the Prime Minister of Canada, the Presidential Suite was added to the Virginia Wing of the hotel in 1948. Decorated by Dorothy Draper, noted for her unique color combinations and trend-setting fashions in the field of decor, it has been occupied by the world's notables.

Miss Draper has turned the Suite into a lovely home reminiscent of Colonial days when special pieces were imported from England, Italy and France to add glamour to home of the new land. Conservative in decor, the Suite has only one ultra-modern room . . . the office, with its color scheme of tan, features desk, chairs, and walls of blonde oak.

The duplex apartment is composed of 16 rooms and six baths, long corridors and a spacious entrance hall. It can accommodate 14 persons. In addition to the bedrooms there are a powder lounge in pale pink, an oblong dining room, a serving pantry and kitchen, a study and office, a drawing room, upstairs sitting rooms and a utility room.

In the dining room is a mahogany table large enough to seat 10 comfortably without boards. An antique Mason's Oak English soup tureen, flanked by two silver candelabra, stands on the table. Potted plants flourish in an old-fashioned wine cooler at one end of the room and at the other end is a wood-burning fireplace. The walls are covered with delicate gold flock made in England

A photographic portrait of President Eisenhower is a focal point in the study. The chairs in the room are upholstered in patent leather to match the couch; rose curtains of raw silk hang at the windows to add warmth to the room. A Chippendale break-front — one of the most valuable old pieces in the hotel — with a library of books fills one side of the study.

The drawing room is one of the more spacious rooms in the Presidential Suite. Low sofas and chairs with pure silk slipcovers in gold, rose and blue adorn the room. A card table topped with green felt stands in one corner. An old wine cellar with a tiny brass lock has been turned into a side table, while antique Italian mirrors, decorated with gilt Phoenix birds, hang on either side of the walls nearest to the entrance. Carved Italian console tables rest under each mirror. A wood-burning fireplace, a grand piano and Hi-Fi help provide all the comforts of home.

In the entrance hall an "old South" atmosphere is predominant. Flowing plants in huge oaken buckets stand in a corner of the room — near the glass window which covers one wall from ceiling to floor and through which rays of sunlight stream when the draperies are opened wide. Chenille carpeting, the delicate yellow shade of sulphur, covers the hallways.

The many bedrooms are each distinctive. Some are papered; some painted a gleaming white or soft pink. Throughout, the draperies are complimented by criss-cross organdy glass curtains. The guest rooms, all comfortably furnished, have adjacent baths, while two single rooms have a bath in common.

Two of the larger guest rooms are adjacent to a rectangular shaped sitting room, which may be converted to a bedroom when the need arises. A wood-burning fireplace, a card table, a comfortable couch and a mahogany desk accent the informality of the room.

Near the bedrooms is a maid's utility room with ironing board and clothes washing and drying facilities.

The bathrooms — all white — have walls decorated with standard floral designs. Tele-and gold draperies of brocaded satin hang at the wide windows.

Adjacent to the dining room is a serving pantry which adjoins the kitchen. Furnished with stainless steel equipment, each room has a large refrigerator and wall cabinets. There is a dishwashing machine in the pantry and a stove, breakfast trays, and a complete set of cooking utensils in the kitchen. Guests can "cook in" if they wish as the Suite may be rented on the European Plan.

phones are in each room and servant's bells are located throughout the Suite.

Engravings of generals and other leading statesmen are prominent in the decor. The most important, perhaps, is that of George Washington in resplendent uniform which hangs in the hallway... a symbol of the dignity and tradition surrounding this 180-year-old resort... a resort whose existence virtually spans the national existence of our country.

Actor Vincent Price stayed at The Palm Beach Towers when he was in Palm Beach to appear at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse.

THE PALM BEACH TOWERS has been playing host to many celebrities this year as it did last year.

During February Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cummings, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Talbot and Vincent Price were guests there while in Palm Beach for appearances at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse.

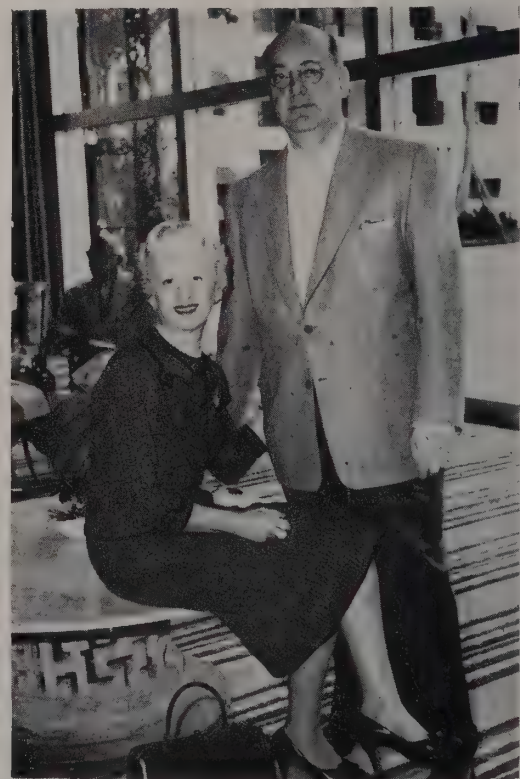

Activities for the guests have been plentiful. In addition to the two swimming pools at the Cabana Club, the putting green has been put in and there is also a golf driving range on the lakefront of The Palm Beach Towers. There have been putting tournaments, and shuffleboard tournaments as well. Frequently, on Sunday evenings, there have been movies outside with refreshments served after.

Mr. Emmett Conniff, manager of the hotel, anticipates a continuous program of special events throughout the year as the year round business progresses.

SOMEHOW SPRING DAYS AT PONTE VEDRA are peacefully refreshing—from the early morning dip in the blue Atlantic until the late evening stroll, every waking moment is filled with uninterrupted pleasure.

The absence of regimentation is noted at this Florida resort but significantly prevalent is the carefully planned daily schedule of events with The Inn's gracious Social Hostess. She can be seen with a group of vacationers out on the Putting Green or Pitch and Putt Course where a tournament is in progress, arranging a bridge session in the Lounge, introducing newcomers at the weekly cocktail party in the Cactus Room or making sure that everyone enjoys a special game night. All of these events help make the Ponte Vedra sojourn a particularly happy one.

Mr. William Ruffin of Durham, N. C., will certainly agree that his recent Ponte Vedra stay was all he expected and more. The reason being that he made a hole-in-one while playing in the foursome consisting of Messrs. Halbert M. Jones of Laurinburg, N. C.; R. O. Huffman of Drexel, N. C., and

Other golfers seen on the course (not quite so lucky of course) have been Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Hargesheimer of Philadelphia; Mrs. W. L. Dawson of Ridgefield, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Weston of Pittsburgh, and

Mr. and Mrs. Mead Lewis of New York City.

Along with vacationers at The Inn, enjoying the facilities of Ponte Vedra Club, are members of the cottage colony. Down from Garden City, N. Y., for a stay in the Clyde Harris cottage are Dr. F. B. Howe of East Orange, N. J., are enjoying a visit in the Lagoon Apartments.

These and other returning vacationers are finding that evenings spent dancing to the music of the Bruce Thomas Orchestra is perhaps more fun than ever before. The Cactus Room is filled with rhythm when the musicians give forth with the latest tunes. Naturally the old favorites are not forgotten either, and with this combination these even-

THE ISLAND OF NEW PROVIDENCE beckoned as a tropical paradise for skippers and crews gazing into the horizon during the 20th Annual Miami-Nassau Ocean Race.

Nineteen sleek yachts left Miami on February 4th pushed through rough seas by moderate winds. However, the seas became calm, the wind died, and the 56-foot light blue Rob Roy working to windward in a light morning breeze, sailed across the Nassau finish line at 8:08.50 the morning of the 6th, first to finish.

Skipper and owner, August Boorstein of Manhasset, L. I., N. Y., president of Rob Roy Company, and his crew with greeted with booming rockets set off for each yacht by enthusiastic Denis and Peggy Hickman, operators of the Pilot House Club.

While crew John Rodstrom of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Oliver Kaufman Jr. of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Jakob Isbrandtsen of Riverside, Conn., lingered with spectators discussing race maneuvers, Mrs. Boorstein herded the others up for breakfast.

On hand to give them a special greeting was Bennett C. Macgregor, president of Bethlehem Steel Co. (Canada) of Nassau, who took the vice president of Bethlehem Steel Co., Dan Stohmeier of Scarsdale, N. Y., in tow during the crew's breakfast. Others with them from the Rob Roy were Victor Romagna of Port Washington, N. Y.; writer Frank Rohr of New York City, and Bill Turtle of Nassau.

Second to finish was Miamian Sam Zorovich's Malabar XIII, a white-hulled 54-foot ketch. Among the crew taking off for the Pilot House Club's comfort were Henry N.

Carleton Mitchell of Nassau and Annapolis, Md., aboard his famed Finisterre. Crewing with him on the 38-foot yawl were R. H. "Bobby" Symonette of Nassau, Jim Crawford of Bradenton, Fla., and New York City, Ed Kelly of Sudbury, Mass., Henry Davis and Richard Bertram of Miami, Fla., and George Hinman, vice commodore of the New York Yacht Club.

Swarming over the warm, sun drenched decks of the Salty when it docked at the Nassau Yacht Haven were the proud wives of the "Georgia Creek Sailors." It was the first ocean voyage for the skipper and owner David Morrison, and his crew, all from Savannah, Ga. Crew members on board were Ross Allen, Robert Denmere, Robert Miller, Sam G. Adler Jr., J. D. Ryals and bachelor John Baker.

Waiting impatiently with the crowd on the club roof were Mogu's rooters, wife of the owner from St. Petersburg, Fla., Mrs. Fred Guggenheimer; Mrs. A. E. Montrieff of Quantica, Va.; and Mrs. Maurice Harrison Jr. of Miami Shores, Fla. With them were the Guggenheimer's guests, Mr. and Mrs. George N. Hersey, also of St. Petersburg.

MIDSEASON AT CAMELBACK INN is reunion time for many of the sunlovers, for many guests are veterans of season after season in the friendly winter sunshine on the purple slopes of Mummy Mountain.

The end of February brings with it the gala Washington's Birthday Ball, a popular annual soiree; the Snowball Golf Tournament played on the spectacular fairways of the Paradise Valley Country Club, and the Gainey Putting Tournament, all planned by the Jack Stewarts, who have owned and managed the Inn for 22 seasons.

Midseason, too, finds many activities available in the Valley of the Sun. Turf Paradise is open with its fine horse racing and the spring practice games are open nearby, where baseball fans can watch the Baltimore Orioles play at the winter nest just four miles away in Scottsdale.

In downtown Phoenix, the Giants play and the Chicago Cubs and Cleveland Indians are not too far, so that sunlazers can pick their favorite team for preseason rooting.

Among the recent vacationers at the Inn was John Fetzer of Kalamazoo, chairman of the board of the Detroit Tigers and a prominent in the world of television broadcasting as well.

Mrs. Willard E. Walbridge of Houston acquiring a suntan during her stay at Camelback Inn. She was a February vacationer at the Inn with her husband.

The long, dreary winter has sent many prominents West from the Eastern Seaboard.

Wool broker Arthur O. Wellman and his wife are on hand from Osterville, Mass. On hand from the same community are the Erastus Badgers, whose lovely home in Osterville was photographed this month to be featured in one of the national magazines.

From New England, too, Wesdames R. J. Sullivan and P. J. McGovern of Worcester, Mass., and the Stephen H. Garners Jr., of Attleboro, Mass.

From North Attleboro until the end of March are sisters-in-law Mesdames Ralph W. Shields and Mrs. Pauline S. Jencks of Rhode Island.

Golfing and putting daily in the warm sunshine from South Dartmouth, Mass., are the Patrick Sweeneys, vacationers at the Inn for many seasons.

Back again is the story for the Edwin F. Leaches of the same community.

A foursome from Swampscott, Mass., the Thomas W. Rogers and the C. I. Rands, is seen daily on the golf course nearby.

The golden sunshine and prospect of leisurely hours relaxing poolside lured many New Yorkers to the Inn midseason and from surrounding areas in nearby New Jersey and Connecticut.

A short trip by air . . . just a matter of hours . . . stepping off into brilliant Arizona sun and the enchantment of the resort areas were the quick route to relaxing for the E. A. Pumphreys, knitting magnate from New York, the G. H. Armstrongs of Bronxville, the Louis V. Asteritas, prominent Manhattan banker.

A Manhattan foursome who will conclude their sunland holiday shortly includes the Edmond H. Guggenheims and the Alvin V. Filers.

Avid golfers and spending time, too, following the desert bridal paths nearly are the J. S. Rockefellers of Greenwich, Conn., here until the end of March.

From White Plains is Dr. Ralph T. Di Pace, friend of the Edwin Michaelians, who vacationed at the Inn early season en route to the national mayor's conferences.

Sunning from Long Island are annual vacationers, the W. M. Petersons of Lynbrook.

New Jersey is currently well-represented. Mrs. H. E. Jones is here from Hohokus with two daughters, Mrs. Harold Roberts and Mrs. W. P. McCarthy, and four grandchildren taking an active part in the Hopalong College program for children.

Joining her family, the John Deitrichs of Summit, N. J., for two weeks of spring holiday is a daughter, Judith.

The R. S. Bains, Buffalo executive and his wife, stroll in the winter sunshine at Camelback Inn on the Arizona desert near Phoenix with a trio of daughters clad in colorful pedal pushers and patchwork shirts. In their look-alike togs are Marsha, 12, "Penny," 11, and Susan, 8, all of whom are busy with Hopalong College, the Inn's famous children's program. Tennis and golf are favorite pastimes of Mrs. Bain and her husband, President of the Wolverine Winterseal Co.

Returning from their home in Locust, N. J., are the Prall W. Lamberts; and Mrs. Norman Wiss and Mrs. W. Denton Taylor are sunning from Millburn.

The Keystone State colony is beginning to swell, too. T. F. Soles of Meadville, head of the board of Talon, Inc., is on hand until the end of March with Mrs. Soles.

Seen at poolside tables during the popular buffet luncheon served daily in the warm sunshine are many Philadelphia suburbanites. The W. N. Stilwells are back from Radnor, the Dan M. McGills have returned from Rosemont, the J. H. Thompsons Jr. are acquiring becoming suntans away from their home in Kennett Square.

Back from nearby Conshohocken, Pa., are the W. A. Whitesides, who golf daily away Popular Bing Crosby was among the Camelback Inn vacationers this season who are avid followers of the fairways. Here, he leaves for the golf course with a Phoenix, Ariz., friend, Gray Madison, former president of the Paradise Valley Country Club, whose spectacular course joins the Camelback Inn grounds. During his stay, Crosby participated in the Phoenix Open Tournament.

from their home fairways at the Plymouth Country Club in the East. Golfing daily, too, are Philadelphia's H. N. Ramseys.

Prominents from many other parts of the nation are enjoying the resort inevitables at the Inn. From the West Coast are Philip Chandler, vice-president and general manager of its Los Angeles Times, sunning with Mrs. Chandler and Mr. and Mrs. Tennant Bryan of Maryland.

Yachting enthusiast Sven Salen is here from Stockholm, Sweden, for his annual stay with his attractive wife until mid-March. They are familiar figures in East Coast yachting circles with their Bolero, which broke the all-time records in the Newport to Bermuda races two seasons ago.

Bing Crosby was an Inn guest recently while he played in the Phoenix Open golf tournament, which drew many celebrities to the Valley of the Sun. Vacationing at the Inn, too, while he played in the tournament were Mr. and Mrs. Bud Wilkinson of Norman, Okla., head coach at the University of Oklahoma.

From Ohio were the R. L. Grays of Middletown, president of Armco Steel, and here for five weeks from Cincinnati are the Ernest Daniels. Mr. Daniels is chairman of the board of the International Shoe Company.

Back from Shaker Heights are annual vacationers, the Wilson H. Moriartys, president of National Malleable Steel and his wife, renewing acquaintance with friends from past seasons, the Whitney Bowns of Livonia, N. WITH EVERYBODY SLIPPING AND SLIDING into their nearest and dearest ski resort — we decided to slip into our "Rolls" and go whizzing off to our nearest and dearest fizzing resort — Vichy, yes, VICHY, "La Reine des Villes d'Eaux" — right in the middle of all this snow . . .

Vichy is now in hectic preparation for one of the most fabulous summers in its 2,000 fabulous years of existence. What with all the millions of people coming to the Continent this year for the World Exposition in Brussels and the other millions coming for the 100th anniversary of the world-famous Religious Capital of Lourdes, then add to the total, all the millions of annual visitors to Vichy — happily situated right in the middle of Lourdes and Brussels — that gives prospects of a major turnout this season, and Vichy wants to be prepared!!!

They're off — for the trotting races at Easter; then the Gala Opening Ball the beginning of May; followed by trap shooting contests with clay pigeons, and golf and tennis matches. The beginning of June starts the International Bridge Tournament; the International Horse Show; and their IXth General Congress of the Cinema, attended by the stars and producers of the films shown: Quite naturally the Cinema Congress is full of balls and stars . . . Beginning the end of June and continuing until the first of September, one is lost in the magical-world of Opera and Ballet: The highlight in Ballet will be the appearance of the Ballet of Moscow. And in Opera, Franca Duval of La Scala will return this year with other members of the famous Milan Opera Company. We have discovered that Franca is an American. She was born in Brooklyn!!! She has sung in America, but it was La Scala of Milan that made a star of her . . . Also the end of June will be the world championship live pigeon shoot. The champion of the United States, Mrs. Leon Mandel, wife of the president of Mandel's of Chicago, will arrive in time for this event, accompanied by her husband, who seems to have been trapped into combining business with pleasure . . .

Mr. Pierre Coulon, Mayor of Vichy, who was to be host at the fabulous reception at Claridge's in London.

July brings horse racing on one of the prettiest tracks of the Continent; International Boating Regattas; the start of the bullfight season . . . dog shows, and a two-week golf tournament.

August spotlights an Automobile-Elegance-Competition; the Patron-Saint's Day festivities; Rotary and Lions Clubs Galas; International Tennis championship, and the famous Galea Cup.

In September, there's a big folklore-festival; and a competition-showing of watch-dogs and police-dogs from all over the world . . . Luckily for everybody concerned, that France lifted the "brief" barrier against dogs entering the country. I say brief, because the new law was passed the beginning of December, but within a matter of weeks there were so many complaints to the government, including those of the National Tourist Office, that something had to be done . . . After all, why does France have so many more foreign visitors than England, for example . . . One answer might be that England doesn't have Vichy, and then another might be — every other person who comes to France wants to bring a dog along too . . .

Apropos of England — Mayor Pierre Coulon of Vichy was to arrive in London March the 3d, to give a big reception at Claridge's. The guests were to have consisted of political personalities; members of the Diplomatic Corps; and over 120 doctors. While there, Mayor Coulon was to issue invitations to 32 English personalities who will arrive in Vichy from London the 22d of May to spend a glorious holiday as guests of the city . . . The English Airline "Skyways" has recently decided on a direct daily flight from London to Vichy and return . . . (Why doesn't somebody start a Palm Beach-Vichy circuit? . . .)

Among the international personalities who will be guests of the city of Vichy during the haute-saison we've noted American Ambassador to France Amory Houghton and Mrs. Houghton; the Shah of Persia and Queen Soraya; Mr. Henry Luce, president of Time and Life, with his charming wife, Clare Booth, our former Ambassador to Italy. Incidentally Mrs. Luce received an award as the outstanding Catholic layman of the year 1957; Mr. Eugene Black, president of the World Bank for Reconstruction and Development; Mr. A. N. Spanel, chairman of International Latex Corp., and Mrs. Spanel; Mr. Mony Ferst, chairman of International Scripto Corp. of Atlanta, Ga.; of course, Mrs. Barney Balaban will be there. She says she loves Vichy, and one might well believe it — she never misses a season . . . and last, but by no means least, our dearly beloved and be-knighted Douglas Fairbanks Jr., and his lovely wife. Incidentally Douglas is the only American to become titled in England: He is a personal friend of the British royal family, and is a regular at Buckingham Palace. We might even add, a regular at Vichy, too . . .

Mr. A. N. Spanel, shown in Vichy when the city named a day for him. With him is his lovely wife holding the large bouquet of flowers presented her during the ceremony.

APROPOS OF 100TH ANNIVERSARIES: Comte Ivo Vojnovic was one of the cultural founders of Yugoslavia during the reign of Alexander Ier, and is world renowned as a poet and dramatist. President Tito, not having found someone capable of replacing Comte Ivo in the hearts of the people of Yugoslavia, has continued to hold the annual festival of his works at Dubrovnik.

This year is the centenaire of Comte Ivo and all Yugoslavia is celebrating: the papers and theatres, and even expositions of his works have been organized in Belgrade, Zagreb and Dubrovnik. Absolutely everybody is talking about this great poet who announced the liberation and Union of Southern Yugoslavia against the Austrian-Hungarian monarchy, and everybody is whispering that behind this festival he will again be the precursor of liberty. This time — against communism . . .

PARIS: Since the Frenchmen are still (most of them) royalists at heart, the elegance one finds at a reception at Elysee Palace, the French equivalent of the White House, is very much reminiscent of the by-gone days at "court." One of the most beautiful and picturesque of the annual receptions there, is the one given for the Corps Diplomatique. There are 71 countries that maintain diplomatic relations with France, and the unusual diadems and rivieres of diamonds; fabulous jewels; the grandes robes du soir; and the exotic gowns of the wives of the Oriental diplomats, mingled with the white-tie habit and decorations of the men, along with the formal uniforms of many countries, all blend together to provide a really unforgettable evening. Every year it seems to become more fabulous than the year before.

This year the reception included about a thousand guests from all over the world, and was preceded by a formal dinner for 238 privileged guests . . . The table of honor was of course presided over by President Rene Coty, and consisted of 18 places: the other guests were placed ten each, at twenty-two oval tables. In the background the Garde Republicaine in full dress uniform played quiet dinner music, while other members of the Garde also in full uniform, drew their swords to form an honor guard for the arriving guests . . . The Palace servants were dressed in l'habit a la francaise: black silk uniforms, long stockings, buckled shoes, and epees at their side.

President Coty, resplendent with his decorations, received guests, assisted by his oldest daughter, Mrs. Genevieve Egloff — who, incidentally, was the interpreter at a Palace dinner for President Eisenhower in December, and his younger daughter, Mrs. George.

The menu consisted of: consomme, filet of sole Cherbourg style, Bresse chicken, goose liver, hearts of lettuce salad, cheeses, ice-cream-parfait and petits-fours. Accompanying wines were: '53 Riesling, '37 Chateau Haut-Brion, '53 Chateau Corton Grancey, and of course finishing with champagne — '52 Heidsieck Dry Monopole . . .

President Coty escorted to his table Baronne Guillaume, wife of the Belgian Ambassador, and French Minister of Foreign Affairs Christian Pineau escorted Mrs. Serge Vינו

APROPOS OF UNUSUAL DECORATION AND BEAUTIFUL SETTINGS — reminds us of our recent afternoon spent sipping champagne sitting contentedly under heavy-laden orange trees. This happy scene took place on Faubourg St. Honore, in the house of Lanvin-Castillo. The orange trees were real, and so was the contentment of the guests, among whom we noted: Mrs. Egloff, daughter of President Coty; Lady Jebb with her daughter Stella; Pamela Churchill; Lady Duff Cooper; Princess Poniatowski; Baron and Baronne de Cabrol; Barbara Schick; Mrs. Michard-Pellissier; and Mrs. Felix Gaillard, wife of the French Premier, who is now in the process of buying a whole new wardrobe of after-maternity fashions. The Duke of Edinburgh often flies the royal plane back and forth from the country estate of Sandringham and Buckingham Palace, and quite often he is accompanied by Queen Elizabeth. The other day after we all went to the London airport to see Queen Mother Elizabeth off on her trip around the world, Prince Philip calmly put on his glasses and climbed into the cockpit of his plane with Princess Margaret. Destination — Sandringham. Do you see anything odd about that? No... Well, neither did I, but quite a lot of Englishmen don't agree with us. It seems they feel that if Prince Philip has to wear glasses, the Queen isn't completely safe in his care, they would prefer another pilot... but the disturbing little detail seems to be that after all Philip is still the husband of their Queen... After the first shock wears off, everything will probably settle down to normal, and as a matter of fact, so will all the planes piloted by Prince Philip. He was taught to fly by the best that England has to offer — members of the instructors corps of the Royal Air Force...

A group of British actors plan to sell at a charity ball several intimate articles of apparel belonging to the late Queen Victoria. They are monogrammed with the initials VR (Victoria Regina) and were donated to the charity affair by a London tailor, a certain Mr. Cameron, who bought the precious dessous de la gloire about 33 years ago. He says he got them from an eccentric old maid who deigned not to say where and how she acquired them...

BRUSSELS: Anybody know where we Americans can find a quick 2,000,000 dollars, for what you might call defense purposes??? The United States pavilion at the coming World Fair is taking shape as one of the most attractive structures in international exposition history, but might be obliged to operate on a part-time basis owing to inadequate funds. With the 44-nation fair scheduled to open on April 17, the American exhibition is threatened with having to close at 6 p.m. every day. The huge crowds expected to attend the Fair will however be able to visit the Russian pavilion, located just across the street, until 11 o'clock every night.

The atmosphere of the American building is hospitable, airy, and imaginative, it has a handsome, gently ascending terrace filled with apple trees, that leads to the circular American pavilion designed by New York architect, Edward D. Stone. It appears apt to contribute to producing the "emotional reaction and illuminating experience" that United States Commissioner General Howard S. Cullman says he hopes for. However, unless Mr. Cullman is able to obtain the additional $2,054,000, the American exposition will confront numerous other difficulties besides the threat of closing early: Notably $375,000 is the minimum required to increase the scale of American artistic representation. Even with this amount, it will probably be impossible to overcome the Russian lead in this field. Moreover, the United States display at the 16-nation Hall of Science exhibition is expected to suffer in quality unless another $150,000 is made available. By contrast, the Russians are going all out in their hall of science preparations.

In addition, it may not be possible to print 10,000,000 tri-lingual pavilion maps to give as free souvenirs to the visitors to the American exhibition. About 35,000,000 visitors are expected to visit the fair during its seven-month run. The estimated cost of printing the maps, or souvenirs, is three cents a copy, or a total of $300,000. By contrast, we hear from Belgian printers that the Russians have signed contracts for over $1,000,000 for printed give-aways to be handed out at their pavilion. We understand also that the Russians plan to print a daily multi-lingual newspaper.

THE SEA ISLAND SENIORS GOLF TOURNAMENT, always a drawing card for the nation's top amateur golfers (in the over 50 category) attracted the largest field ever this time. Played on January 31-February 1, the tourney boasted 107 entrants from 59 cities of the U.S. and represented virtually every section of the country. Listed among the players were some of the nation's outstanding business and professional men, as well as a host of prominent retired men. Some of them held amateur golfing titles in their respective home cities, and several were tied at 161. Mr. Darby won in a sudden death playoff. This is the second time Mr. Darby has played to sudden death for the Seniors title! Coincidentally, he tied for top score last year but lost to J. Walcott Brown of Sea Girt, N. J., in the playoff. You can bet the title will be cherished exactly twice as much, therefore.

The golfers were divided into four age brackets: Class D — 50 to 59 years; Class C — 60 to 65 years; Class B — 65 to 70 years, and members of the United States Seniors Team who distinguished themselves in Europe last summer.

Altogether it was a brilliant showing; there were some wonderful parties in honor of the eminent group and the men, while playing the second 18 of the 36-hole tournament in high winds which sometimes reached a 50-mile-an-hour velocity, brought credit to themselves on the difficult though beautiful Sea Island golf course.

Results of the tournament: Col. Alfred Ednie, Greenwell Springs, La., and W. Freeman Darby of neighboring St. Simons Island, Class A — 70 years of age and over. The oldest golfer entered was affable, youthful looking Sidney Hogerton, 82-year-old retired A. T. & T. executive from Garden City, L. I., who, while not winning any titles these days, acquitted himself very well, indeed.

In addition to the title winner, top men on the totem pole were: John W. Roberts of Columbus, Ohio, and Maurice R. Smith of Kansas City (both members of the U.S. Seniors Team); Walter L. Cope, Jacksonville, Fla.; Dr. Gene Kistler, Chattanooga, Tenn.; W. W. Krauss, Brunswick, Ga.; Harold B. Ryder, Nantucket, Mass.; Charles H.

While the men were busy playing golf at the club, many of their wives were entered in a special "Seniors' Wives" putting tournament on the putting green of the Cloister Hotel. Mrs. W. H. NAPLES is rapidly becoming the site for so many major golf tournaments that it has been aptly titled "The Golf Capitol of the West Coast." Mr. Henry B. Watkins, President of the Naples Golf and Beach Club, is an ardent linksman. He has been greatly instrumental in the tremendous growth of the city of Naples by the development of the Beach Club Hotel's excellent 18-hole championship course which is superbly maintained. The links are responsible for bringing people into Naples from all sections of the country who are avid golf enthusiasts — and there are many.

The Third Annual Naples Seniors Invitational Golf Tournament recently took place on the Beach Club links. There was a record field of 150 entries with over twenty states represented, including Canada. The

Mr. Gilbert J. Swain from San Francisco graciously commented that the prizes awarded at the tournament were just like the food served in the club — "out of this world."

Plans were made to repeat this tournament next season — and it will be a sellout according to the tremendous response by this year's participants. Many social activities and extra golfing events were on the program. A lovely cocktail party for all contestants and their families was held in the Harlequin Patio and a lavish banquet was served in the Reef Room to award the prizes at the close of the tourney. Col. Brilliant Edinburgh Festival Program Announced

SIX SYMPHONY ORCHESTRAS, two opera companies and performances by such soloists as Yehudi Menuhin, Irmgard Seefried and Claudio Arrau are among the highlights of the 12th Annual Edinburgh Festival, scheduled for August 24 to September 13, the British Travel Association has announced.

Since the end of World War II, the festival of music, drama and art in the Scottish capital has attracted artists and audiences from all parts of the world.

The Vienna Symphony Orchestra will be heard under the direction of Josef Krips and Carlo Maria Giulini. Other orchestras scheduled are the Royal Danish Orchestra; Spanish National Orchestra, Madrid; Philharmonic Orchestra; Royal Opera House Orchestra, Covent Garden and the Scottish National Orchestra.

Fifteen performances will be given by the Stuttgart State Opera under the baton of Lovro Von Matacic. The operas will include Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde," Mozart's "Die Entführung aus dem Serail," Weber's "Euryanthe" and Strauss's "Capriccio."

The Spanish National Orchestra and a full company from Madrid will present two works of Manuel da Falla — the opera "La Vida Breve," featuring Victoria de los Angeles, and the well-known ballet "The Three-Cornered Hat." In the latter work Antonio will dance the part of the Miller. Ataulfo Argenta will conduct these performances as well as the orchestra's concerts.

Ballet lovers will have the rare opportunity of seeing 12 new ballets created specially for the festival. Among the writers contributing to the ballet program will be the 21-year-old French novelist, Françoise Sagan. Bjorn Holmgren and George Skibine, two of the distinguished creators of new ballets, will also dance at the festival.

Also on the varied program will be chamber music concerts, art exhibitions, a Film Festival and a Highland games meeting.

Spectacular thrills will be provided by the Military Tattoo, to be presented by crack Scottish regiments on the esplanade of Edinburgh Castle. Performed at night by searchlight under the floodlight ramparts, it involves Highland dancing and precision marching to massed pipes and drums.

Reservations will be open on April 7, and because of the anticipated demand from all parts of the world, visitors are advised to place their orders on or about that date. Application should be addressed to your travel agent or to the Edinburgh Festival Society Ltd., Synod Hall, Castle Terrace, Edinburgh 1, Scotland.

A free folder giving details of the festival programs, as well as information on travel and accommodations, may be obtained by writing to the British Travel Association, 336 Madison Avenue, New York 17, New York.

THE HENRY M. FLAGLER STORY — WHITEHALL — PALM BEACH, expresses the spirit of America in its theme. Starting out alone in homespun clothes and on foot, this 14-year-old fortune seeker began building an empire.

The story of oil is one of the most colorful pages of America's industrial development. And as a Standard Oil magnate, Flagler's multi-million dollar fortune supported his dream of opening a new frontier in Florida.

Whitehall Hotel, while boasting every modern facility, retains the luxurious atmosphere and elegance of his private mansion. Its great salons, still dressed in exquisite art, were brought under Florida's most famous pioneer's direction from the most costly marts of the world.

Actually the structure is comprised of a hotel superimposed on a mansion — the hotel being constructed as a monument to his personal attainments.

Palm Beach, unlike many resorts of lesser lustre, didn't "spring up." It was planned as a magnificent playground for society by Henry Flagler. And society still flocks to his tropical retreat.

Seven spacious and elegantly furnished rooms of Whitehall surround a Palm Court. Modern Whitehall also embraces the newer eleven-story addition that forms the main part of the hotel. The mansion is a monument to a great era in American history when quality surpassed quantity. Whitehall houses treasures of art that can not be duplicated. In every detail the palatial residence is a simile of quiet beauty and dignity.

This country, Italy and France were combed in making and collecting the interior decorations. Exterior surroundings include spacious grounds, gardens and swimming pool that lend a luxurious setting for some of the world's most outstanding artisans. Broad circular drives lead beyond a traditional wrought-iron fence to a canopy entrance. Australian pines and palms create dignity for towering Doric entrance columns.

Sixteen solid marble Ionian pillars support the vast ornamental ceiling of the entrance hall. Seven varieties of imported marble are combined in gradations of pale pink, dove gray, to muted shades of blue, green, and violet.

In European tradition the ceiling of Marble Hall has specially executed oil paintings. Hand-carved period furniture combines gold leaf with jewel-like upholstery hues. The American beauty red carpeting is enhanced by frosty whiteness of a marble floor.

Guests in dinner-dress on Wednesday and Saturday evenings lend grace and cordiality to this magnificent setting. Sunday concerts are embellished by the extraordinary acoustics.

The Palm Beach Country Club — choice of golfers — is busy with an attractive schedule especially for Whitehall guests. Golf tournaments have been an every week affair. Excellent fairways added particular enjoyment for the all-out, all-day fun.

A fleet of hotel motor cars express guests on to Whitehall Sun and Surf Club. Here luncheon dancing, swimming in the immense salt water pool and tennis are available.

Enjoying guest facilities at the widely known Gold Coast club were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Philbin, Mr. and Mrs. William Rolfe, Mrs. Harry Berger, Jackie Gleason, well-known names in the television or sports realm.

Among annual guests at the Whitehall who enjoyed a full program of delightful entertainment were Mrs. Leo Pollak — whose contributions through sculpture to the U.S. have twice resulted in the nation's most distinguished service awards. Her husband was detained in Washington by his work on the guided missile program.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Jacobs, Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Lifton, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Jay Emanuel, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kimmelman, New York City; Mr. and Mrs. Louis Seley; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rosenfeld; Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Burg; Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Gryzmich; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Spector; Mrs. Charles Hayes; Mr. Monte S. Cosen; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Schaye were only a few of numerous interesting arrivals.

Much credit for this all-round distinctive group goes to Mr. A. M. Sonnabend, President of Whitehall, and associate owner of other large and successfully operated hotels. Ever in demand, popular manager Mr. Larry Borsten insures the success of Whitehall's plan. Miss Philomene Spillane, Social Hostess, adds dignity and beauty to complete the program.

Classic elegance in motorcars: The Lincoln Premiere Landau.

THE NEW LINCOLN . . . inspired by the Continental

The one fine car that offers the enduring appeal of a classic

The New Lincoln is a fresh, distinctively new personality in the fine car field.

Immediately, you will see it is the one car that deserves to be called a modern classic . . . styled and crafted in the Continental tradition.

Perhaps—by simply assuming that the fine car you judged best three, four, or even ten years ago still rates top choice—you've been depriving yourself of a great deal of pleasure.

To be sure, we suggest you inspect The New Lincoln—with an open mind and a critical eye.

On the road, The New Lincoln lets you rediscover the rare pleasures of fine car motoring.

It has a new, 375-hp. engine that barely whispers, because it is built to a whole new standard of precision tolerances. And thanks to a new single unit body and frame, it has a quietness of ride formerly achieved only through hand-crafting.

Clearly, The New Lincoln is the one fine car that offers the enduring appeal of a classic.

OUT OF A BRILLIANT PAST... A SUPREME TRIUMPH!

Only from the great traditions of Cadillac could there come a motor car as surpassingly fine as the creation you see here. It's the Cadillac car for 1958—a brilliant achievement in all the qualities that make it the Standard of the World. And paramount among these is the practical satisfaction it renders. From every standpoint, the Cadillac car has become an even wiser purchase for an even wider group of motorists. Whether your favorite is the Sixty-Two Coupe or the Eldorado Brougham, we invite you to inspect its Fleetwood coachcrafting and to spend an hour at the wheel.

Yachting in Palm Beach Waters

By Charles Wieland

The Vixen, 20-foot Flying Dutchman, owned by Mr. James Van Voast, of Palm Beach, winner of the Sunburn Regatta at the Biscayne Bay Yacht Club, sail division. During the Winter, the Vixen participates in the numerous regattas in Florida.

THE YACHTING POPULATION in Palm Beach largely concentrated their cruising to the Florida Keys and local waters during the blue-water yachting season. Despite unseasonable weather which hampered extended cruising, local activity at the docks was good throughout the season.

Activity is expected to continue on the upsurge through April, when the yacht fleet which makes Palm Beach its Winter port of call, begins gradual return to Northern ports.

Colonel and Mrs. Leon Mandel, from Chicago, Ill., longtime Palm Beach yachting enthusiasts, were among the many yachtsmen extensively cruising the Southern waters. Living aboard the Carola, their 121-foot Mathis houseboat, they completed a successful ten-day cruise to Jacksonville, Fla., and made several trips to Miami.

After joining the Burger cruiser, Marjane III, in Miami, former Senator from New Jersey, Mark Anton, returned to the Brazilian Avenue Dock for a short visit. John J. Clancy from New Jersey and Joseph Shields from Old Westbury, L. I., were guests aboard the cruiser.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Goss from Winnetka, Ill., made an extended visit to the Brazilian Avenue Dock aboard the Maroli, their 36-foot power cruiser. They were joined by Miss Barbara Birkelund.

Adding to the colorful fleet of yachts at the Australian Avenue Dock is the Susabelle B., owned by Walter L. Barker from Nashua, N. H. Mr. and Mrs. Barker were joined by their daughter Susan and Mr. and Mrs. John Sullivan and their daughter Debbie, from Washington, D. C., on a successful extended cruise to the Florida Keys aboard the new Hutchins cruiser. (Continued on Page 8)

One of the few yachtsmen venturing on an extended cruise was James Kimberly, from Neenah, Wis., who departed from the Palm Beach Yacht Club Dock for an extended cruise to Cuba, aboard his ocean sailer, Curlew II. Other vigorous sailors were Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Taylor from Cold Spring, L. I., who cruised the Bahama waters aboard their new 59-foot sailer, the Barunita, which has been berthed at the Biltmore Hotel Dock for the season.

The Silver Mist, sleek Trumpy cruiser owned by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Stone from York, Pa., made several cruises to the Key Largo Angler's Club. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Pratt returned to Virginia following an extended visit aboard the commodious craft at the Brazilian Avenue Dock.

With a forecast of continued favorable yachting weather, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis A. Edwards from Boothbay Harbor, Maine, departed from the Brazilian Avenue Dock for an extended cruise to the Bahamian Island waters aboard the Herselia, their 50-foot cutter.

Visiting yachts at the Australian Avenue Dock included the Joseph Conrad, with its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Huntington Hartford aboard; the Southwind, 83-foot Burger cruiser owned by Dr. Fernando de Riva from Havana, Cuba, and the new 65-foot Grebe cruiser, Loaf-a-Long, with Carl P. Schmidt from Baltimore, Md., aboard.

The arrival of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. van der Linde from Fragmore, S. C., aboard the Minwassin, their 46-foot Alen custom cruiser, highlighted the visiting yachts at the Brazilian Avenue Dock.

The Onika, sleek Burger cruiser berthed seasonally at the Australian Avenue Dock, completed several cruises to the Key Largo Angler's Club, with its owners, Mr. and Mrs. Benson Ford from Grosse Pointe, Mich., aboard.

Commander and Mrs. Victor C. P. Dreiske from Evanston, Ill., who are living aboard their handsome cruiser, Vicaries II, berthed at the Brazilian Avenue Dock, cruised to the Ocean Reef Club at North Key Largo. At a neighboring boat slip, the Huns-Buddy III, owned by John H. Richards from Philadelphia, Pa., continued to cruise the Palm Beach waters on week-end trips.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lauder from Greenwich, Conn., arrived at the Australian Avenue Dock for a brief visit aboard the 110-foot German-built cruiser, Vedersain, prior to returning to the Flamingo Hotel Dock at Miami Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt T. Dickinson returned to the Australian Avenue Dock aboard the 65-foot cruiser, Sybarita, following an extended cruise to the Ocean Reef Club in North Key Largo.

Following a cruise to the Key Largo Angler's Club, the Clare H. IV. returned to its seasonal berth at the Brazilian Avenue Dock with its owners, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Heerman, from Philadelphia, Pa., aboard.

WELL, WE FINALLY DECIDED to slip into our "Rolls" and roll into one of the gayest spots we could think of: What could be more appropriate than to end the Continental season at our nearest and dearest ski resort . . .

ST. MORITZ — PALACE HOTEL: Among the other internationals who apparently had the same idea we mention the Comte Theo Rossi di Montelera, Chairman of the Corviglia Ski Club. Naturally he's been here all season . . . The Baron and Baronne Heinrich von Thyssen, also here for the season, as usual . . . Among the less fortunate, Baron and Baronne Guy de Rothschild and their son Philippe came up from Paris for a couple of weeks . . . Madame Michel de Surmont and her two daughters, Madame Patricia Giraud and Miss Pamela de Surmont, made their annual appearance; Mr. Alfred Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach flew in with his private plane to visit his friends for a long week-end . . . Mr. Jaime Ortiz-Patino after a prolonged stay just left for Rome but intends to return to end the season with us . . . the Duc de Sangro, President of the Corviglia Ski Club, is here with his brother, Comte Nico de Sangro. Other recent arrivals include the Princess Pallavicini; Prince Raimondo Orsini; and Prince Piombino, all up from Rome. Mrs. Joan Baruch has been here all season . . . Mr. Miles Lowell arrived from New York via Amsterdam . . . Mrs. Warren Pershing arrived a few weeks before her ever occupied husband. Mr. Pershing was only able to join her the middle of February . . . Mr. Reinaldo Herrera Jr. came up from Caracas via New York . . . Duc de Cadaval is here for a month, along with the Baron de Rede . . . Mr. and Mrs. Arturo Lopez-Wilshaw are here with their family for the season . . . Mr. and Mrs. A. Sanchez de Larragoiti Jr. also here . . . Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mortimer, here from New York . . . Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dubonnet, from Paris . . . Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock with her daughter Peggy, who's here every season — all season, but not in one stretch . . . She makes several short flights . . . The Maharani of Baroda is dividing the season between Monte Carlo, her apartment in Paris, and as always the Palace . . . Mrs. John Howard and Mrs. Serge Semenenko, both from New York . . . Mrs. Jack Heinz also just arrived from New York . . . Mr. and Mrs. Alfredo Cernadas have also just arrived with plans to stay for the remainder of the winter . . . Mr. and Mrs. Donald B. Douglas of Chicago have been here all season — and so have Mr. and Mrs. Stavros Niarchos, with their children . . . Mr. Aristotle Onassis flew up from Monte Carlo to visit Mrs. Onassis and his two children, Alexander and Christina . . . Mr. Gianni Agnelli flies in with his plane for week-ends. Mrs. Agnelli and their children were here the whole month of February . . . Mrs. Madeleine Humphreys just arrived from New York after a short stop in Paris. Mrs. Humphreys plans to stay for the rest of the season. Incidentally, Mr. Albert Putnam Humphreys, son of the late Col. A. E. Humphreys, who made several fortunes in Colorado mining, plus Texas and Wyoming oil, is the only four-star member of the Corviglia Ski Club . . . Mr. and Mrs. Laureano Valenilla and their family are here from Caracas . . . Son Excellence Hernandez-Ron, the Venezuelan Ambassador to Brussels, is here for a good long rest before the international crowd starts the rush in Belgium . . . The Princess of Patiala; Mr. and Mrs. Tex (D. D.) Feldman; and Mr. and Mrs. Jaime del Amo, of Madrid, all plan to finish the season . . . The Comte and Comtesse Brando Brandolini are here for their annual visit. The Comtesse is the sister of Gianni Agnelli . . . Donna Marina Cicogno is up from Venice . . . and Baron de Gotor and Mr. and Mrs. Martinez-Bordiu, of Madrid . . . Sir Gordon and Lady Richards came over for a month, along with Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Guinness and Delores.

Other annual visitors include Prince Joachim von Furstemberg from Donau-Schingen; Admiral and Mrs. H. A. Flanigan from New York; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ritzberg, of Washington, D. C.; the Duchess de Fernan-Nunez, from Madrid, and the Countess de Maille, of Paris . . . It's also at the Palace, where (mothers take notice) one can find at any given moment at least a half-dozen of the world's most eligible young bachelors: To mention a few of our favorites — the handsome brothers John and Hugo Loudon, heirs to Shell oil millions; the equally handsome Hernando Franco, who divides his time between polo in South America and the ski slopes of St. Moritz; the dashing young Duke of Kent, who now has a ski race named after him; Prince Geraud de la Tour d'Auvergne, who looks so much like his cousin, King Baudoin of the Belgians that often on his trips to Brussels he runs into cases of mistaken identity; Pierre Barrachin, the son of the French Minister, and heir to one of the greatest fortunes in France; and to make it a good bakers-half-dozen, we add that young, handsome, and ever-so-charming Ambassador from El Salvador, Son Excellence Carlos Chavez.

PARIS: One of the most colorful social events in Paris entirely sponsored by Americans is the annual ball given by the Junior Guild of the American Pro-Cathedral. The event is usually held around the middle of February and is of course endorsed by all the American colony. It's under the patronage of the American Ambassador to France, and proceeds go to French charities. This year was a Valentine Gala held at Hotel Continental, and under the patronage of Ambassador and Mrs. Amory Houghton, and of Mr. W. Randolph Burgess, United States representative to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and Mrs. Burgess. Miss Margaret Benedict, who founded the Paris Junior Guild in 1920, says that never have they had such a success as this year. Among the stars who gave their support were Hazel Scott, Felix Marten, Edith Piaf and Annie Cordy. One of the star attractions came not to work, but as a guest: Mike Todd arrived with lovely "Liz," beautifully dressed in a gold and white ball-gown, with a diamond tiara posed sedately on her new short curls. Incidentally Mike just paid 25,000,000 francs (about $75,000) for a few(?) new dresses for Liz, that he ordered from Dior.

Among the internationals giving their support to the Valentine Ball we note: Mrs. James Crudginton, Mrs. George Thiel, Mrs. Harry Hill, Mrs. Robert Watson, Mrs. Harold Wheeler, Mrs. Joseph Reed, Mrs. John R. Cooney, Mrs. William Alberts, Mr. and Mrs. John McCarthy, Mr. John Ferguson, Mrs. Fremont Felix, S. E. and Madame Henri Bonnet, and the Marquise Cittadini Cesi.

Another Ball fabulous enough to mention was the "Bal de la Rose" — held every year during the month of February at the International Sporting Club of Monte Carlo. It all began five years ago when Henry Astric, the director of the Sporting Club, first had the idea for the ball. He asked a young designer who had just left the house of Dior to go into the business of interior decoration, to occupy himself with the theme and decorations for the ball: The young designer was Andre Levasseur, the direct predecessor of Yves Saint-Laurent, and Andre and Yves have now both succeeded in making an international name for themselves. This year, the walls

Mr. and Mrs. Robert de Witt of Paris announce the marriage of their daughter, Elaine, to Mr. Jean Tournesac of Versailles, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Tournesac. The bride-to-be's great grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hoff, American philanthropists who lived for more than 40 years in Paris. Miss de Witt graduated from the Greenwich Academy in Connecticut, and made her debut in 1955. Mr. Tournesac received his doctors degree at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and is a civil mining engineer in France. Parents of Miss de Witt also had a Spring wedding in Paris in 1936, in the American Church.

The marriage of Miss Doris Johnson to Dr. Jacques Badin, of the Paris Faculty of Medicine, took place the other day in the American Church at 65 Quai d'Orsay, Paris. Dr. Badin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edouard Badin. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. Hugo Johnson.

Bertrand Russell has just received $2,800: The Kalinga Prize, awarded annually by the United Nations Educational and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) was founded by Mr. B. Patnaik, an Indian business man who wanted to encourage the popularization of science. The award was first given in 1952, and the recipients have included Prince Louis de Broglie, discoverer of wave mechanics and secretary of the French Academy of Science; Sir Julian Huxley, British biologist and former director of UNESCO; and Waldemar Kaempffert, science writer of the New York Times. Lord Russell has written over 40 books on logic, mathematics, philosophy, sociology and ethics, and is also the author of a number of popular works on such subjects as relativity, the atom and the underlying logical principles of mathematics. He is now 86 years old and has recently given much attention to the problems of peace in the nuclear age. Among his decorations can be noted the British Order of Merit, awarded in 1949, and the Nobel Prize for Literature, awarded in 1950. The Kalinga Prize was awarded in Paris by Prof. Pierre Auger, director of the National Sciences Department of UNESCO, who hailed Lord Russell as one of the great apostles of "scientific humanism" of the 20th century. One of the great and guiding forces behind Lord Russell is the quiet and charming Lady Russell, the former Edith Finch of New York.

PANACHE DE PASSAGE: Charles Howard, Banking Commissioner of the State of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Howard, Deputy Commissioner General of the United States Exposition at Brussels, just arrived on the Continent via the United States. On the same route: Arthur D. Foley of the State Department, Mrs. Oscar Hahn, Lord Geddes, Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Miller, Charles Tissot, Madame Francois Depre, and Italian artist Pietro Annigoni, who tells us that the stories about him using an actress as a model for the portrait he just finished of Princess Margaret of England are completely false: "Princess Margaret posed 33 times, for one and a half hours each time, and that was enough for me to paint a faithful portrait" . . . Other personalities arriving on the continent include Charles Brady, Mr. and Mrs. Henry T. McKnight, Thatcher Brown, Cummings Catherwood and his charming wife, Prince and Princess Azamat Guirey, Baron and Baroness Jean-Claude Petiet, and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Rodgers. Rex Harrison and his bride, Kay Kendall, have just arrived to make a new film . . . and Prince Moulay Hassan and Prince Moulay Ali are off on the road to Morocco — any day now.

The Log Chateau, residence of the Seigniory Club in the Province of Quebec, faces the Ottawa River. The building is constructed entirely of logs brought from British Columbia, and is furnished in the French Provincial style.

The Seigniory in March

By Hilda Turner

THE CANADIAN WINTER has finally justified all the hopes entertained for it and (better late than never) let loose enough snow, ice and blue sky to make good skiing and all the other winter sports possible and enjoyable. The snow — even if it comes late in the season — is welcome; it covers up so much that is unsightly, created a new and beautiful world and makes the Great Outdoors we talk so much about seem cleaner and more spacious.

Up here at the Seigniory Club in Quebec Province, members are regaining faith in their winter for after many weeks of patient waiting the snow came at last. Mid-February and later saw great quantities of soft white sifting softly down through the forests, creating a blanket of quiet and peace that will be unbroken for weeks to come. It has been a strange season, not only in the North but in the South as well; but with February ushering in normal winter weather the skiers up here in this section of the country are taking heart and planning activities to last well on to the end of the season.

The month of March, when the days are long and the snow at its best, is probably the ideal time for a skiing holiday at the Seigniory. There are many quiet spots for placid convalescence after early Spring fever, the sun is warm enough to exercise in light clothing and the beautiful tan acquired then lasts on into Summer. Members congregate in the ice walled solarium to watch the skaters on the outdoor terrace rink where the cocktail lounge is within call or they may feel energetic enough to make for the top of the fast and icy toboggan run that starts near the old Manor House and ends down near Montebello village. Then, of course, there's curling indoors on artificial ice where a bonspiel is usually in progress during the week-ends, with curlers dressed in their distinctive club colors and wearing a variety of club pins and badges on their Scottish balmorals or glengarrys and shouting a variety of incantation as they hurry up and down the narrow sheets of ice polishing the shining surface in advance of the revolving blocks of granite which they call "stones."

Now that it's March again, salutes to Spring are in order. But preliminary impulses in the way of odes to the season mustn't be too hasty. Nobody knows what to expect of these last days of Winter; and even if you do have a trip southward to the sun in the offing the mere prospect isn't going to get you through March's weeks. For a quick mental, spiritual and bodily pick up there's nothing to equal a country holiday — so take your weary self off for a sojourn on skis. It fills in the waiting time in a way you'd never expect. Spring sunlight on snow, even through dark glasses, does something for your morale and there's enough muscle stretching and exercise to bolster up resistance at low ebb after a trying winter.

The WHITEHALL Hotel

By Ella Margaret Burket

Photos—Lee Brian

THE GRANDEUR OF WHITEHALL is for those who demand the best. Under the management of Mr. Larry Borsten, a superb host, "returnees" each Winter are legion.

Always a lure, Whitehall, heralded as "the world's most beautiful hotel," maintains its fascinating tradition. This mansion of the historical Henry M. Flagler was constructed to appease his desire for "a palace more wonderful than anything in Europe and more magnificent than any other private dwelling in the world."

Rare art and priceless appointments adorn the famous villa. A hotel with the finest facilities was added to the mansion to add regal living and gracious service for those seeking glamour, happiness and contentment.

Many faceted is the program of events at Whitehall. Around-the-clock whirl of parties, dances, galas, star entertainment, art exhibits, colorful international nights diversify the social calendar. The beautiful Sun and Surf Club adds pleasure for many well-known guests.

The best of golf is available for the ardent player at the Palm Beach Country Club, where the popular kicker and medal play tournaments are on the week-end schedule.

The Rib Room, widely known for its cuisine, has been more than popular.

Sunday evening concerts are for devotees of good music. For patrons of fashion, Sara Fredericks pleased many with her show of "After Five Ensembles."

The Riviera Cooperative Apartments

THE EXCLUSIVE RIVIERA APARTMENTS, a non-profit cooperative corporation on Worth Avenue, is the gathering place for many of the Palm Beaches' Winter residents.

The ultra-modern building overlooks Lake Worth and its picturesque balconies are a popular rendezvous for those wishing to sun bathe or dine by moonlight.

Palm Beach's exclusive club, The Everglades Club, is just a stone's throw from the co-op and many of the guests play golf and tennis at the club, then return to their apartment to take a dip in the Riviera's uniquely shaped pool.

The Riviera is strikingly handsome with its elegant modern architecture. The building was designed by John Stetson of Palm Beach. Each apartment in the building has large picture windows which open out on to a terrace. Furnishings and equipment in the apartments are owned by the individual members and are noted for their simplicity and beauty in design and structure.

As it is centrally located it is within walking distance of the Palm Beach yacht basin, the shipping district and the beach.

The new trend in Florida living is towards living in apartments and the Riviera Cooperative offers its guests the convenience of having daily maid service, 24-hour switchboard service and linen service.

A board of governors has been formed to insure the exclusive and selective policy of the building.

THE PALM BEACH TOWERS

By TANYA BROOKS

THE PALM BEACH TOWERS is one of the spearheads of the movement for a Summer season in Palm Beach. Last Summer the apartment-hotel was host to vacationers from all over the country and visitors from foreign places. Senora Marcos Perez-Jiminez, wife of the displaced president of Venezuela flew to the United States for her first visit and made a special trip to spend one day at the Palm Beach Towers. She was accompanied by her three daughters, Margot, Flor Angel, and Maria Sol, as well as several of her close friends.

The Palm Beach Towers has a "Grand Hotel" air about it, as one might run into anyone in the lobby. Most of the stars from the adjacent Royal Poinciana Playhouse have stayed there. Columnists Nick Kenny and Earl Wilson were guests there during mid-season. Mr. Kenny was accompanied by his daughter,, and Mr. Wilson brought his "beautiful wife."

On the intellectual side, Ambassador David Kaufman, who is a permanent resident with Mrs. Kaufman, has been active writing important articles on world affairs for various newspapers.

WHERE DISTINCTION HAS MEANING

With the Audubon Key section of Point Manalapan rapidly approaching completion, the fabled beauty of old Hypoluxo Island soon will be enhanced by a group of distinctive waterfront homes built for some of America's finest families.

Because homesite availability in the Point Manalapan community, requires acceptance in the very desirable Manalapan Club, residents are assured neighbors of taste, culture and accomplishment. Practical, too, is the Point Manalapan community, for its plans include just about everything you consider necessary for Florida living with distinction.

Extremely wide waterways are your tree-lined avenues to the Ocean Inlet less than a mile away. The shops, clubs and restaurants of Palm Beach and Delray Beach are pleasantly convenient, as are six fine golf courses. Architectural control and rigid restrictions guarantee the value of your investment, as does the superbly engineered quality of our land improvements.

You will enjoy the short drive on A1A from Palm Beach, and you are cordially invited to visit Point Manalapan during its development stage as well as enjoy the charming Clubhouse grounds.

Known in aviation circles as Mr. Civic Air Patrol, the Texan organized anti-submarine patrols during World War II on the Gulf Coast. He is a cousin of the late Antarctic explorer, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and in civilian life is president of half a dozen oil corporations plus being a majority stockholder in the Tempe Airplane Plant and is currently exploring and developing uranium resources in his native state.

Woodall Rodgers is regarded as one of the outstanding trial attorneys in Texas and has achieved recognition for his direction of the Greater Dallas Planning Commission. A fine golfer, the brilliant attorney has twice taken home the winning trophy of the annual President's Cup Match at the San Marcos Hotel and Country Club course and this year missed garnering the Men's Championship crown by one stroke, which was won by Roy W. Clansky of Glen Ellyn, Illinois.

Switching from Texas to the Prairie State of Illinois we find the expanding Chicago and suburban area of the "Windy City" at the San Marcos literally bursting at the seams. Prominent members of the South Shore Country Club on a golfing holiday here include Mr. and Mrs. Earl Juers, Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph, and Mr. and Mrs.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Seaman, Milwaukee, Wis.

HERE HAVE BEEN A NUMBER OF BENEFITS during the recent weeks of the Palm Beach season. Benefiting from them have been Good Samaritan Hospital and its building fund; the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund; the Community Chest; the Kiwanis Underprivileged Child program, and the Palm Beach Private School. Also the Animal Rescue League.

The Polo Ball for the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund was one of the most colorful events. A mammoth tent adjoining the Royal Poinciana Playhouse was used for supper and dancing, to Lester Lanin's orchestra. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor were honorary chairmen. Mrs. Stephen Sanford was general chairman, and Mrs. Winston F. C. Guest and Mrs. Michael G. Phipps, co-chairmen. Mrs. Edward F. Hutton was executive chairman and those on the decorations committee were Mrs. Donald B. Tansill and Duke Umberto di San Miniato. Those serving on the Ball committee were Mrs. Charles A. Munn, Mrs. James P. Donahue, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mrs. John R. McLean, Mrs. Lucius Pond Ordway, Mrs. John H. Perry Jr., Mrs. Spelman Prentice, Mrs. Walter Shirley, Mrs. Loel Guinness, Mrs. Edmund C. Lynch, Mrs. Guilford Dudley Jr., and Mrs. Lorraine Gallagher Freimann. On the invitation committee were Mrs. George Blabon 2d, chairman; Mrs. Webster Tilton, co-chairman; Mrs. Russell P. Kelley, co-chairman; Mrs. Robert E. Bissett, co-chairman.

The "Honor Ball" held in the Orange Gardens of the Everglades Club was for the Good Samaritan Hospital. It was so named to honor four outstanding Palm Beach ladies for their long and distinguished service to the Hospital and its many activities: Mrs. Horace Elgin Dodge, Mrs. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen, Mrs. Robert D. Huntington and Mrs. Edward F. Swenson. Channing Hare and Hopkins Hensel were co-chairmen of decorations. Mrs. Edward F. Hutton and Mrs. Charles Crocker were the gifts co-chairmen. On their committee were Mrs. Joseph Frederick Gunster, Mrs. Julius Noyes, Mrs. James N. Schoonmaker Jr., Mrs. J. Spencer Love, Mrs. Samuel Peck, Mrs. Harold Wilson Sweatt and Mrs. James K. Norris. Mrs. Russell P. Kelley and Mrs. Frank K. Quigley were co-chairmen of tickets and reservations.

The Heart Fund Ball was held in the Poinciana Room of the Palm Beach Towers with Mrs. Gallagher Freimann and Christopher Dunphy, co-chairmen. Elsa Maxwell came South to help with the entertainment.

The American Red Cross held a successful drive. The Breakers

Mrs. Margaret Schantz, of Syosset, L. I., and Julian Kean Roosevelt, of Bonnie Brae, Center Island, Oyster Bay, L. I., were married in the First Presbyterian Church in Glen Cove, L. I., and are residing at Bonnie Brae. The bride's mother is Mrs. Charles Allen Owens, of Wilmington, Del., and The Breakers, Palm Beach.

Miss Judith Holt, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Franklin Holt, of Tallahassee, and John Eugene Phipps, were married in Tallahassee on February 27. Mr. Phipps is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Phipps, of Ayavalla Plantation, Tallahassee, and the grandson of John S. Phipps, of Palm Beach.

The engagement of Miss Denise Harmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis L. Harmon, of Miami, Fla., and a niece of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillson Hart, of Palm Beach and Barrington, Ill., was announced by Miss Harmon's parents. The nuptials will take place in St. James Episcopal Church, Dundee, Ill.

Sea Island Georgia

Front view of THE CLOISTER HOTEL, hub of activity for the year-round Sea Island resort.

THE CLOISTER has operated at peak capacity all Winter; most of the homes in the residence colony have been occupied by their Northern owners, many of whom have had houseguests; there have been a great many gay parties and, altogether, the Island has been a beehive of activity filled with people attempting to escape the frigid blasts in many parts of the country.

Golf, tennis, shuffleboard, chip and putt, cycling and horseback riding have been the sports most favored with our wintering guests, although bridge and other indoor diversions have been attractive to many.

One of the nicest things about the Winter season at Sea Island is the return of some of our favorite guests who, like the swallows returning to Capistrano, each year wend their way to The Cloister where they make their winter home.

We were proud to welcome back this Winter the T. H. Rossbottoms of Riverside, Conn., who have been coming for a great many years. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. S. McLernon of Montreal, Canada, are another popular couple of "old timers" spending the Winter in the hotel. Others are Dr. and Mrs. Norman Gibson of Lewiston, N. Y., Mrs. John R. Simpson of Englewood, N. J., and Mrs. Howard O'Brien of New York City and London. Mr. and Mrs. John Young of Montreal, also, are here as usual and a delightful new couple was added this year to our "entire winter" list; they are Mr. and Mrs. William Astor Drayton of Southampton, N. Y., and Lake Wales, Florida. Mrs. Hamilton Claiborne of New York, also, is back for several months after a year spent in Spain and London.

Mrs. Claiborne's hobby is photographing flowers and she has a delightful time around the beautiful grounds of The Cloister when the camellias bloom in the late Winter and early Spring.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Murrow are presently vacationing in The Cloister. He is the popular news analyst and host of his own television program, Person to Person.

At the Sea Island golf course, the Ladies' Day golf tournaments, better known as the "Tuesday Tournaments," started in early February and have been proving popular with our top golfing matrons in the residence colony. Members of the tournament committee, of which Mrs. R. D. Ketcham is chairman, are: Mrs. R. H. Semple Jr., co-chairman; Mrs. Charles R. Moeser, secretary; Mrs. G. F. Ravenel, treasurer; Mrs. Henry Pool and Mrs. George Vanderhoef Jr., prizes; Mrs. Charles Rowley and Mrs. George Gouge, tournament committee; and Mrs. Frank Rogers and Mrs. Henry Isham, ringers scores and rules.

At this writing there have been two of these weekly tournaments, both of which were won by Mrs. L. W. Smead of Orchard Lake, Mich. The Smeads annually take a cottage at Sea Island for the winter months.

A new golf course Greens Advisory Committee has been appointed to serve during the years 1958 and 1959. Members of the committee are: H. W. Gasque, chairman; I. A. Harned, secretary; Mrs. Dugald White, William Whitcomb, R. D. Ketcham and Freeman Darby, members. This committee advises with and makes recommendations to the management of the Sea Island Company on the maintenance and operation of the Sea Island Golf Course and Clubhouse. All members of the committee are enthusiastic golfers and are well known to most Cloister guests and Sea Island cottagers.

The Beach Club, a popular spot the year round, has been open all Winter, with luncheon in the spacious lounge — overlooking the sea on the one side and the terrace and swimming pool on the other — a daily treat, buffet style.

The Gun Club has come in for its share of activity, even before opening for the regular season the middle of February. One interesting and unusual event was a demonstration shoot by "Lucky" McDaniel, a phenomenally crack shot who can shoot a BB with a BB (believe it or not!) Mr. McDaniel staged a two-day demonstration of his prowess, using prominent Islanders as students while he conducted instruction periods for the benefit of Sports Illustrated writers and photographers. Those participating in the fascinating goings-on were Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Moeser, Col. J. Henry Pool, H. W. Gasque and Mrs. Irving A. Harned, of the Cottage Colony, and Miss Meta Leitner, Cloister Sports Director.

Attractive Mrs. Harned was chosen as the photographers model to accompany Mr. McDaniel on a hunt recorded photographically for the magazine story.

Camelback Inn

PHOENIX, ARIZONA

By Margaret D. Thomas

Photos by Bowerman—Camelback Inn

SPRING ARRIVES EARLY on the Arizona desert, where balmy nights, days in the mid-80's, spectacular golfing and the colorful desert bursting into a carpet of flowers draws guests from former seasons back to Camelback Inn to share another vacation with their families.

This is the time for respite from studies at colleges and fashionable preparatory schools over the nation and many of the fortunate students will linger at the Inn through an early Easter this year to share traditional holiday events.

The Inn's popular Hopalong College program for children plus a teen-age social program at this season attracts dozens of families season after season.

It is the time for desert steak fries high on the slopes of Mummy Mountain behind the Inn under a canopy of stars close enough to grab a handful. Wranglers from the Inn corrals prepare steaks over mesquite campfires with their pungent smoke and linger in the evening to lead vacationers with their guitars and cowboy melodies.

Many of the events planned by the Jack Stewarts, co-owners and managers for 22 seasons, are annual events. Mid-March brings a gala St. Patrick's Day fashion show at the pool, one of the most elaborate of the Spring season in the entire Southwest.

A group of annual vacationers annually host a humorous St. Patrick's Day "Wake" on March 18 to mourn his departed spirit for another year.

Putters by the dozens are awaiting the annual Corley Cup and Jack Rabbit Tournaments on the Inn's lush putting greens. Both events are followed by gala cocktail parties at which awards are made. Golfers are competing soon in the "Spring Round-up and Desert in Bloom" Tourneys climaxed by parties, too.

For the first time, a tournament will be dedicated to the late Herbert Simpson, head of one of the world's largest engineering firms, who passed away in the Fall. The prominent Chicago resident had wintered at the Inn every season since 1937 and was one of its most popular guests.

Flying in from the East Coast will be a number of familiar vacationers with their families. The J. W. Marriotts are on hand again this Spring from Washington, D. C., joined by their son, Dick, 18, a student at the University of Utah.

From the Keystone State acquiring sun-tans are a number of prominents. The T. F. Soles of McKeesport and Meadville, chairman of the board of Talon, Inc., are enjoying a month at the Inn after celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary at home. One of the East's largest rose growers, J. H. Thompson Jr., of "House in the Woods" at Kennett Square has just ended a sojourn at Camelback with his wife, and the R. S. Tuckers of Knoxville, Tenn., and the Kenneth Morrisons of Wellesley, Mass.

Quaker City visitors included too, the Dan

McGills of Rosemont, a fashionable suburb of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Wright Humphreys of the same city, and the W. A. Whitesides, who have just returned to their home near Conshohocken. From Sewickley, Pittsburgh's fashionable suburb, are the John Olivers and their children, and the J. Judson Brooks.

From nearby New Jersey came Mrs. J. J. Newberry of Englewood with her friend, Mrs. C. C. Huffman of Encino, Calif., to renew acquaintance with Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Leach of Attleboro, Mass., annual Inn-mates.

Back from New York this season after a cruise are the Ceborn Lees of Oaks Corners, daily figures on the putting greens and fairways. Returning, too, the Dudley G. Laymans of Manhattan with daughter, Lynne, Mrs. Helen M. Mertens of New York City with her daughter Joan, a student at fashionable Spence School.

Mrs. Richard P. Ettinger Jr., Junior Leaguer from San Francisco, and her daughter, Pamela, head down the cactus-lined path at Camelback Inn to the swimming pool.

Revelling in the Spring weather, the Leonard Dalsemers, vice president of Lord Baltimore Press, bringing this season their friends, the Russell Rooks, Manhattanites, too.

The Edmond Guggenheims, who arrived at Camelback in February, enjoyed the desert climate so much that at the conclusion of their Inn stay, they sent for their staff and leased a desert home for the remainder of the season. He is head of the famed foundation.

Connecticut prominents are on hand for the sun and fun at the Inn, too. Here from his Connecticut home for his annual desert stay is Gene Tunney, renewing acquaintance with many friends in the Valley of the Sun.

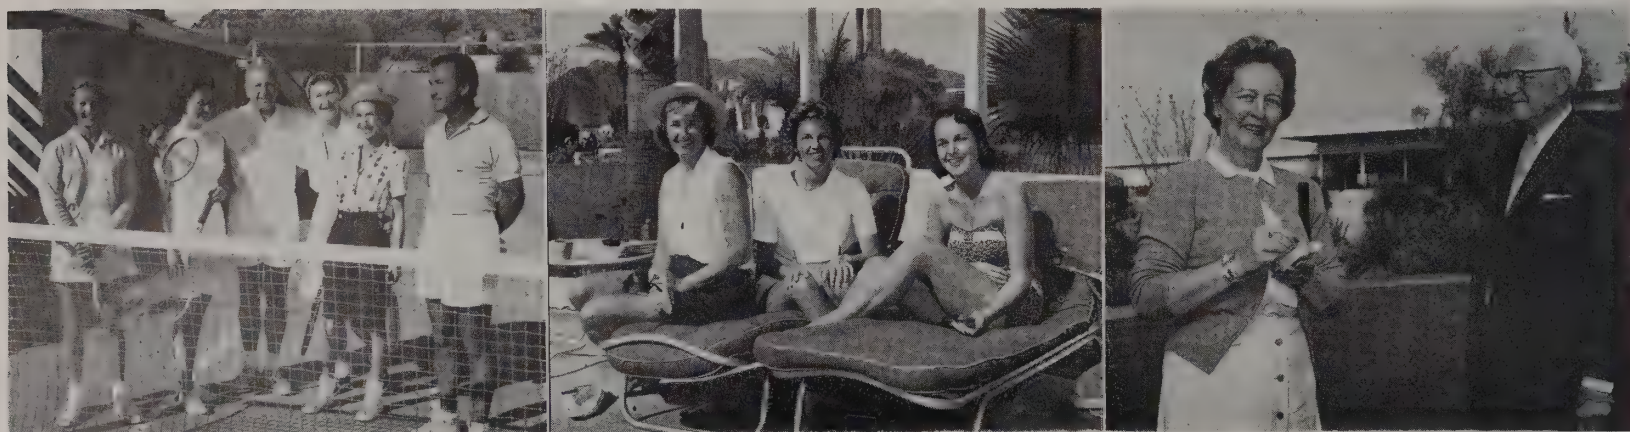

From Greenwich are the prominents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sterlin Rockefeller. Claiming the same city for home are cartoonist Mort Walker and his wife, here with their sons Greg and Brian for Hopalong College fun.

watch progress on their new desert home are the James H. Brodericks. The industrialist and his wife have wintered at the Inn for many seasons and are building on the Paradise Valley Country Club fairways adjoining the Inn.

Enjoying the sun as they renew acquaintance for another season are the William J. Dorans, annual vacationers from Ontario who preceded their stay with a world cruise; Lord and Taylor's Van B. Sims and his wife from Manhattan, and Hearst executive Robert P. Davidson, who is here from his home on East End Avenue in New York for a second stay this season.

Returning for a second stay, too, the Alfred Valentines of East Williston, L. I., prominent figure in racing circles in the East and his wife. He heads the Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island, which introduced night racing to enthusiasts last Fall.

Another annual party includes the chairman of the board of Whirlpool-Seegar, Walter G. Seegar, who returned from St. Paul

From the left: Mrs. James A. Meade, Victoria, B. C., formerly of London; Mrs. Bennett T. Martin, Lincoln, Neb., daughter-in-law of Lincoln's mayor; Mr. and Mrs. Sven Salen, Stockholm, Sweden; Mrs. Jack Stewart, wife of the owner of Camelback Inn, and Baron Aleco Noghes of Monaco and Arizona; second, enjoying the sun are Mrs.

Robert Jobst, Dallas, Tex.; Mrs. Paul Fay Jr., San Francisco, and Mrs. John Galvin, Glencoe, Ill.; third, Mrs. Crawford Gordon, Toronto, whose husband is a prominent figure in Canadian aircraft industries, and Ernest M. Daniels, chairman of the board of International Shoe Corp., vacationing from Cincinnati.

Mr. Walker is creator of the comic Army character "Beetles Bailey."

The beauty of Spring on the desert plus spectacular golf serves as a magnet year after year for many prominent family groups from the Midwest, too.

Acquiring suntans again this season are the president of United Airlines, William A. Patterson, who returned from Wilmette with his attractive wife; the Arthur Olsens back from the Windy City, as are Merle Trees and her daughter, Mrs. K. Trees Livezey; and from suburbs . . . the W. K. McMeekins of Oak Park, the Richard Keches and W. W. Watts, annual foursome from Kenilworth.

From other suburbs and veterans of 14 Camelback vacations are the Newton F. Korhumels of steel and aluminum note with Lee, Christine and Mark to celebrate Easter; the Gerald Magners back from Chicago with son Hoppy. From the big city, too, attorney Foreman L. Mueller with his wife.

Due the end of the month, annual vacationers the Raymond Kropps of River Forest, Ill., with Judy, Carol, Ray Jr., and the Raymond T. O'Keefe family.

Detroit areas are always well represented at Camelback Inn whether it is early, mid, or height of season. General Motors executive vice president L. Clifford Goar is back with his wife. From nearly Birmingham, annual sunlovers, the Merton J. Bells and J. A. Frosts.

From the same area, Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Lignell, the James Phinneys, the R. H. Flints with daughter Susan and another daughter Ellen flying in from Stanford University. Here, too, Ford notables the R. C. Gerstenbergs with Chris and Barry.

A number of nationally known Texans are currently in the warm, friendly Spring sunshine. Back with his wife from Houston, which he represented for many years as its mayor are Oscar Holcombe until the end of March. Mrs. Corbin J. Robertson returned from the same city with her five children and husband, and they will be joined by her mother, Mrs. Hugh R. Cullen.

The end of the month, the Robertsons will be joined, too, by the J. A. Elkins family for several weeks to share Easter festivities.

From Muncie, Ind., for a month as they with Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Korfhage, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Muessel and Mrs. R. S. Ahrens.

From the Pacific Coast have come the Clay Bedfords of Oakland, leading figure in the electronics industry, joined by his daughter and her family, the Lt. Gordon Wallaces and little Patty from Michigan; and his son, Clay Jr., with his wife and two sons from Baton Rouge, La., for an annual reunion on the desert.

From the West Coast, too, the Robert T. Colliers, Los Angeles aircraft executive, the Watterson R. Rothackers of Los Angeles and Manhattan, and the Henry J. Kaisers Jr. from Oakland to share Easter with their son, Henry III, five years old.

From Santa Barbara have come the B. D. Bigelows for desert sun.

Two of the Inn's popular annual vacationers are the Sven Salens of Stockholm, Sweden, also widely known in Florida. One of their favorite pastimes is tennis in the warm sunshine. A Swedish shipping magnate, Mr. Salen is on the international ski committee for the Olympics and an ardent yachtsman.

A number of prominents are acquiring suntans from the East. The Arthur Ogden Wellmans, who maintain homes in Palm Beach, on Boston's famed Beacon Street, and on Cape Cod,, have enjoyed an extended desert holiday. A fine horsewoman, Mrs. Wellman has been spending about four hours a day in the saddle following desert trails while her husband golfs.

Another widely-known family, the Stephen D. Bechtels, flew down from San Francisco in their private plane to relax with friends, the Stanley Wards and the John Keilys, to be joined the next day by the Stephen Bechtels Jr. and a party of friends at the Inn. The senior Mr. Bechtel heads the world-wide construction firm.

Back for their second stays of the season from New York are Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Davidson from their home on fashionable East End Ave., Hearst publishing executive; the Watterson Rothackers, widely known in Manhattan and Los Angeles for another month; and the J. Alfred Valentines are cago attorney and his wife, and their son, Dennis. The former president of the Western Golf Association brought along friends, the J. L. Doblars of the Windy City, to introduce to the joys of desert golfing.

Back, too, from midwestern areas, a large influx of prominent annual vacationers at the Inn. General Motors official L. Clifford Goade and his wife from Detroit, the L. C. Howes from Bloomfield Hills, Mich., and familiar figures, the J. A. Frosts and Merton J. Bells enjoying March on the desert once more from their homes in nearby Birmingham, Mich.

The steel industry in Ohio has been well-represented by annual sunlazers, the Wilson Moriaritys of Shaker Heights, head of National Malleable Steel, the R. L. Grays of Middletown, Ohio, president of Armco Steel.

Here from Sewickley, Pa., the J. Judson Brooks are enjoying a relaxing sojourn. From Pennsylvania, too, after celebrating their golden wedding anniversary in Meadville in mid-February, the T. F. Soles, chairman of

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ogden Wellman, Boston, are spending their first vacation at Camelback Inn. The Wellmans maintain homes in Palm Beach and Cape Cod; second, semi-finalists in the annual Mother Stewart Putting Tournament, from the left: Herston Williams, Kansas City, Mo.; Claude Riemenschneider, Western Springs, Ill.; W. Alan John Reilleys, Philadelphia, Pa., and the Paul H. Youngs, St. Louis, Mo.

Sutton, Vancouver, B. C.; Mrs. George Kern, New York City; Mrs. Sutton; E. H. "Hi" Schultz, Minneapolis; Neal Salsich, Midland, Tex., and winner, John Schanzle, Wellesley Hills, Mass., with a score in the final round of 32 with five aces for 18 holes; third, visitors from the banking world, Mr. and Mrs. Victor H. Essen, Creve Coeur, Mo.; the returning from their home in East Williston, L. I.

Turning their faces to the sun are a number of other Manhattan vacationers. Back again, the Leonard Dalsemers, Lord Baltimore Press executive, and his wife, who this season brought along the Russell Rooks, also of New York. Lord and Taylor's Van B. Sims is back on the putting greens this month with his vivacious wife, renewing acquaintances with annual "Inn-mates," the Harold Nortons of New York, shipping executive.

Sunning from nearby Greenwich until mid-April are the Joseph A. Abbotts, and the John A. Norths, insurance company president and his wife, have flown in from Hartford to relax. Back from Bridgeport for their annual stay are Mr. and Mrs. Oliver T. Osborne with their daughter Olive.

Back from Chicago for another golfing holiday have flown the James O'Keefes, Chi-the board of the Talon Zipper, Inc., sunning for a month.

Harry Harding of Manhattan stayed at the Inn with friends and visited with the Raymond Rubicams, who have a home not far away from the Inn on the desert. Both men are prominent in the advertising world.

Returning from their home cities, where they are widely known, to enjoy another desert sojourn are a number of groups of note. Walter Seeger is back from St. Paul with friends and family, Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Korfhage and Mrs. R. S. Ahrens. Mr. Seeger is chairman of the board of Whirlpool Seeger. From the midwest are Kansas City's Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kittle, president of Portland Cement Co.

The G. H. Stallings are back from Lynchburg, Va., and the Newton F. Korhumels are back with Lee, Christine, and Mark from Evanston until mid-April.

BEETHOVEN, BARTOK AND POP — South Floridians can hear them all, thanks to the University of Miami and its year-round program of varied musical fare.

During the Winter months, the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra presents a series of programs featuring the world's top artists and conductors.

Artists for the two remaining concerts of the 31st season include famed violinist Joseph Szigeti and noted conductor Howard Mitchell.

Summertime is "pops" time with informal concerts and light music on tap during June, July and August.

Among the guest conductors engaged for the coming Summer pops series are Paul Whiteman, Howard Barlow, Arthur Fiedler, Skitch Henderson and Franz Allers.

Some of the stellar attractions of the 1958-59 symphony season will be sopranos Elisabeth Schwarzkopf and Victoria de los Angeles, composer-pianist Ernest von Dohnanyi, ballet artists Alicia Alonso and Igor Yousekevitch, and violinist Nathan Milstein.

Fabien Sevitzy, former conductor of the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra for 18 years, will share conducting honors with John Bitter, dean of the University's School of Music and permanent conductor of the orchestra. Sevitzy is scheduled for four concerts; Bitter, for five.

Appearances of guest artists are arranged by Marie Volpe. Widow of Arnold Volpe, who founded the UM orchestra, Mrs. Volpe has carried on her late husband's work as manager of the orchestra.

Renowned violinist Joseph Szigeti will be Pianist Jorge Bolet will be guest star for a July 27 pops concert. Conducting will be his brother Alberto, director of the Havana Philharmonic Orchestra.

guest artist for a pair of concerts on April 13 and 14. (UM concerts are presented in pairs with the first at Miami Beach Auditorium and the second at Dade County Auditorium.) Guest conductor will be Howard Mitchell, permanent conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, Washington, D. C.

Szigeti, born in Hungary, has appeared at the Edinburgh Festival, the Casals Festival and the International Festival of Paris. He has toured England, Scotland, Ireland, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Austria, Turkey and Japan.

Mitchell joined the National Symphony as first 'cellist in 1933 and, when he was named in 1948 to his current post, became one of the youngest conductors of a major U.S. orchestra. He is the first man to receive the National Council Award twice for his contributions to American music.

Verdi's Requiem Mass will be principal work for the May 4-5 concerts. Conductor will be John Bitter. Soloists include Frances Bible, mezzo-soprano; Heidi Krall, soprano; Jon Crain, tenor, and Kenneth Smith, baritone. The University of Miami Chorus will be under the direction of Wilfred Smith.

Summer Pops

First pops concert will be June 8 with Paul "Pops" Whiteman conducting an all-Gershwin program. (Pops concerts are given at Miami Beach Auditorium only.) Whiteman will conduct a second concert June 15.

Ethel Stark, permanent conductor of the Montreal Women's Symphony Orchestra, will be on the podium for the June 22 concert. She is the only woman conductor to establish and direct a full symphony orchestra

Nathan Milstein, top violinist, will be soloist January 18 and 19, 1959, with Fabien Sevitzyk conducting; second, Howard Barlow, who will conduct a July 6 pops concert, has been conductor of the Voice of Firestone Orchestra for years; third, Paul "Pops" Whiteman will open the 1958 pops concert season with an all-Gershwin program June 8. He will conduct a second concert June 15; fourth, Victoria de los Angeles, brilliant soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, will be guest artist March 1 and 2, 1959, with John Bitter conducting; fifth, brilliant young pianist Eugene Istomin will be guest artist on November 16 and 17, with Fabien Sevitzyk conducting.

composed exclusively of women. In 1956, Miss Stark toured Israel as leader of the Canadian Choir. Her initial appearance with the UM pops orchestra last year was a tremendous success.

John Bitter will conduct the June 29th concert.

July pops concerts will feature Howard Barlow on the 6th, Arthur Fiedler on the 13th, James Christian Pfohl on the 20th and the brothers Bolet on the 27th — Alberto conducting and Jorge at the piano.

Barlow is virtually a household name in America. He has conducted the Voice of Firestone Orchestra on radio and television for many years.

Arthur Fiedler is former concertmeister of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and originator of the famed Esplanada concerts. He has conducted the Boston Pops for the past 28 years.

James Christian Pfohl founded the Transylvania Music Camp in Brevard, N. C., bringing Summer music education nearer home for hundreds of young people in the South. In 1946 he inaugurated a camp concert series, known as the Brevard Music Festival.

Alberto Bolet is director of the Havana Philharmonic Orchestra. He has appeared with the Atlanta and Dallas symphony orchestras, as well as with European symphonies.

August concerts will feature Franz Allers as conductor on the 3rd and Skitch Henderson as conductor and solo pianist on the 10th. Allers has been musical director for such Broadway smash hits as "My Fair Lady," "Brigadoon," "Paint Your Wagon." Skitch Renowned violinist Joseph Szigeti, guest artist for the April 13-14, 1958, concerts. Guest conductor will be Howard Mitchell, permanent conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, Washington, D. C.

Henderson appears weekly on the Steve Allen show and is well known to television audiences through his frequent guest appearances.

Additional guest artists for the Summer pops series will be announced later.

The 1958-59 Season

The 1958-59 concert season will open with concerts on October 26-27 with Fabien Sevitzyk as guest conductor. Currently touring Europe, Sevitzyk appeared with the University Symphony Orchestra during the 1957-58 season and won great critical and popular acclaim.

Concerts on November 16-17 will again feature Sevitzyk conducting. Brilliant 32-year-old pianist Eugene Istomin will be soloist. Istomin studied at the Curtis Institute under Rudolf Serkin. When barely 17, he had already appeared with the New York Philharmonic and the Philadelphia Orchestra.

Famed soprano Elisabeth Schwarzkopf will be soloist for concerts on December 7-8. Conductor will be John Bitter. An unusually versatile artist, Mme. Schwarzkopf has been acclaimed as one of the world's finest sopranos. She has made three previous American tours.

Sevitzyk will conduct the January 18-19 concerts with violinist Nathan Milstein as soloist. Russian by birth and American by adoption, Milstein came to this country in 1929, having already established himself as an artist of the first rank.

Composer-pianist Ernst von Dohnanyi will be soloist for the February 8-9 concerts with Sevitzyk conducting. Now in his 80's, von Dohnanyi is one of the last composers of romantic music. Among his works is the beloved "Variations on a Nursery Song."

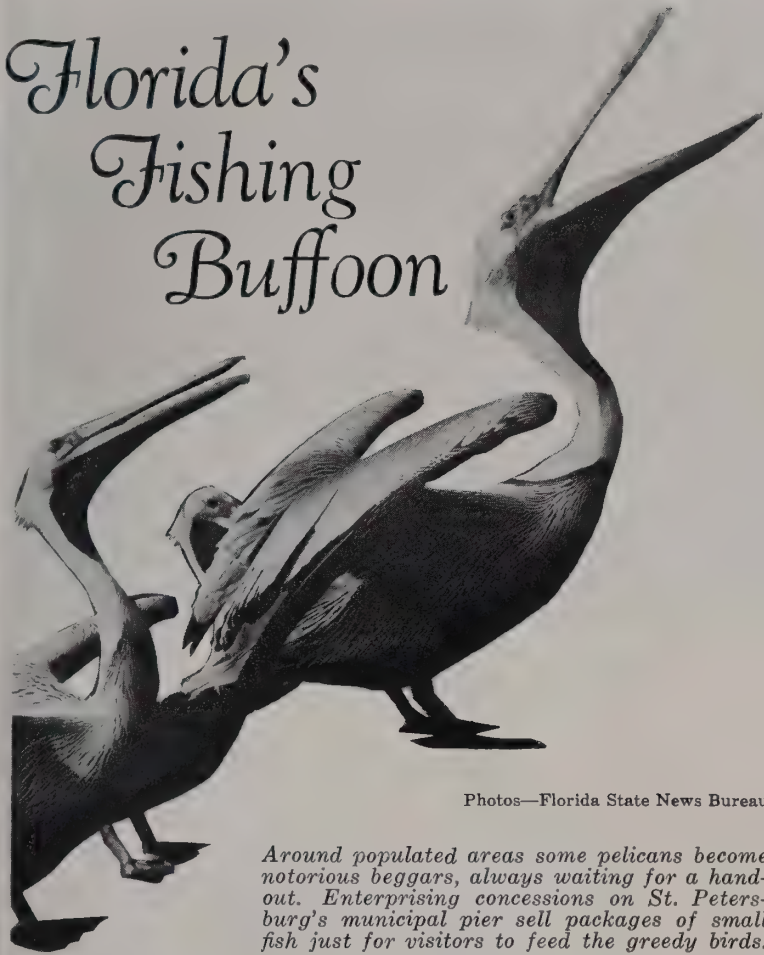

Soprano Victoria de los Angeles will be guest artist for the March 1-2 concerts. John Bitter will conduct this and the three remaining 1958-59 concerts. Miss de los Angeles has sung leading roles at La Scala, London's Covent Garden and the Paris Opera.

Two of the foremost contemporary exponents of the classical ballet, Alicia Alonso and Igor Youskevitch, will appear in concerts March 22-23 with the UM Symphony Orchestra. Alonso is on tour this year in Russia as part of a cultural exchange program.

Violinist Berl Senofsky will be soloist for the April 12-13 concerts. He is the first American-born and trained violinist to win the grand prize of the Queen Elisabeth of Belgium international contest.

Soloist for the May 3-4 concerts will be announced later.

Florida's Fishing Buffoon

Photos—Florida State News Bureau

Around populated areas some pelicans become notorious beggars, always waiting for a hand-out. Enterprising concessions on St. Petersburg's municipal pier sell packages of small fish just for visitors to feed the greedy birds.

SUNSHINE MUST HAVE BEEN LAUGHING across the waters the day Dame Nature came up with the brown pelican. What other explanation can there be for this feathered comedian that flies like an angel, except that the old lady was in a capricious mood?

Short on leg, long on neck, and extremely wealthy in bill, this Durante of the bird world is as much a part of Florida's waterfront as weathered pilings and fishermen. Sitting on the flat top of a barnacled piling, the pelican is a star in the deadpan school of comedy. Shiny little eyes gleaming on either side of a dismally long snozz, it can keep that baleful expression as long as Buster Keaton, Jack Benny, or the late Fred Allen. Then a push into the air and away it wings, graceful as a line of poetry, sailing on undulating air currents over the rolling surf, an expected part of the sun-seeker's scenery. For Floridians and their visitors the pelican is an avian entertainer of excellence.

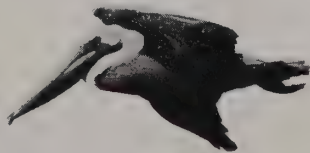

In the beginning, however, only through the eyes of the proud parents could newly hatched pelicans appear beautiful. Completely naked, the skin is an unlovely dark, purplish red. Gradually a soft white down appears. Pelicans then remain white until they are ready to fish for themselves.

Nesting chores, carried on in a bulky structure of green twigs situated in low mangrove trees, are shared by both parents. When the birds change places they go through a little ritual. The returning bird alights on a branch near the nest, raises its bill as high as possible and waves it back and forth. The nesting bird raises its bill, also shakes its wings and does a little preening. One or the other bird may utter a few loud clucks, the only vocalizing in which adult pelicans indulge, and then they change places.

During the breeding and nesting season, both parents have vividly contrasting head and neck plumage. The head loses a slight yellowish tinge and is sparkling white. A broad band of dark chestnut covers the back of the neck and meets in front just before the neck joins the body.

Baby pelicans are as noisy as their parents are silent. The uproar of hundreds of youngsters in the nesting colony is deafening and can be heard long distances away. The little ones' constant clamoring for food stops only when they are greedily gorging pre-digested fish from their parents' built-in feeding trough. In their eagerness for dinner, they stick head, neck and more into their parent's open mouth, sometimes even reaching down into the old bird's crop. Needless to say, this is uncomfortable for the parent, who tries to back away and close its bill but cannot with most of a youngster inside it.

After stuffing themselves the little fellows fall into a stupor, but not for long. A few minutes later they are squalling for food again with a vigor that makes one feel they use all their energy to yell for food so they will have enough energy to yell for food, and so on.

The antics of fishing pelicans are intricate and amusing to watch. Ninety per cent of their diet consists of small fishes, usually those man considers of little food value. On discovering a school of small fish, a flock of pelicans will wheel and circle, jockeying for a good target and diving position. From a height of thirty feet or so the pelican will crash dive into the water, sailing downwind with wings slightly folded for maximum speed. The water erupts in a geyser and a loud smack as the pelican disappears momentarily beneath the surface.

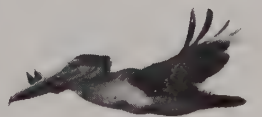

The pelican returns to the surface with a pronounced bounce, like a cork that has been held underwater. While under the surface they turn around for they dive downwind and pop up facing the wind. Floating high in the water after a successful dive, the pelican has its fish and also several pints of water in its pouch. By sticking its bill straight up in the air the bird drains the water out through the corners of its mouth. The pelican then twists and jerks its head and bill, sometimes even opening its mouth to get the fish into a position to swallow. After an apparent gulp, the bird rises again and gets ready for another plunge. Special air sacs beneath the skin on the breast cushion the contact between the diving bird and the water.

Although the pelicans remain mute during their feasting, the loud splashes and sparkling geysers usually attract the attention of other avian fishers of less talent. Among these are laughing gulls who arrive on the scene chuckling and cackling with obvious glee, circling swiftly.

Up comes a pelican with loaded pouch, busily draining off the water and trying to get the fish in a position to swallow. Down swoop the gulls trying to snatch the fish from

The silhouette of a flying pelican closely resembles that of the pterodactyl, the extinct flying reptile of long, long ago. This is minus the long devil's tail, of course.

A pelican takes off up wind and goes through a strenuous bit of wing flapping to do so. The bird can only use half strokes because its wings are so long a full wingbeat would immerse most of the feathers.

the pelican's beak and often succeeding. Occasionally a brazen gull will alight on a pelican's head, wait for the larger bird to open its bill while adjusting the fish, and with all the skill of a pickpocket make off with the pelican's dinner.

Not among the brightest of birds despite its fishing ability, the poor pelican seldom realizes what has happened. Paddling about in tight circles, spinning this way and that, the pelican seems to be puzzling out this frustrating turn of events. Its little white and black eyes reflect hurt feelings and abused confusion. Then with resignation at life's vicissitudes, the swindled creature laboriously gets its bulk launched into the air once more and maneuvers for another dive.

Life around some of Florida's famous recreational and fishing piers is less arduous. Kind fishermen and amused visitors dole out small fish to the feathered beggars who line up with half parted beaks. When a morsel is tossed into the air all the mouths open so wide the birds seem unable to see where the fish is falling. If the handout business is too slow, pelicans are not above trying to filch a meal out of somebody's bait bucket or off a stringer.

Pelicans seem to have a particular affection for pilings around docks and boat slips. They will sit for long periods of time out-staring their human neighbors with the long-faced countenance of an Emmett Kelly ilk. Feeling completely safe across the ten feet or so of water that separates them from human spectators, pelicans turn a look of disdainful, unruffled dignity on efforts to flush them from their perches. Should a human approach that invisible safety line, the birds will betray their concern by slightly raising one webbed foot and then the other. Should the intruder come no farther the pelicans will gradually relax, but any farther approach will be greeted by an explosion of large flapping wings. Even in sudden flight, pelicans manage a comic solemnness.

The primary range of the brown pelican extends from South Carolina around the Pelicans floating on a quiet lagoon are as typical of Florida scenery as palm trees or bathing beauties. Notice how they hold their wings slightly raised over their backs to avoid wetting flight feathers.

Florida peninsula to southern Texas. They occur also in the Bahamas and West Indies, but Florida's 3,000-mile coastline seems particularly favored. The larger and more elegant white pelican joins its clownish cousin during the winter months when there seems to be a greater concentration of brownies also. Pelican Island, near Sebastian, about midway down Florida's Atlantic coast, is a favorite breeding place for the big birds and was established as this country's first National Wildlife Refuge during the administration of Theodore Roosevelt.

Other than serving as the subject of a poem that rhymes pelican with belly can, man has found few uses for the pelican. Florida's waterfronts, however, where the bird is abundant in all seasons on all coasts, would be a much less interesting place without them.

Once they become accustomed to man and realize man would rather laugh at his quaint antics than harm him, pelicans frequently grow quite bold. Here a feathered culprit is caught in the act of filching dinner from a fisherman's bait bucket.

WHITE HOUSE DINNER - MUSICALES topped the Capital social calendar with the two Diplomatic dinners the most resplendent. The postponed Supreme Court dinner will be rescheduled for after Easter.

Avoiding protocol entanglements, President and Mrs. Eisenhower divided the eighty-four chiefs of mission into two groups by selecting the even numbers for the first dinner, the odd numbers for the second. The Dean of the Diplomatic Corps and Senora de Sevilla-Sacassa were ranking guests the first night, Belgium's Ambassador and Baroness Silvercruys the second.

The Executive Mansion vied in brilliance with the uniformed and bejeweled company. Masses of bright spring flowers decked the White House rooms, the red-coated Marine Band serenaded in the front foyer, and in the big state dining room, the table was set with the gleaming gold service and centered with lush mauve orchids and carnations.

The First Lady wore rich petal pink satin at the first dinner. She was in delicate blue brocade the second night. Senora de Sevilla-Sacassa accented her Latin beauty with a gown of heavy white peau de soie appliqued in black chantilly lace. Blond Baroness Sil-vercruys wore luxurious champagne and brown brocade.

"In-the-news" guests took the spotlight each evening. The first had both the French and Tunisian Ambassadors, who shook hands in polite, diplomatic cordiality. The second evening all eyes were on the handsome new Russian Ambassador and his dark-eyed wife, Madame Mikhail Menshikov.

Guests dined on such delicacies as pate de fois gras, lobster vinaigrette, Long Island duckling, breast of guinea hen, ice cream bombe with cherry sauce and rolled rumcake with fruited cream.

Some 150 guests came in after each dinner for a musicale in the historic East Room. The famed Army Chorus provided the first night's entertainment while "The Carolers," a Manhattan singing group, entertained at the second soiree. A champagne hour in the State dining room followed each musicale.

Mingling with elaborate diplomatic uniforms were a number of colorful native costumes. Saudi Arabia's Shiekh Al-Khayal was in flowing white Arab robes, Malayan Ambassador Ismail bin Dato' Abdul Rahman wore a silver and black brocade turban and a dagger in his belt, India's Mehta was in tunic and jodhpurs-tight trousers, Japan Ambassador Madame Asakai wore a ceremonial kimono and Iceland's Madame Thors was in native costume with high white headdress. Madame Notowidigdo wore "Kabaya and Kain," the tightly wrapped costume of Indonesia.

Musical guests from residential circles included Mrs. Nicholas Longworth (T.R.'s daughter Alice), Mrs. Merriweather Post, in rose taffeta and diamonds, squired by Admiral Emory Land. Others were Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cafritz, Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, and Mrs. Perle Mesta, in rich jeweled gray satin worn with diamonds and pearls, escorted by Mr. Jack Logan. Colonel and Mrs. Robert Guggen-

DANCE DEVOTEES Budget Director and Mrs. Percival Brundage were hosts at an elegant dinner dance for some 110 of their friends at the fashionable Chevy Chase Club. After a gay cocktail hour in the downstairs dining room, dinner was served in the second-floor ballroom with dancing to the famous music of Meyer Davis. Guests sat at flower-centered and candlelit tables circling the room and dined on the Club's specialty, rare roast beef, with choice cheeses, wines and an ambrosial dessert of fresh pineapple on pineapple ice.

Champagne toasts were offered by the host to the Ambassadors and their ladies present — Belgium's Baron and Baroness Silvercruys, Portugal's Senhor and Senhora de Esteves Fernandes, Netherlands' Dr. J. H.

THE AMBASSADOR OF THE NETHERLANDS and Madame van Roijen hosted one of the season's gala late night parties. Occasion was the Washington Opera Society's highly successful presentation of Strauss' "Ariadne Auf Naxos" starring Metropolitan prima donna Lisa dela Casa. Guests went on to a midnight champagne supper at the Embassy, where they mingled with most of the Opera cast. Diplomats at both the performance and the supper included Sweden's Ambassador and Madame Boheman, Italy's Ambassador and Signora Brosio, Luxembourg envoy and Madame Le Gallais, Finnish envoy and Madame Nykopp, Swiss envoy and Madame de Torrente, Britain's Sir Harold and Lady Caccia, Argentina's Ambassador and Senora de Yadarola, Netherlands' Minister Baron Voorst tot Voorst, and Indian Minister and Madame Dayal (she's India's top woman tennis player).

Blond Madame van Roijen, in a stunning French blue gown featuring the new "belled" skirt, greeted guests with her husband at the top of the broad embassy stairway. In the dining salon a long flower-centered table set with glistening candelabra had an elaborate buffet supper awaiting.

Among many, we saw a group from official circles — Rep. and Mrs. Robert Hale, Deputy Defense Secretary and Mrs. Donald Quarles, Air Force Secretary and Mrs. James Douglas Jr., Assistant Defense Secretary and Mrs. Murray Snyder, Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. Hyde Gillette, Assistant Navy Secretary and Mrs. Garrison Norton, Special Assistant to Defense Secretary and Mrs. Oliver Gale, Assistant to Treasury Secretary and Mrs. James P. STATELY Anderson House was the scene of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hill's reception which drew about 800 guests. The elegant big ballroom was centered by a lavish buffet, refreshment bars were set in the library and on the long patio and Devron's music added to the gaiety. Upstairs, another large buffet attracted many guests.

Daviette and Francis Hill received in the second floor library, which was bright with masses of flowers. Mrs. Hill wore handsome ivory silk with matching full-length coat. Her jewels were diamonds.

Among the hundreds, we saw the Duchess of Windsor's "Aunt Bessie," Mrs. Buchanan Merryman; Mrs. John J. Hearne, wife of the Irish Ambassador; District Commissioner and Mrs. David Karrick, Cadillac tycoon and Mrs. Floyd Akers, Vice Admiral and Mrs. George Fort, Maj. THE CAPITAL'S biggest snow storm didn't stop socialites from flocking to the Spanish Embassy for "Spring in Seville," one of the season's gayest and dressiest balls which benefited the Loyola Retreat House of Southern Maryland. Despite closed streets, abandoned cars and late trains, guests in white tie and tails and fancy ballgowns arrived, many late, to dance to the small hours to the Meyer Davis band. Even the Spanish Ambassador, dashing Count de Motrico, was late in arriving after his train from New York was snowbound in Philadelphia.

The Countess is visiting in Spain, but the Ambassador's pretty daughter, Mercedes, served as his charming hostess. Mrs. Charles Finucaine, blond, beautiful wife of the Army Under Secretary, was chairman of the brilliant event with Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt vice-chairman.

It was ice and snow outside, but inside it was Fiesta time. Mrs. Joseph W. Stanley, assisted by Senora de Bolin, wife of the Embassy's Information Counselor, had decked the big embassy rooms and fountain-centered patio with flags, lanterns and flowers typical of holidaytime in old Seville. Champagne bars were set in all the rooms and a beautiful hot buffet was served at midnight.

A large number of dinners preceded the ball. The Finucaines had entertained at their Westchester Apartment for their nieces, the Misses Helen and Monica Burke of New York, and the Finucaines' houseguest, Mrs. Clarence Paulsen of Spokane, Wash.

Assistant Secretary of Defense and Mrs. Perkins McGuire had been dinner hosts entertaining Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Alonzo Fox, Assistant Navy Secretary and Mrs. Fred Rantz, Navy Sureon General and Mrs. Bartholomew Hogan, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Cornelius Ryan, and White House Staffer and Mrs. Raymond Saulnier. Mr. and Mrs. J. Hunter Drum had among their dinner guests Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Drum's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Purdy; Mr. and Mrs. Judson Bowles, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fangboner and Mr. and Mrs. Felix de Weldon.

Mrs. Jorje Zalles was dinner hostess to about fifty guests. Among them were the Dean of the Diplomatic Corps and Senora de Sevilla Sacassa. The Francis Hills had dinner-feted the Herbert Bluncks, the Gabriel Murphys, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Moran, Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Davis, Captain and Mrs. Homer Hudson.

Among the dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Langan were Indian Affairs Commissioner and Mrs. Glenn Emmons, Commander and Mrs. Peter Lindsay, the Thomas Reids, the John S. Leahys, the William Presses, the Langan daughter Jane, Miss Peggy Brooker and Midshipmen John Carty and James Tipton.

Among eye-catching gowns were Mrs. Finucaine's luxurious white brocade done by Italy's Count Sarmi and worn with a dazzling diamond necklace, Mrs. Morris Cafritz' white satin printed in muted floral patterns and accented with a diamond and turquoise bib necklace, the stunning satin gown worn Chic Mrs. Irving Brotman wore one of the evening's most glamorous gowns—a slim, black sheath, with short train, entirely encrusted with multicolored sequins. A trilogy of sleek, figure-hugging black gowns were worn by Dolly Corbin, Gallia Cox and Daviette Hill and one golden satin gown stood out in the lavish company, worn by golden-haired Mrs. B. Lauriston Hardin Jr.

Some of Washington's best-looking diplomats enjoyed the gala evening, the dapper Ambassador of France Herve Alphan, the two handsome Latin couples, Dominican Ambassador and Senora de Moya, and Panamanian envoy and Senora de Arias. Italy's envoy and best-dressed Signora Brosio were there, Cuba's Ambassador Campa along with his popular son-in-law and daughter, Minister Counselor and Senora de Averhoff; Norwegian First Secretary and Madame Mangor, Spanish Military Attache and pretty Senora de Miranda.

Others in the company were the Archibald Roosevelt Jr.s, on the eve of their departure for his post in Madrid; the good-looking Freddie Leishmans, the Juan Ceballos, the Bernard Shanleys, the Ray Henles, the Charles Thomas Claggetts, the Lee Murphys, Mrs. Kathleen Watson, handsome Jerry Chase, White House Assistant and Mrs. Homer Gruenther.

General and Mrs. Wade Haislep and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Leigh Wade were in the company, Rear Adm. and Mrs. Harold Baker, Mr. Fred Roy, Mrs. Randall Hagner, the Horton Schoellkopf Jr.s, with their dinner guests, the Harry F. Stimpson Jr.s, and Captain and Mrs. Donald McDonald and many more.

MR. AND MRS. BERNARD GALLAGHER saluted artist Brig. Gen. Frank Dorn at their attractive Massachusetts Avenue house at a cocktail fete. Washington friends of the retired Army officer came out in droves. Former Diplomatic Dean and Madame Munthe de Morgenstierne were there, Ireland's Ambassador and Mrs. Hearne, Portuguese Ambassador and Senora de Esteves Fernandes, Peru's envoy and Senora de Berckemeyer, Brazilian Ambassador and Madame Peixoto, and Norway's First Secretary and Madame Elovius Mangor.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. James van Houghten were there, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. Francis Whitten, Mrs. Randall Hagner, Mr. and Mrs. Meade Patrick, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Moran, Mrs. Jorje Zalles, Col. and Mrs. Albert Cox, and Mrs. Hollister Sturges.

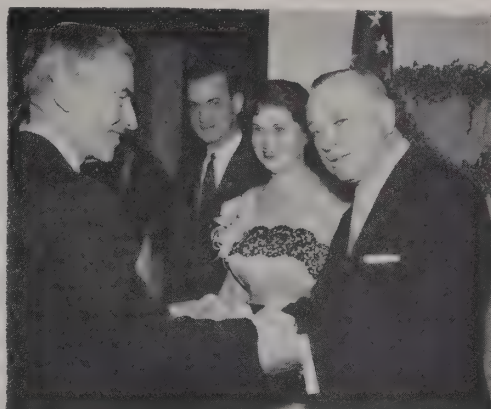

From Capitol Hill came Senator Theodore Green and Senator and Mrs. Edward Martin. Others were Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans II,

Mr. Hugh Hutchinson, Miss Kathleen Watson squired by Mr. Jerry Chase, Mr. James Parks, the Prentiss Coonleys and Leslie Biffles, Mr. Charles Dobbins, and the Robert Guggenheims.

Around the well-stocked buffet table set in the dining room guests talked about General Dorn's impressive exhibition of dry brush water colors at the Countess d'Amecourt gallery. Mrs. Bissett Norment was in the company, Betty and "Hunter" Drum, Leigh and Helen Wade, and a number more.

"COME AS A FAMOUS BOOK" read the invitations of Mr. and Mrs. I. Guyman Martin Jr. (Edith Kingdon Gould), and guests arrived for the gay masquerade dance all the way from "Caesar and Cleopatra" to "Eloise."

Guy and Edith Martin met guests at their Woodley Road home as "Almanach de Gotha" (Guy in satin knee breeches, coronet, beard and monacle) and "For Whom the Bell Tolls" (Edith in silver bell dancing dress above black lace tights). And the two delightful Martin sons were permitted to defer bedtime to make an appearance as "The Prince (Guy, 9) and the Pauper" (Jay, 7).

Devron's popular music provided "mood" music for dancing and a midnight champagne supper were set in the patio.

Among the revelers were Atomic Energy Commissioner and Mrs. Willard L. Libby as "Caesar and Cleopatra"; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Douglas (vice presidential daughter Jean Wallace) as "The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant"; Col. and Mrs. Michael Rogers as "Eloise" and a checkbook; the Victor de Mers as "Alice in Wonderland" (Alice and the Madhatter), and the Tim Gibsons as "A Night to Remember."

Mrs. John Shields (Princess Tatiana Abkhazi) as "War and Peace" and Mr. Jeff Davis as "Faust" won the evening's prize of French champagne.

Others enjoying the fun included Rep. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Wainwright Jr., Dr. and Mrs. Walter Bartkey of Chicago, the J. Hunter Drums, Mr. John Logan, Col. George Vanderhoff, Dr. Joseph Hasek, former Rep. and Mrs. Joseph Casey, Mr. Frederick Goff, the Robert Dudleys, Mr. George Abell, Alice Leone Motes, Mr. Marvin Braverman, World Bank's Jan Mladek, Mr. Gerson Nordlinger Jr., Mrs. Ian McCullough of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Claiborne Pell and many others.

Walter P. Chrysler Jr. Collection Comes to Norton Gallery

ADDITIONING MUCH LUSTER to the Norton Gallery's season was the opportunity of presenting an exhibition of Dutch, Flemish and German paintings from the Walter P. Chrysler Jr. collection in mid-season.

The exhibition even attracted on its opening day the presence of Vincent Price, as noted an art connoisseur as actor, who came to the preview reception for members of the Palm Beach Art League.

Mr. Price, who was appearing that week at the Royal Poinciana Playhouse in "Visit to a Small Planet," accepted the invitation of Mr. Willis F. Woods, Norton Gallery director, and spent two hours viewing and discussing the pictures with the director and guests.

The exhibition was made possible for this community by the Norton Gallery's participation in the tour made by the paintings through 10 Southern cities. The paintings came here from the Delagado Museum in New Orleans and went in mid-March from here to the Columbia Museum of Art in Columbia, S. C.

In deference to the value of the pictures, estimated conservatively at $850,000, the exhibition was not hung in the transient galleries but in three galleries in the main building, from which the permanent Norton collection paintings were removed.

Few art centers in places the size of the Palm Beaches have been privileged to offer the art loving public the opportunity of viewing a collection of Old Masters including four outstanding Peter Paul Reubens' canvases, a painting of such magnitude as "The Kermess in Hoboken" by Pieter Brueghel the Younger, which has been so widely reproduced; a Frans Hals, a Van Dyke, "Ecco Homo" by Heemskerck, to say nothing of great works by such masters as Hieronymus Bosch, Jan Brueghel, Hobbema, DeHooch, Hans Holbein the Elder, Jacob and Salomon van Ruysdael, Jan Steen, Tavid Teniers the Younger.

The pivot of the exhibition of 57 paintings was regarded as the four magnificent Rubens works, with 12 artists living in the 150 years before his birth and 37 who were his juniors, making up the bulk of the collection.

Rembrandt was not included because it was felt that it would be impossible to choose from this master, whose works would be an exhibition in themselves.

Portraiture, mythology, religious illustration, together with homey every-day scenes and landscapes are all to be found in this collection, which concentrates on the 16th and 17th Centuries and serves as an interesting commentary on changing art concepts.

According to Mr. Chrysler, who chose the works to go on tour, "quality and condition of each picture was taken into consideration," and much attention was given to creating an exhibition of uniformity that would be representative of the 15th through 18th centuries.

Earliest of the paintings were the Schaufelein primitives, "A Female Saint" and "Female Saint with Donor," oil on wood panels. Among the latest was the "Figures at a Window" by Adriaen Van der Werff, Rotterdam, 1659-1722. Most unusual was "The Concert" by Judith Leyster, Haarlem, 1610-60, as this was the only painting by a feminine artist.

This Chrysler exhibition served to point up interest in the Norton Gallery permanent collection, which though preponderantly contemporary, includes a small, judicious collection of Old Masters.

Most of the paintings in the gallery's collection were personally chosen by the late Ralph H. Norton and the late Elizabeth Calhoun Norton, co-founders and donors of the Gallery and the Norton School of Art. Since Mr. Norton's death, a number of works have been added to the collection through purchase. The collection is rotated, with a certain number being placed in storage and certain others being brought out each year.

The baby's christening took place in the presence of an intimate group of friends. The Right Rev. The Lord Bishop of Nassau, Spence Burton officiated, and Mrs. Herbert Holt and Vera, Lady Broughton, "proxy" godmothers, held little Bianca Beatrice while the service was read.

Lord Ennisdale stood in for godfather Fred Wanklyn Jr., a childhood friend of Bobo's who is attending Princeton University. Others attending were Sir Guy and Lady Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stickney of Florence, Italy and Nassau, Mr. Francis Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Donald and Major Herbert Holt of Nassau.

Metropolitan opera singer, Patrice Munsel, who arrived in Nassau with her husband Robert Schuler to be god parents, was unable to attend the christening due to illness.

pop out of the fashion houses — much of it good, some of it sad. "C'est la vie" as the French say.

There was the explosive appearance, in August, of the sack dress. True, it had been creeping in for the past six years, ever since Balenciaga showed that fateful brown lace middy dress in 1951. In each successive collection he discarded a few more belts, and so did a few other daring houses. But, all at once, in August, the sack was here. It was not only a new feminine shape from shoulder to knee, but from the top of the head to the sole of the foot. It outmoded existing hats and shoes. For mysterious reasons of balance, hats shot off backward, like wind socks, shoes narrowed and pointed forward. Knee-length skirts gave a new importance to legs, and we had at once Balen-

Fashions from Paris ~

BIG YEAR IN THE WORLD OF FASHION

By Adeline Fitzgerald

THE FRENCH FASHION WORLD has come through one of its most eventful years — a year that may go into the record as did 1947 in the history of French wines. Its effect will long be felt in the feminine world.

A new silhouette came in, young dressmakers came into their own, an electric spirit prevailed in the couture. News seemed to ciaga's dark siren leg look and Carven's shimmering gold nylons. There are even sack bathing suits.

Castillo, the designing half of Lanvin-Castillo, is a Spaniard devoted to the lore and customs of his country — hence the appearance of Lanvin mannequins hooded like penitentes, the better to show their evening stockings.

On the personal side, the most stirring event of the year was Christian Dior's passing. Not only because the name of Dior was the most powerful commercial name in the world, but because he was, personally, a Frenchman of true distinction. A little too late, everyone realized that this Frenchman, under a blanket of the valley lilies he had loved, had been overworked and underappreciated. There was many a genuine tear along with the holy water dropped on his bier by the thousands of Parisians who filed by, passing the silver asperges from hand to hand so that each might make the sign of the cross over this beloved Christian. "It is an impressive custom," an American remarked coming out of the church of Saint-Honore-d'Eylau. "It is like putting a period to a man's life."

It is a little ironic that Dior, who disliked so heartily the feminine custom of wearing scarves on the head, peasant-fashion, should have around him at the last this sea of bowed heads, scarf-covered. It is surprising — the number of younger French women who simply do not own hats.

The House of Dior did not permit itself even a comma's pause. Yves Saint-Laurent took Dior's place in a brief ceremony in the gray and gold salon where, just ten years ago, the New Look was born. And about shy young Saint-Laurent there was very much the look of a boy dressed for his Confirmation. Navy blue suit, snowy white shirt, black tie, serious air. Obviously he found the spotlight overpowering.

As an army of cameramen pressed in upon him he drew closer to Madame Raymonde Zehnacker, technical director of the house and now the mother of its 1,400 employees. With an effort Madame Raymonde held back her tears. It is said that she was the head of the house and Dior was its soul. He called her his guardian angel; she was beside him when he died.

The new collection is entirely Saint-Laurent's, a great responsibility for a boy who just three years ago was timidly accepting first prize in an amateur competition staged by the Wool Secretariat. One of the judges was Dior, who turned out to be a very good judge of talent.

Chanel's faith in her lucky number "5" was fully justified in 1957 when she was summoned to Dallas to receive the Neiman-Marcus award "for leadership in design." It was not only a triumph for her, but for the writers and buyers who have always believed in her, even when it meant swimming against the tide. Chanel, who doesn't like to venture out of her own house in the Rue

In the great dressmaking houses of Paris the gayest day of the year is the feast of St. Catherine, special patroness of midinettes. Jean Dessès offers a bouquet to Maria Carine, who executes his ready-to-wear models.

Cambon, hesitated about going to Texas, but finally embarked with a wardrobe of fifteen suits, all of them the suit that has become her trademark, but in different fabrics — jerseys for daytime, silks and velvets and brocades for after five. The easy skirt, the straight little jacket ending at the hipbones, the straight sleeves coming not quite to the wrist, the blouse matching the lining of the jacket — this single simple model has re-established Chanel after a four-year struggle to come back.

For Dessès, too, it was a triumphant year, his 20th as a Paris dressmaker. He was able to celebrate it suitably in the elegant old Eiffel mansion which has been his house since 1948. There was a special lilt to his anniversary collection, and a great swishing of the birdtails to which he is devoted. He had also the satisfaction this year of dressing his No. 1 client, Queen Fredrika of Greece, for her attendance at the wedding of Princess Helene de France, at Dreux.

The two weddings in the Maison de France were a powerful stimulant to a number of fashion houses. Dior made the bridal gown, and dressed the bride's mother, the beautiful Countess de Paris. Little Madame Carven (5 foot, 1 inch) made the Carven green taffeta wedding dress for the civil ceremony. Balmain and Heim made robes for the cortege.

For the most important wedding of the year in France, two little brothers, Bruno and François d'Harcourt, sons of Count d'Harcourt, submitted patiently to fittings at Jacques Heim's. Madame Claire, the fitter, and Mr. Hughes, the tailor, were fitting them to carry the train of the Duchess Marie-Therese de Wurtemberg in her wedding to Prince Henri of France.

The fashion houses also profited enormously by Queen Elizabeth's Spring visit, making hundreds of lavish gowns and hats for Parisians to wear to all the receptions and state dinners.

Jacques Heim, who gave the fashion world the bikini bathing suit and the dirndl skirt and pioneered in the use of cotton as a high fashion fabric, is in the forefront of the movement toward ready-to-wear with haute couture labels. For several years he has shown them in his own establishment, but this year he took the definite step of giving his designs to a French manufacturing house, Maria Carine. And to show how positive his intentions were, he and Madame Heim and their son Philippe traveled out to Maria Carine's establishment in the Bourse arrondissement to help launch the new collection with cham-

Just after his twenty-first birthday, Yves Saint-Laurent, by an extraordinary turn of events, became the successor to Christian Dior. pagne. "Aren't you out of your quartier?" someone teased Philippe. "We certainly are," he said. "It took us two hours to get here." The distance is only two kilometres, but the traffic in Paris at the end of the day is that bad.

Jacques Heim made a statement that ought to clarify the reasons for the trend toward ready-to-wear. Paris dressmakers, he said, have always collaborated with American, German and English manufacturers. Why not with French manufacturers? This exclusive collaboration with the foreign market has created an anomaly: New York and London streets are full of women wearing French-inspired fashions while on the Paris streets it is not so. It is necessary to bring fashion within reach of the average Frenchwoman so she can give an example of elegance to the world. The quicker the haute couture establishes contact with a vast feminine audience,

In the 17th century Lully house, in the heart of Paris, Pierre Billet now shows the 20th century fashions.

Mr. Heim concludes, the more faithful it can remain to its mission of being a laboratory of ideas and a seedbed of talent.

Madame Manguin feels the same way about ready-to-wear and has launched a separate house of medium-priced models which she calls Satellite. It has not lowered her prestige; she has just received the coveted Prix de la Qualite Francaise. Daughter of the painter Henri Manguin, she remains devoted to the memory of her father and his artist friends, and some of their canvases are always on her walls. In mid-December she held a delightful little show of ceramics of Auguste Renoir, never before shown, including a doll's tea set painted by Renoir when he was 16 years old. Other ceramics were the work of the painter's son Claude, and there were some paintings by Madame Manguin's brother, Claude Manguin, and some ancient music to enhance the evening.

Lanvin-Castillo, Madeleine de Rauch and Dessès will have their ready-to-wear models executed by Maria Carine; Carven, Griffe, Maggy Rouff and Nina Ricci will turn out their pret-a-porter creations at home.

A great deal of ready-to-wear activity in Paris is generated by a dynamic American, Dorothy Masson, who has brought new efficiency and speed to the promotion of French fashion. The daughter of physicist Dr. Edward P. Hyde, Dorothy was born in Washington, where her father was with the Bureau of Standards, spent part of her girlhood in Cleveland, and came to Europe at the age of thirteen to begin her French education in a convent in Cannes. She took her degree at the University of Lausanne, having skipped her Cleveland coming-out party, and in 1936 was married in Paris to a Frenchman, Daniel Masson de Belavalle, who was later to earn some crosses in World War II. Dorothy's wartime work with the Red Cross convinced her that, in peacetime, she would be happier running a business than staying home, and six years ago she opened her own public relations office in the Faubourg St. Honore. With a staff of three, she stage-manages, on an average, one big fashion show a week; sending out invitations, hiring the caterer, choosing the menu, writing the commentary, usually in two languages, processing the photos (with bi-lingual captions) and section, takes another route. Dorothy seldom gets back to Beau Sejour before 8 p.m.

Many of her fashion shows are staged in the old Lully mansion in the rue des Petits Champs, now the dress house of Pierre Billet. Around 1671, Lully, music director for the court of Louis XIV, borrowed 11,000 livres from his good friend Moliere to build this house. Its facade is still embellished with the sculptured masques of Bacchantes and satyrs and musical instruments of the 17th century. The house is classed as a historic monument by the Beaux-Arts, hence "untouchable" without permission, but Mr. Billet was permitted to renovate the interior, leaving intact only the old frescoed ceiling in lining up the mannequins. During the flu epidemic this included taking the girls' temperatures, last minute illness played havoc with all fashion shows and Dorothy had her share of problems. To the French runway parade she sometimes adds such American touches as a flower in the lapel and a live poodle on a leash.

French cocktail parties usually involve an array of food, and Dorothy's are especially ample. She prepares for four glasses of champagne and a total of fifteen sandwiches, cakes and coupes of ice cream — per person! But keeps her own figure by eating none of it, except for an occasional glace cafe. She wears a sack dress, unadorned, almost no jewelry, and never a hat. Her day begins early, at home in the Villa Beau-Sejour at Viroflay, near Versailles, where she must brief her household staff (and feed the chickens, she says) before starting for her Paris office. Behind the scenes at Jean Patou's there is a new face, that of Mad, who was half the firm of Mad Carpentier, and before that, worked with Vionnet. When Madame Vionnet, desolate at the certain approach of another World War, closed her house in 1939, two of her employees, Mad Maltezos and Suzie Carpentier, formed their own dressmaking house and merged their names to become Mad Carpentier. Now Madame Mad, as head designer, will give the feminine touch to Patou creations.

The many changes in the Paris' couture necessitates a new edition of "Dressmakers of France," and a huddle of its co-authors. The Paris half of the team, Dora Loues Miller, flew to New York in mid-December, to confer with Mary Brooks Picken, as well as with the button and embroidery people Dora represents in Europe. Dora is another American in Paris who continues to astonish the French with her display of native energy. She came here during World War I to help provide entertainment for the troops at the front, and except for bi-annual trips home, has never left Paris. When the Germans marched in in 1940, Dora was just marching out. Part of her escape, by way of Portugal, was made on foot, as the worn-out soles of her shoes testified to when she deplaned at New York.

A few years ago she received the Legion of Honor for her aid to the French couture.

The Rt. Rev. Msgr. William Barry, in his black robe, William Tarradash, vice chairman of St. Francis' board of trustees, and Dr. Gayetano Panettiere, secretary, were more representatives of the hospital.

In recognition of his work for the hospital Fred received a handsome silver tray from the board. Msgr. Barry introduced James Gerity Jr., who made the presentation.

Something to look forward to in the party line in Miami Beach is the annual dove dinner given by Billie and Julio Sanchez at their home on Sunset Island II. This year was no exception.

It was as cold as the Arctic regions but that didn't chill the merrymaking at the fantastic cocktail buffet given by those four bachelors, Jim Stewart, John Astor, Larry Haugen and Ben Olsen.

This progressive party started at Jim Stewart's home on Pinetree Drive in a huge tent for cocktails and hot canapes and progressed to another equally enormous tent across the street at John's house for dinner.

John's half brother, John Dick, came down from Charleston, S. C., for the party and stood with the hosts to greet guests in the chilly winds at Jim's house.

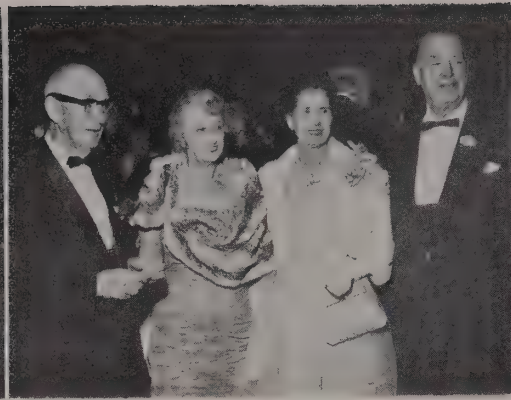

Full length mink coats for the women; sweaters, top coats, berets and caps for the men, were the order of the evening. Laura Rospigliosi topped her full length silver mink with a cerise scarf over her blonde hair while husband Jay wore a snug camel's hair great coat and Alpine hat with saucy feather.

Among the "beret boys" were Charlie Moon, Bill Stubblefield, Bob Slater, Michel Thorgevsky, George du Manoir. Opera star Dorothy Kirsten was escorted by Alfred Barton and was wearing a long mink.

Charlie McAdam wore a doggy cap plus sweater, jacket and top coat. Mrs. McA. was another in full length mink. Most spectacular mink of the evening was worn by beautiful Rosita Montenegro, houseguest of Didi and Dan Mahoney. This was a magnificent azure mink with over-the-shoulder cape collar. Her escort was Louis Johnson of Atlanta.

Bob Armstrong was escorting "twins." They were his mate, pretty red haired Zoe, and her sister, Eleanor (Mrs. Martin) Belene of Short Hills, N. J. For those who may have had more than one refresher, they might have thought they were seeing double.

AS WINTER ROARS OUT and the first jonquils and arbutus appear on the mountainsides, The Homestead in Hot Springs, Virginia, is welcoming back, not only Spring, but the Spring vacationers as well.

On April 12 the Hollins and Sweet Briar girls will compete in their annual tennis match, and April 22-27 will bring tennis enthusiasts, both amateur and expert, from all over the country for the gay week-long Annual Spring Invitation Tennis Matches.

by the Virginia Trail Riders' Association, will be held on The Homestead Trails April 15-17. This is patterned after the famous 100-mile Ride held each August in Woodstock, Vt.

Many golf tournaments are scheduled in 1958 including the Triangular Golf Match between V.P.I., V.M.I. and the University of Virginia on April 28; the State Intercollegiate Tournament on May 12; the Southern Seniors on May 23-25; Men's Virginia State Amateur July 2-6; Women's Virginia State Amateur July 21-25, and the famous Homestead Women's Open Four-Ball on July 17-20.

This tournament brings the country's leading proettes to Hot Springs, including Jackie Pung, the Bauer Sisters, Louise Suggs and Patty Berg. To the delight of the guests, the girls always hold a Golf Clinic during their visit.

SPRING IS NOT JUST AROUND THE CORNER—IT IS HERE! The weather, unrivalled anywhere in the world, is perfect. Warm sunny days with gentle breezes playing off the Gulf of Mexico, are ideal for golfing on the 18-hole championship golf course, a game of tennis on one of the three all-weather courts, excellent inland waterway or Gulf fishing, or for just a lazy day of relaxation on the white sands directly in front of The Beach Club Hotel.

The best proof of The Beach Club's popular appeal is that so many guests return year after year. Prominent among recent guests holidaying at the Club are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Heller of Shaker Heights, Ohio. He has recently been appointed by President Eisenhower as Chairman of National Citizens Council for Better Schools.

While the Hellers were holidaying at The Beach Club, Mr. Roy Larsen, President of Time, Inc., was also here.

Publisher R. H. Flynn and Mrs. Flynn flew down for a visit from Greenwich, Conn., making their headquarters at the Beach Club.

Among recent guests at The Beach Club Hotel: Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Anderson, Clinton, Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Emery, Toledo, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, Richmond, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Fisher, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stewart, Philadelphia, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Constock, Essex, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Heath, Providence, R. I.; Mr. and Mrs. H. C. NOW THAT FINAL PREPARATIONS are being made for the presentation of the Princeton Glee Club's annual concert at The Surf Club on Monday evening, March 31st, one can be sure that Spring is really here. From various prep schools and colleges around the nation have come the youngsters and teenagers to make The Inn extremely gay; however, when this handsome and talented group from the Ivy League make their appearance, it will be even gayer (if that's possible).

The young men from Princeton always manage to find time for a bit of tennis, swimming and golf during their Ponte Vedra sojourn. Naturally, it would be a great thrill if one of the golfers could become a member of Ponte Vedra's Hole-In-One Club. So far this year there have been only two additions to the list. The first, of course, was Mr. William Ruffin, of Durham, N. C., with the second one being one of our Ponte Vedra residents, Mr. Phil Betette. He chose a six iron for the 147-yard sixteenth hole and a wiser choice could not have been made. Lady Luck smiled down to watch him score the first ace of his golfing career. Also happily

Tennis Pro, Dave Drury, is more than delighted with the new tennis facilities here at Ponte Vedra. Three all weather courts have been added to the three older ones that have been given a complete renovation. In addition to the increased playing area, there is now a very beautiful tennis building where enthusiasts of the game will spend many pleasure filled hours.

Another building has been constructed and will be put to much use as additional golf carts arrive. Yes, these handy objects bearing the Ponte Vedra crest will be housed in this building which is, of course, near the very popular Golf Club. The carts are much in demand now that the snow weary vacationers are playing the Ponte Vedra course daily.

Also enjoying golf to the fullest are the members of the Ponte Vedra Women's Golf Association. This active group recently completed their annual tournament with Mrs. E. E. Smith now wearing the crown of club champion along with being medalist winner. Mrs. Robert Allen is the new champion of the nine hole play and Mrs. Lou Passmore watching was his wife who incidentally was his golfing partner. As the year progresses we hope additional names will be added to the Hole-In-One roster.

Also seen on the course recently were avid golfers from Washington, D. C., Messrs. Frank Smith, W. B. Maroshek, Jim Gibbons and Eddie Gallaher; Mrs. Robert Eakin of Pittsburgh; Mr. A. E. Ehrke of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. Fred Crabbe of Englewood Cliffs, N. D.; Mr. C. E. Sweiven of Houston; Mr. Paul A. Elfers of Marshalltown, Iowa; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gill of Peoria, Ill.

Another active organization in this area is the Ponte Vedra Art Association. Mrs. Glenn Stewart was hostess recently to this group when Mr. Hugo Ohlms of St. Augustine, formerly of New York City, was honored guest. Mr. Ohlms is an outstanding muralist and one of his works has given the Mural Room of The Inn its name. This lovely room is a favorite dining area with many guests and Club members.

Among recent guests of The Inn have been Mr. and Mrs. David Johnston of Hutchinson, Kan.; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Johnston of Houston, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. N. A.

As the season progresses these will be joined by other pleasure seekers and at Ponte Vedra they need search no further for fun, sun, and days of relaxation.

THE AREA SURROUNDING THE BEAUTIFUL EDGEWATER GULF HOTEL — between Biloxi and Gulfport — along the Mississippi Gulf Coast is rich in legend and story.

Stories and legends of the Gulf Coast section are handed down from generation to generation, but few of them will be remembered any longer than a day of festivity at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel held by Moore-McCormack Lines, Inc., and the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. on March 12 when the S.S. Argentina was launched in nearby Pascagoula. The S.S. Argentina is one of the "Good Neighbor Fleet" operating between New York and east coast South American ports.

Some 600 guests, including members of the launching party who came by special train to the Edgewater Gulf, attended the gala occasion.

Featured entertainment for members of the launching group at the hotel was an Argentina party given in a huge tent on the spacious lawns of the Edgewater Gulf. Here the official party and guests were entertained at cocktails and dinner under the big tent . . . Popular was the oyster bar where shrimp and oysters on the half shell, right out of the Gulf, were served, and barbecued beef and whole barbecued trout were served from the cooking area . . .

The launching party also enjoyed a Southern breakfast at the hotel with the menu including old South favorites: grits, Virginia ham and hot biscuits. A large luncheon followed the ceremonies.

Mrs. Alfred I. duPont, of Wilmington, Del., sister of Edgewater Gulf Hotel owner Edward Ball, was in New Orleans for the Mardi Gras and attended the Rex and Comus ball. She came from the carnival to the Edgewater Gulf Hotel for a brief vacation in late February . . . Distinguished and gracious, Mrs. duPont, listed in a recent issue of a national publication as one of the world's richest women, saw many of her old friends here whose winter vacation coincided with her brief holiday at the Edgewater Gulf.

Socially prominent Mr. and Mrs. Thomas

Mitchell Hunter, of Short Hills, N. J., came here in February for a two month holiday . . . The Hunters, at the hotel for their sixth annual winter vacation, said it is "like coming home" . . . Mrs. Hunter is an active club-woman in New Jersey . . . Mr. Hunter patented several inventions . . . Now retired, he is a former president of the American Transformer Company . . . Both are popular members of the "winter colony" at the Edgewater Gulf. As members of the Baltusrol Golf Club, their chief enthusiasm here was golf — and shuffleboard . . . Square dancing, they said, is a diversion they enjoy when they are back in New Jersey . . . Enroute home in the Spring, they plan to stop in Newberry, S. C., to visit friends . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Woods, of Indianapolis, Ind., who have spent their winter vacations at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel for many years, are back this season for a month's holiday in what they describe as their "second home." Mr. and Mrs. Woods, formerly of Biloxi, Miss., said the hotel's championship 18-hole golf course and other diversions provide "every pleasure to be found at a fine resort."

Dr. and Mrs. Milton H. Fies, of Birmingham, Ala., who have been vacationing regularly at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel for 25 years, were back this season with Mrs. Fies'

In 1949 Dr. Fies started experimenting with underground gassification of coal, and now the British and Russians are carrying on extensive experiments in this field . . . Dr. Fies is also trustee of the Southern Research Institute in Birmingham, the first of its kind in the South, a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, Institute of Consulting Engineers, and of the American Association for Advancement of Science . . . He has written brochures on mining methods, mine mechanization and chemistry of coal, the only engineer outside of the Bureau of Mines ever given a conservation award by the Department of Interior . . . Busy Dr. Fies finds recreation in horseback riding . . .

An interesting family group vacationing at the Edgewater Gulf this season are Mr. and Mrs. John L. Evans, of Emerson, Iowa, who spent their seventh winter holiday here . . . They were joined for a week by their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Marion L. Evans, of Stronghurst, Ill. . . The senior Mr. Evans, a member of the Omaha Athletic Club, Omaha, Neb., tells an interesting story concerning his grandfather, Jack Evans, of Stronghurst, Ill., who had a trainload of cattle in New York when Fort Sumter was fired on. When the news reached New York, traders left the market to watch for bulletins . . . All trading stopped and the most he could get for the cattle was a watch, an old stem winder which Mr. Evans, the grandson, still has. His grandfather was the first cattleman to ship from the Chicago stock yards.

Rep. William M. Colmer (D-Miss.) who was in Mississippi for the formal dedication of the Pontiac Refinery at Hattiesburg and Purvis, attended by many financial and industrial executives from all over the United States, stopped by the Edgewater Gulf Hotel for a week-end in February. "It was quite an event for Mississippi, and indicative of things to come," said the Congressman, who was accompanied to Mississippi by Graham Barden, of North Carolina, chairman of the education and labor committee of the House of Representatives.

At the Edgewater Gulf Hotel, too, for a short holiday in February were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fox and Miss Catherine Sullivan, of

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mitchell Hunter of Short Hills, N. J., at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel, where they have been winter visitors for the past six years.

Meridian, Miss. . . Mrs. Fox and Miss Sullivan are both active supporters of the Business and Professional Women's Club in Meridian, and Mrs. Fox also is active in the Matinee Musical Club . . . Miss Sullivan, treasurer of the Meridian and Bigbee Railroad Company, is also treasurer of the American Council of Railroad Women, an organization . . .

Days of Fabled Royal Poinciana recalled in Surf Club Gala

By Sandy Surf

Frank Boran—The Surf Club

THE WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BALL at the Surf Club, Miami Beach, was a nostalgic night for many members and their friends, for theme of the Gala this season was the world-famed Royal Poinciana Hotel in Palm Beach, as it was back in its plush days, when the Washington's Birthday Ball was the height, as well as the end, of the season, and when millionaires were a dime a dozen. Those guests attending the Gala who didn't remember the historic hotel in its heyday, had read all about it, so that the scenes of its interior and exterior, and the re-creation of its renowned fabulous fetes, were familiar sights to them.

Actually "you were there," if you happened to be at the Surf Club's patriotic party honoring the Father of Our Country on Interior of the Royal Poinciana Hotel, showing one of the shadow box pictures in the ballroom of the Surf Club for the recent George Washington's Birthday Gala.

February 22 — right at the Royal Poinciana Hotel in Palm Beach. Amazing, and amusing, were two words on the lips of almost every guest. It was no less than phenomenal how the yellow and white wooden structure was reproduced — its entrance, the wide porches where hotel guests spent many hours relaxing in wicker rocking chairs (times were more leisurely then, and this was the fashionable thing to do); the carpeted interior, with its potted palms and red round stools that centered the spacious parlors and reception rooms.

Amusing were the hour-glass figured Gibson girls, the lorgnetted dowagers wearing "dog collars," ropes of pearls and jewels galore with their bustled dresses and trailing trains.

Mustacheoed men wore frock coats, striped pants, monacles, and bowler hats, and not one detail was overlooked in making authentic, and amusing, this earlier era of Florida's history. Even an old-time smoke-stacked train engine stood before the exterior of the hotel, and behatted and beveled women, dressed to protect their skin from the rays of the sun, waived greeting to friends arriving by rail in their private cars.

Guests dined and danced before this replica of the Royal Poinciana Hotel at the Surf Club's Washington's Birthday Gala.

Ky., spent many childhood days romping around the spacious grounds of the Royal Poinciana Hotel, playing hide-and-seek behind the bannisters and posts of the porch, or peeking down the stairways to watch the elaborate entertainments that sometimes rivalled the splendor of Buckingham Palace. The former Lucy Barret Gant spent many seasons at the hotel with her parents, the S. G. Gants.

Judge and Mrs. C. Leonard O'Connor, long-time Winter residents at Miami Beach from Cortland, N. Y., remember the plush days of the Royal Poinciana, and felt right at home amidst its settings at the Surf Club party.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Lowy Wall of Miami Beach never happened to be guests at the old Palm Beach landmark, but remember it.

They entertained friends at the patriotic party, and while their son-in-law, Frank Smathers Jr., brother of Florida's Senator George Smathers, could recall the Royal Poinciana, he remembered more vividly his childhood days at Miami's big, and similar, Flagler-owned hotel, the Royal Palm. Mr. and Mrs. Smathers were among guests at the Walls' table at the party.

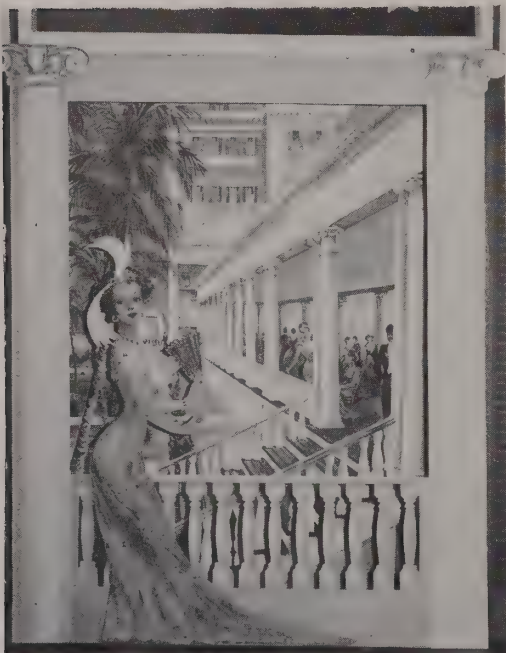

Budge Mead spent his childhood in Miami and recalled swimming in the pool at the Royal Palm Hotel in this city instead of trips to the Palm Beach Royal Poinciana, but he had heard all about the sister hotel up the way.

Shadow boxes along the walls of the Surf Club's great ballroom depicted dance scenes at the Royal Poinciana, scenes of couples strolling about the porches of the hotel, and men and women chatting in the parlor of the famed hostelry. American eagles and stars and flags decorated the archways, while table decor featured silhouettes of George Washington, patriotic favors, such as cherry trees, miniature flags and hatchets, and menus carried out the patriotic colors of red, white and blue, as did many of the handsome gowns worn by feminine guests.

The Don Allens, of New York and Miami Beach, entertained at the gala, which is one in a series of brilliant galas, or theme dinner dances, the Surf Club stages each year; and so did the John L. Bells of Marion, Ind., and Miami Beach. Annual Winter visitor at the Surf Club from New York, Mrs. Carolyn Bourne, was a dinner hostess that evening, and the Frank Gibsons from Michigan and Miami Beach were there. One of the largest parties of the evening was that of the Lee Jacksons of Akron, who are wintering at Miami Beach. Mr. Jackson is president of Firestone. The John A. Treats of New York were guests that evening of Mrs. Horatio Luro and the Edwin L. Wiegands of Rye, N. Y., and Miami Beach headed one of the larger tables, as did the George R. Kendalls of Kenilworth, Ill., who spend the winter months at the Surf Club.

It was a gay evening, this novel George Washington's Birthday Ball, and perfect from every angle, according to guests who gathered at the club that evening — atmosphere, authenticity and originality.

THE SEVENTH ANNUAL MARDI GRAS BALL of the Junior League of the City of New York was held in the Grand Ballroom of the Sheraton-Astor Hotel for the benefit of the Welfare Trust Fund. Mrs. John C. Carrington was Chairman of the Ball, and Mrs. Henry Oliver Rea Jr., who is President of the New York Junior League, was Co-chairman.

The Welfare Trust Fund supports a widespread program serving over 50 local welfare agencies, and among the Junior League projects are English Teaching for New Immigrants, Hearing and Speech Center at Bellevue Hospital, School Art League in elementary public schools, Volunteer Social Work, Arts and Crafts program in settlement houses, Community Singers, International Social Service, Library-by-Mail, Red Cross Nurses Aides, Puppeteers, Theatre Workshop.

The Ballroom decor was designed by T. Miles Gray Associates, and featured a color scheme of red, yellow, and white.

The Ballroom boxes were covered in yellow sateen with toy soldiers between each box, and large masks and papier mache musical instruments on the boxes. There were alternating yellow and white table cloths with red programs and white sparkling lollipop trees on each table. The ceiling was hung with red, yellow, and white streamers, centered with a large balloon hoop filled with matching colored balloons.

Sixteen-foot toy soldiers stood on either side of the stage, with red velvet draperies swagged from the center gold crown and red Junior League monogram. When the gold curtains parted, guests saw a golden fairy castle with a red decor against a black cellophane rear curtain. The stage floor and steps were marbled in black and white, and mid-center of the stage were two tall silver lollipop trees with blinking lights.

The ballgowns worn by the five candidates for Queen of the Mardi Gras Ball were created especially for the Junior League by young designer, Leonard Fisher.

Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower has again accepted the honorary chairmanship of the seventh "April in Paris" Ball to be held Thursday evening, April 10, in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. Mrs. Winston F. C. Guest and Mrs. Henry B. Hyde will be Co-Chairmen.

The French Ambassador to the United States, Mr. Herve Alphand, will be the guest of honor. The Committee has also invited His Excellency, Mr. Rene Coty, President of France, to preside at the Ball.

Mrs. W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador and Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge and the Minister Plenipotentiary and Consul General of France in New York, Baron Jacques Baeyens, will be Honorary Chairmen of the New York Committee.

The Duchess of Windsor and the Duke de Brissac are Co-Chairmen of the Paris Committee. Also serving as Chairmen of the various Committees are: Miss Elsa Maxwell, Ball Committee; Mrs. Lowell P. Weicker, New York Committee; Mrs. William Randolph Hearst Jr., and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Co-Chairmen of the Dinner Committee; Miss Dorothy Shaver, Fashion; Mr. Joshua Logan, Theatre and Arts Committee; Mayor Robert F. Wagner, Reception; Mrs. Joseph Neff and Mrs. Ezra K. Zilkha, Games; Ambassador Richard C. Patterson, Floor Committee; Mrs. Thomas Bancroft Jr. and Mrs. Allen G. Rupp, Junior Committee. The Sponsors and main contributors will again be Air France, Cartier and Coty.

The "April in Paris" Ball has raised approximately $500,000 during the past six years and the proceeds of the Ball will again be distributed among the Franco-American charities. The French Hospital in New York will be the main beneficiary, and the balance will be shared by the Atlantique (a Franco-American social workers and nurses exchange program), the A.D.I.R., Inc. (which aids the incapacitated ex-refugees and deportees from World War II), the French Students' Fund and other Franco-American charities.

Busy Bermuda Season Lies Ahead

By Barbara Dubivsky

FROM ALL INDICATIONS, Spring 1958 will be the busiest, gayest season these islands have seen in many years.

A harbinger of the social whirl lying in wait for visitors to this resort was the Black and White Ball, held in the Moongate Garden of the Bermudiana Hotel. A masked, costume ball, it was the last formal dance held in the Colony before the beginning of the Lenten season. Winners this year were Mrs. May Phillips and Mr. Ivan Pelletier who came "disguised" as Madame Pompadour and Louis XV. Other contest winners chose such original costumes as Anthony and Cleopatra, and chess pieces.

A recently revived annual event, the Ball is presented under the auspices of The Committee of Twenty-five, a group of Americans and Canadians resident in Bermuda who sponsor many social events in aid of local charities. The original idea of the Ball was to promote friendly relations with a shared social event between American visitors and Bermudians. Appropriately, the first Ball was held on George Washington's Birthday in 1908.

Golfers and yachtsmen had a chance to get in two competitions before the annual "invasion" of these islands by college and prep school students from the United States and Canada. On March 5-9, the Bermuda Four-Ball, Best Ball Championship for Men was played at the Mid-Ocean Club. And, on March 7-April 11, the Indian Harbour Bowl race series, for Luder 16's was sailed on the waters of the Great Sound.

Thousands of collegians converge on the Colony from mid-March through mid-April in one-week shifts, depending on when their schools hold mid-year vacation holidays. This year, several events have been added to the regular schedule of activities. In addition to the College Days at the Beach, where the famous Talbot Brothers entertain with a program of their inimitable calypsos, and the prettiest girl on the beach is crowned with a tiara of flowers, there is a College Week Cruise from Hamilton to the old town of St. George's.

Gombey Dancers will perform their unique, primitive dances, and an Esso Steel Band will serenade the students at Fort St. Catherine. Before re-boarding the old Hudson Day Line steamer, the "Chauncey M. Depew," for the sail back to town, students will have opportunities to photograph each other in the stocks and pillory erected on their historically correct spot in King's Square. "Quiet Morning," an amusing skit about 17th Century justice, will be performed on that site on dates to be announced.

Bicycle Tours, both the pedal and motor-assisted variety, will be held to the West End of the island, with stops at Horseshoe and Church Bays, Gibbs Hill Lighthouse, and the smallest drawbridge in the world. A box lunch at the recently reopened Fort Scaur, in Somerset, will give the students a chance to investigate the old military site.

Teams from Dartmouth, Princeton and Harvard will compete during Rugby Week, March 30-April 5. This fast and furious game is played without padding or forward passes. Rugby Week is the "grand-daddy" of College Weeks. First the teams came to compete with Bermudian players; their friends quickly followed, and organized fun was soon being conducted on a large scale.

Garden lovers, and all those visitors interested in seeing the interiors of some of Bermuda's loveliest houses will get their opportunity on Tuesday afternoons in March, when some of the most famous island homes and gardens will be open to the public for inspection.

April will usher in a host of activities, and endless varieties of flowers that will spill out over limestone walls and the confines of gardens. Nine-foot high bushes of oleander will line the pathways with their pale pinkness, and the incomparable Bermuda Easter

Lily will trumpet the news of the Resurrection from banked altars in the Colony's churches.

The busyness of the month begins on April 1 with the opening day of the 29th Bermuda Amateur Golf Championship; match play at scratch, in flights of 16, at the Mid-Ocean Golf Club in Tucker's Town.

Visiting children will join Bermudian youngsters in flying home-made and store bought kites on Good Friday. A treasured custom this, which had its origin when a perplexed Sunday School teacher of long ago who had difficulty explaining the mystery of Christ's ascension into Heaven. Eventually he solved his problem by painting the Saviour's picture on a kite; flew it until it soared high in the heavens, and then cut the string. As the children watched it disappear from view, they came to comprehend the lesson they first had had difficulty in understanding.

Jack Kramer's touring tennis professionals will once again appear here at the Bermuda Tennis Stadium, April 12-13. And, on April 13-19, the Edward Prince of Wales Cup Series and Match Races will be held in the Great Sound.

The traditional-minded will be interested in the annual Peppercorn Ceremony, on April 23, when the St. George Freemason's Lodge pays its annual rental of one peppercorn to the Governor of Bermuda in a colorful ritual that dates back to 1816, when the Lodge first made the Old State House their headquarters. With great solemnity, the peppercorn will be brought back to Hamilton and deposited in the Colonial Treasury's Vault.

Perhaps the most beautiful event of the whole year is the annual Bermuda Floral Pageant Parade, which features flower-decorated floats in a grand musical, mid-afternoon march through Hamilton. Special stands are reserved for visitors, who this year will see Miss Ruth Gissy, of St. Louis, Mo., riding in the Queen's float, covered with thousands upon thousands of lilies. She will also preside as Monarch of the Floral Pageant Ball to be held at the Bermudiana Hotel on April 20. A junior at Manhattanville Junior College, Ruth was one of last year's College Week Queens and thus became eligible for consideration as Pageant Queen.

On the heels of the Pageant will come International Race Week. This annual yachting classic involves individual and team races between American, Canadian and Bermudian gentlemen sailors, and is accompanied by many and varied social activities, all centering around the Royal Bermuda Yacht Club.

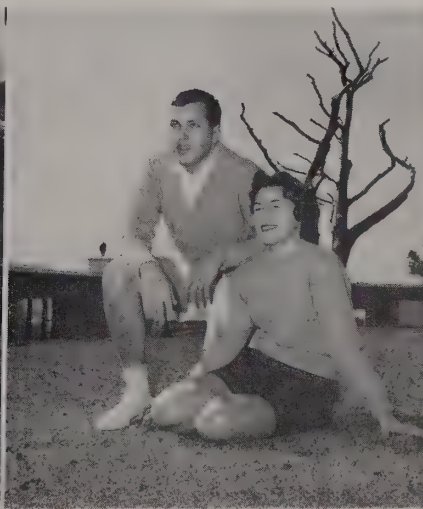

Flowers return to prominence on May 1 when visitors are invited to join Bermudians in concocting floral millinery creations for judging at the Sandys Parish Hat and Flower Show. One of last year's winners was Mrs. James Reid Parker, wife of the popular American writer then holidaying here.

All those who love a parade, and breathe there a soul that doesn't stir to the strains of martial music, will have opportunities on May 24, Empire Day (the anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria) and June 13, Official Birthday of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II.

In June, more than 80 yachts will set sail from Newport, Rhode Island, in the Biennial Bermuda Ocean Yacht Race. Many of their wives will fly from Providence to Bermuda to keep the vigil at St. David's head, official finishing line for the race. Among the many parties planned, the most festive will surely be the rafting-party, with about twenty yachts tying themselves together in the Sound for a bang-up all-day party. Flags and pennants will fly from bow to stern as invited guests climb from one yacht to another partaking of nautical hospitality.

The Game at Round Hill Montego Bay Jamaica

By Marguerite Allen

Photos—Marguerite Allen

HERE IS A NEW WRINKLE THIS SEASON at Round Hill, which has gone into its fourth winter with the title of Queen of the Jamaican resorts firmly established. This wrinkle is the game. To play or not to play is the question. Today, at Round Hill the gamey set have all but taken over—as definitely as Round Hill itself has taken over from other Caribbean resort areas.

Presently, the royal game at Round Hill is, of all things, chess. Backgammon runs a close second, and after that comes bridge, canasta, "jotto" and indeed all manner of word games.

Two years ago the beautiful bay at Round Hill was alive with snorkels bobbing up and down as socialites discovered the new and lively art of skin diving. This season the reefs have been deserted and scarcely a snorkel has been seen. Instead, on the beach and the patios, a pair of heads, oft with agonized expressions of concentration, may be seen pouring over chess and backgammon boards.

Round Hill chessers have included Prince Scherbatow, Cleveland Amory, author and social historian who may be credited with starting the vogue, Rene Bouche, the portrait painter, Fred Brandi, senior partner of Dillon, Reed, Abbot Copeland, Oscar Hammerstein II, David O. Selznick, Herbert Peet, James Parton, and even the president of the American Chess Foundation, Walter Fried.

The only gal player is glamour personified in Liz Pringle, one-time model and present-time cover girl (Life, Holiday, Harper's Bazaar, all in the past twelve months).

The Hon. John McKenzie Pringle (left) 31-year-old West Indian resort empire builder who already has three Jamaican hotels to his credit including the recently opened Casa Montego, takes time out to engage in a backgammon game with Herbert O. Peet on the terrace at Round Hill.

She also is the wife of the Honourable John McKenzie Pringle, who is not only a chess player, but also the 31-year-old entrepreneur who founded Round Hill, and who now has three Jamaican hotels to his credit including the recently opened Casa Montego, with two more hotels on the drawing boards.

Latest addition to the chess set is their daughter, Shawn Pringle. At the age of six Shawn already is familiar with such intricacies of the game as the knight's move.

Meanwhile, sun-baskers on the beach beside the far reaches of the blue Jamaican mountains and the azure Caribbean waters, have although frequently outnumbered, by no means disappeared. Indeed it would be impossible since the group this season has included such international beauties as Mrs. Rosemary Gaynor, Viscountess de Rosiere, Mrs. Henry Ford, Mrs. Francis Huger McAdoo, Mrs. Kingman Douglass, Mrs. Susan Fonda, Mrs. David O. Selznick (Jennifer Jones) and Mrs. Rex Harrison (Kay Kendall).

February first marked the opening of the season's season with the Animal Kingdom Ball at Round Hill sponsored by His Excellency the Governor, Sir Kenneth Blackburn, K.C.M.G., O.B.E. and Lady Blackburn for the benefit of Jamaica's Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

At midnight an extremely pretty young lady who could have been dubbed the Cinderella of the Animal Kingdom Ball, Miss Jean Carter, America's 1958 Maid of Cotton, reversed Cinderella's age-old tradition of "from jewels and fame to rags and fireside" by leading off a fashion show of gowns by American designers at the bewitching hour. They were modeled by socialites in residence at Round Hill, including the beautiful Mrs. Cleveland Amory, Mrs. Herbert O. Peet, Mrs. Kingman Douglass, Mrs. Gloria Pagano,

The game is the rage on the beach and patios of Round Hill this season with chess the favorite and backgammon running a close second. Abbott Copeland (left) makes a move in his game with social historian Cleveland Amory while Liz Pringle, wife of the Hon. John Pringle, owner of Round Hill, looks on; Prince Scherbatow (left) enjoys a game of backgammon with oilman Paul Raigorodsky of Dallas, Texas, as Max Chopnik (standing left) of New York City, and Herbert O. Peet of Kansas City, Mo., look on. Mr. Peet is a cottager in the Round Hill Estate and Mr. Raigorodsky is among the Tulsa-Dallas oilmen who are building a million dollar country club at Tryall, four miles west of Round Hill; Mrs. Oscar Hammerstein II follows the chess game between her husband, Oscar Hammerstein II (right) and Cleveland Amory.

Princess Scherbatow, and glamorous Mrs. Liz Pringle herself.

Star of the show may be said to have been Mrs. Kingman Douglass, the former Adele Astaire and dancing partner of brother

Fred. When pianist Ralph Strain saw her coming down the runway modeling a chemise dress, he broke into a Charleston and so did Adele Astaire Cavendish Douglass. The entrance of the darling of the Mayfair set in the roaring twenties was unquestionably the hit of the show.

However, the Charleston is not by any means Mrs. Douglass' favorite in Jamaica, (Continued on Page 85)

Mrs. Herbert O. Peet, Kansas City, Mo., looks up from her backgammon game on the terrace.

Mrs. Donald De Lisser, wife of the owner of Sunset Lodge and Bay Roc, with her brother, Mr. J. Turner, of Charlotte, N. C., at the Animal Kingdom Ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford relax on the patio at Round Hill; Viscount and Viscountess Paul de Rosiere arrive for luncheon; Mrs. Kingman Douglass, wearing a new type of bandana, searches for seashells on the beach at Round Hill.

Mrs. Herbert O. Peet and Mr. William Huger McAdoo; Mrs. John McKenzie Pringle of Round Hill, with Mr. Robert F. Warner, Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y.; Mrs. Joseph I. McDonell, Atlantic City, N. J., and Mr. George Collier of Coral Gables, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. William Coxe Wright, Philadelphia, Pa., gather for luncheon on the patio; Mrs. Gloria Pagano watches friends at play on the patio; Madame Charles Saint of Paris and her husband joint Lord and Lady Manton for lunch.

Miss Jean Carter, guest of honor at Round Hill's Animal Kingdom Ball, and host, the Hon. John McKenzie Pringle; English beauty, Mrs. Norman, and Mr. Brendan Walsh of Philadelphia, Pa., at the Animal where the fire-dancers come out of the hills to dance at the beach barbecues. This is the music that she really digs, and it occasionally sends her into a frenzied dance of her own concoction, to the great delight of all other guests. The natives don't know who she is, but love her enough to keep from scorching her with the firelit torches attached to frames which they wear for this ritualistic dance in which she joins them.

When not indulging in bridge, canasta, dancing, or gardening, Adele Astaire Cavenish Douglass usually can be found holding court in her own special corner of Round Hill's beach, where her favorite subject for this season is the importance of fashion at resorts. She has designed her own neat bandeau to keep her hair in place while on the beach. It looks extremely chic and happily takes the peasant-like approach out of the style.

Newest development in the Montego Bay area worthy of social comment is the reconstruction of Tryall, an 18th century estate 13 miles west of Montego Bay, and just beyond Round Hill. Another John McKenzie Pringle project, it will boast the only 18-hole golf course on the island of Jamaica, and a million dollar beach clubhouse. Work has begun, including restoration of the old water wheel which once supplied power to grind the sugar cane at Tryall, and it is expected to be completed by the autumn of 1958.

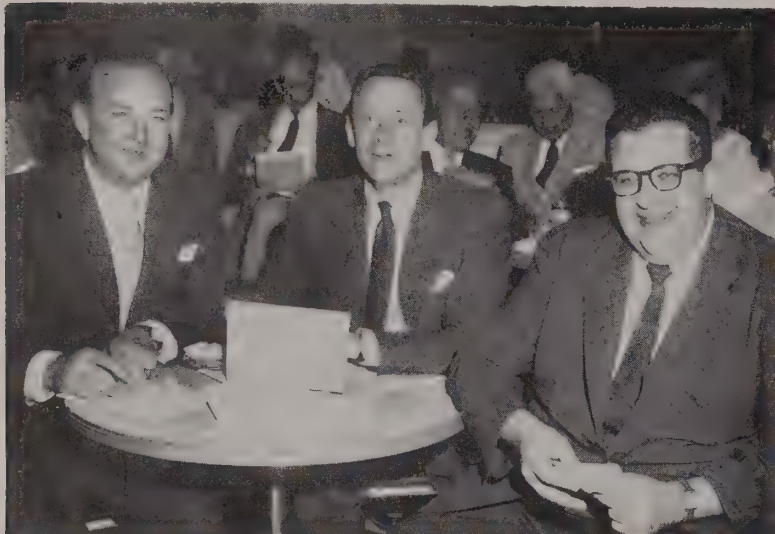

The ninety-eight-acre estate of Round Hill at Montego Bay, Jamaica, is topped off by a rounded hill visible from the air as the transports come in for landing at the airport, and in the distance the blue waters and coastline of Montego Bay are visible.

Maryland House and Garden Pilgrimage

By Barbara Avirett

THE MARYLAND HOUSE AND GARDEN PILGRIMAGE offers a unique experience for the visitor since there is such a variety of houses to be seen, ranging from early Colonial, low-roofed and rambling to elegant Georgian mansions with great formality.

A further variety exists in the gardens. Some of these are attached to manor houses, situated in the Tidewater section where camellia thrive and even a cypress forest exists. These houses, built largely of frame or brick, tranquil and protected from the 20th Century truck-traveled roads by their proximity to still and beautiful bodies of water, remain quietly aloof. Such alluring names as these creeks and rivers have: Tred Avon, Peach Blossom Creek, Patuxent, to name a few. The gardens flow, gently terraced down to the water, profuse with Spring bulbs, flowering trees and shrubs, and almost always there are to be found the dark, green masses of boxwood that thrive here. Nothing is more delicious than that sharp pungent scent drawn from them by the warm sun.

To the north, beyond Annapolis and Baltimore, where there are town houses of much charm to be visited, lie the valleys. Listen to their names: Long Green, the Valley of Jehosaphat (now Dulaney) and the Worthington and Green Spring Valleys.

Here is fox-hunting country, with timber fence and woodland, with lush meadows and pasture situated between gently rolling hills. There are a number of early fieldstone houses furniture, china and portraits, some ancestral, some acquired. Other houses are excellent brick copies of the finest Maryland architecture. Again we discover a wide variety in gardening. Some are elegant and formal, others are casual, simple areas of green lawn and shrubbery, but all about there is the valley opening out, revealing something quite similar to the English countryside. There is one garden famous for its topiary effect, the owner being a fox-hunting gentleman has created from boxwood, figures of the chase. Still another is amazingly enough Siamese, with stone pagodas and enchanting windbells and a museum of ancient Siamese figures.

But it is in the houses themselves, no matter where situated, that we discover the essence of Maryland's ancient and particular charm. We explore not only the present actual rooms, done in the owner's style, signed with his or her taste, but the past which makes up the sum of the present. The Flemish bond brick without, is not more durable than the beams within, the deeply carved mantel or cornices. The sunlight pours through handblown glass, across the wide, irregular floorboards as it has for generations. For a moment we are caught and held, carried back by the simplest object to another time. The silver candle snuffer on a Pembroke table recalls dark passages and hidden stairways once lighted by beeswax. A needlepoint fire-screen, with tiny stitching forming the faded roses of its center, evokes a non-existent fire, a bright head bent over the canvas, quick delicate fingers plunging the needle in and out. Who was she, this artist in wool, we wonder. Great four-poster beds, canopied with beautiful old quilts spread upon them, remind us of the large families which once occupied such houses, and occasionally the china basin and ewer, still extant on a washstand, recall to our minds that bathrooms were not always a necessity.

In spite of an occasional anachronism, here the past is made vital and real by present usage, for these homes are most of them lived in and enjoyed and are not maintained as museums. Children play here, the stairs are grooved deeper by constant footsteps. A great deal of informal entertaining is done and visitors are welcome and frequent. One comes away with the warm realization that the Maryland way of life is not lost, not gone with the wind, but that in its houses and gardens it still flourishes for the present and for future generations.

Twelve tours have been planned for this Spring by the Maryland House and Garden Pilgrimage with the cooperation of home owners scattered throughout the State and environs of Baltimore.

On Tuesday, April 29, the Pilgrimage will start with the Green Spring Valley. The earliest settlers built around Chattolane Springs, which was originally called Green Springs, about 1693. To protect themselves against the Indians they erected a series of forts one of which, a strong stone edifice at Fort Garrison, will be on the tour today. Originally the dwelling of the Rangers' Commandant, this house contains a notable collection of Americana, and Indian relics. Owners: Dr. and Mrs. Michael A. Abrams.

The first of the Valley's estate was laid out by Capt. Robert North and called Green Spring. It was later occupied by Ellin North Moale (1741-1825), said to be the first white child born in the Baltimore area. The house, surrounded by beautiful old trees, may be seen today. Owners: Mr. and Mrs. H. Bent-hall Marshall.

In contrast to these historic places Timber-lane will display pre-Columbian art and Spatterware china. Adjoining the distinguished modern house is a unique garden designed as a setting for sculptures by Reg Butler, Lipchitz, Maillol, Rodin, Jacob Epstein and Zadkine. A wooded wonderland of dogwoods and daffodils surrounds the place. Owners: Mr. and Mrs. Alan Wurtzburger.

Another modern house included on the tour will be the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Hecht. The Beaux Arts of Lowe Art Gallery

WHAT — BESIDES ART OF COURSE — makes an art gallery tick?

People and enthusiasm.

And among the most enthusiastic people anywhere are members of Beaux Arts, a group of young woman affiliated with the Joe and Emily Lowe Art Gallery, University of Miami.

Brainchild of Ann Atkinson, former assistant director of the Gallery, Beaux Arts was born in the spring of 1952 with 50 members.

By Betsy Buffington

Founded to "promote interest in and support of the Gallery," Beaux Arts has matured into one of the most vital forces in Dade County for furthering the arts.

Now numbering 100, Beaux Arts support a variety of projects: some are frankly to raise funds, others are designed to further the understanding of art.

First on the calendar among the annual projects is the Clothesline Sale which, this year, will be on Sunday, April 20. Begun in 1952, the sale is a one-day open air exhibition by local artists in the Donn Gardens adjacent to the Gallery. Purpose is to get artists together with the buying public under the most pleasant possible circumstances. Artists fasten their paintings and sketches on clotheslines strung between trees and arrange their other objets d'art on the ground or on tables. As personal salesmen for their wares, they have a chance to chat with literally hundreds of people interested in either picking up a good buy or finding something to match the living room curtains. Such is the point of the sale: artists find out what the buying public wants and the buying public finds out that originals are relatively easy on the family finances and much more fun to own than copies.

Special attractions such as pony rides for youngsters and attractive box lunches help make the sale a festive affair. Last year there was a Parisian flea market with books, records, antiques and bric-a-brac for sale.

One of Miami's social highlights is the annual Beaux Arts costume ball. In 1957 it was called "Noah's Beaux Ark Ball." Naturally patrons came two by two: for instance, Marcia Pawley and date Bill Clark were a pair of parakeets ("pair-o-keets"); the Edward Graftons were buttons and bows; the John Rosses, Punch and Judy; the Joe Lynches, a pair of jacks. Themes for other years have included: "A Carnival in Venice" at Vizcaya and "Paradise Lost, Paradise Regained" at the Surf Club. Although theme, location and date are closely guarded secrets, the 1958 ball will be sometime in the late Fall.

Funds raised through the ball are used to support such projects as the scholarship fund for University of Miami art students and gifts to the Gallery. The latter have included a mimeograph machine, a sales chest fund, postage meter, coffee and tea services, exhibition cases, tables, draperies, an addressograph and a silver punch bowl.

Perhaps most important of all the gifts was the fund supplied toward the construction and maintenance of the pavilion which bears the Beaux Arts name. Here on sunny Saturdays youngsters meet for art classes in surroundings conducive to creativity. Screened on three sides, the pavilion boasts an aquarium, a peg board exhibition area and colorful tables where small fry work.

The 300 youngsters enrolled in the Gallery's children's program are annually feted by Beaux Arts members at Christmas time. Santa Claus is on hand while children sing carols, watch Christmas movies and munch on cookies and candy canes.

Beaux Arts has given the Gallery $3,000 for cash awards to winners of the annual members' exhibition and the Miami National Ceramic Exhibition.

Thanks to Beaux Arts and the Gallery, talented high school students have a chance to study art with one of Florida's leading painters, Eugene Massin. Selected on a competitive basis on recommendation of Dade County art teachers, ten students are given Beaux Arts scholarships covering materials and membership in the Gallery. The remaining ten receive scholarships directly from the Gallery and from other local interested groups.

A Beaux Arts fall lecture series was inaugurated in 1956. UM art faculty have thus far presented two six-lecture series — one on the history of art and another on twentieth century painting.

At their monthly meetings, Beaux Arts members hear serious lectures by local and visiting authorities on cultural subjects. Lecturers have included noted author Philip Wylie, art historian Virgil Barker and architect Lester Pancoast.

The Beaux Arts of the Lowe Art Gallery has been honored by requests for advice from others interested in similarly supporting the arts in their areas. In 1954 Columbia Museum in Columbia, S. C., sought help in setting up a Beaux Arts group of their own. Other museums have since followed suit. Proof indeed that the Beaux Arts concept is an artful success.

THE NEW LINCOLN . . . inspired by the Continental

The one fine car that offers the enduring appeal of a classic

The New Lincoln is a fresh, distinctively new personality in the fine car field.

Immediately, you will see it is the one car that deserves to be called a modern classic . . . styled and crafted in the Continental tradition.

Perhaps—by simply assuming that the fine car you judged best three, four, or even ten years ago still rates top choice—you've been depriving yourself of a great deal of pleasure.

To be sure, we suggest you inspect The New Lincoln—with an open mind and a critical eye.

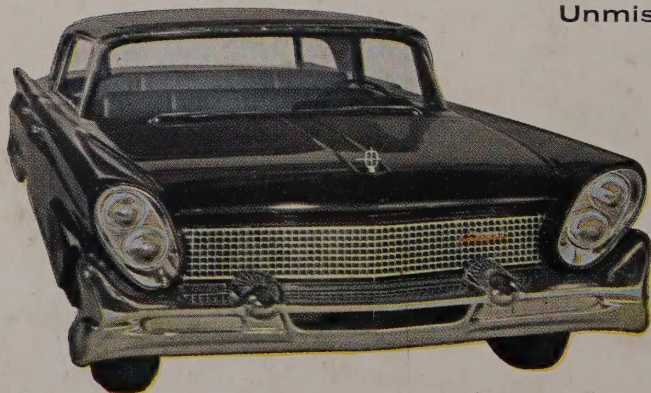

On the road, The New Lincoln lets you re-discover the rare pleasures of fine car motoring.

It has a new, 375-hp. engine that barely whispers, because it is built to a whole new standard of precision tolerances. And thanks to a new single unit body and frame, it has a quietness of ride formerly achieved only through hand-crafting.

Clearly, The New Lincoln is the one fine car that offers the enduring appeal of a classic.

LINCOLN DIVISION, FORD MOTOR COMPANY

Unmistakably . . . the finest in the fine car field
